

Columbus, Neb., Dec. 28, 1936.—We drove from Norfolk thru a heavy fog. Some rain falling. Met several farmer friends here who say the fog makes traveling inconvenient but they feel the fog and light rain is welcome. The ground is very dry. Mrs. Massey, of the Evans hotel, is worried over her husband who is driving home tonight from Omaha. The pavement is very slippery and many car accidents have been reported. Columbus is beautifully lighted. Christmas trees in the park decorated with colored lights shine a wonderful welcome thru the mist. Four big trains arrive in Columbus each evening around six o'clock. One is the Oveland limited, one is the Challenger, one is a train with all mail cars and the next one is the Portland Rose which we board. Lots of activity around the depot. Railroad men working for the Union Pacific say business is good. Men working for the Northwestern say it is bad. No stock or grain or farm products to haul—that makes bad business for railroads. Employees on the Northwestern tell us they haul more into the district than they take out.

Fremont, Neb.—Our train reaches Fremont—on the border line of the Third district. It is still very foggy and a light rain is falling. Passengers on the train look down Fremont streets from the car windows or from the platform and wonder at the beautiful lighting system.

Chicago, Dec. 29, 8:45 a. m.—The fog was general all the way from Norfolk and Chicago is enveloped in it. Light rain is falling and crowds leaving the trains at the Union station here carry umbrellas and rain coats. A cold wind is blowing from the lake. Lots of people boarding other trains. Going home to celebrate the New Year.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—We visit a lot of stores and talk to the clerk's and proprietors. They tell us business is better than last year. Some stocks all sold out. But we notice that a lot of Christmas goods are still on the unsold counters. Clerks are busy taking inventory and marking down goods which go on sale for the January sale days. Dressed chickens sell for 20 cents to 30 cents a pound. We tell merchants that in north Nebraska farmers had to sell off their chickens at 6 and 7 cents a pound because they had no money to buy feed for their poultry. Merchants here can't believe our stories of the feed situation.

Heavy rain followed the fog here. There are a dozen hospitals in the neighborhood where we are staying. Every one is filling with pneumonia and influenza patients. Nurses from hospitals say the flu epidemic here is serious. Doctors are hopeful for cold, clear weather to wipe out the influenza germs. One report is that there are more than 10,000 cases of flu here and that the death rate has increased. Warnings are given out how to prevent the flu.

Lots of beggars on the streets of this big city. One young man about 15 years old asks for money; says he can get food but money is hard to get. Merchants say the beggars are about as numerous here as during the days before government relief. Scores of WPA

Players! Learn With The American Boy

Boys and young men who want to improve their crawl stroke, their basket shooting, their hurdling, their tennis backhand, or their ball carrying, can enlist the aid of the nation's foremost coaches and players by subscribing to THE AMERICAN BOY magazine and following the sports interviews and fiction stories that appear each month.

For the coming year staff writers have gone to two of the greatest football teams in the country—Minnesota and Southern Methodist—for first hand tips on strategy, blocking, ball carrying, passing, and the fine points of line play. They have written the story of Bobbie Wilson, All-American half-back.

They have interviewed famous track coaches like Bernie Moore and Bob Simpson. Have gone to the University of Oklahoma to learn how college champions wrestle, to Notre Dame for the story of the building of a great basketball team. They have sought out famous baseball players, swimmers, tennis champions and All-American backs, to get their story of how to play the game.

AMERICAN BOY fiction is jammed with instructive background details telling how to play a better game. And the rest of the magazine is jammed with adventure, exploration, vocational help and articles vital to boys.

Ohio State University's track head, coach of the famous sprinter and low hurdler, Jesse Owens, and himself a former hurdling star, first learned to hurdle from articles in THE AMERICAN BOY. "I used to cut out hurdling pictures and duplicate them in front of a mirror. Then on the track I'd follow that form."

Today thousands of future champions are just as eagerly following THE AMERICAN BOY. Send your subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. Enclose with your name and address $1 for a year's subscription, $2 for three years, and add 50 cents if you want the subscription to go to a foreign address. On newsstands, 10 cents a copy.

workers huddle under shelters in Lincoln park. People here from Nebraska hope the rain will reach drouth stricken Nebraska.

Lots of sales managers are in town. They are talking with representatives of advertising agencies for the 1937 selling programs. They look for better business and big advertising programs to mold public opinion. Traveling men at home for the holidays can look for some pretty stiff programs from their sales managers.

Dec. 31.—It's New Year's eve in Chicago. Looks like the entire town has moved to the Loop district. It costs about twelve dollars just to get into some of the more pretentious cafes where there is a floor show. Cost $5.00 to $7.50 just to sit in a pretty vile smelling place with a jaz band and a crowd of hundreds of celebrants. Midnight brings darkness into these places and the band plays "Auld Lang" and everybody wishes everybody else a Happy New Year. Talked to several hotel and cafe men. They say the New Year's eve business beat last year. They admit that Champagne flowed more freely but most people here are on a spending spree and apparently do not feel so depressed as they did a year ago. One proprietor says, "They are not drinking to drown their troubles—but are drinking and celebrating like old times." Chicago people don't seem surprised at the wild spending here but coming from drouth stricken Nebraska at a time like this makes one feel that maybe the Third district has missed something. We know that if we had raised only half a crop things would be better at home. Young people seem the biggest spenders. One young man with a party of six pays the waiter $40.00 for his dinner and tips the waiter $5.00. No depression in Chicago on New Year's eve. But we can't forget that back home there are farmers who live on $2.50 a week—money which their rapidly thinning milk cows bring them.

Jan. 1, 1937.—It's New Year's day in Chicago. The town is very quiet. Morning newspapers print black faced type stories telling celebrants what to do to allay the headache from the mistakes of the night before.

Jan. 3.—We boarded the B. and O. for Washington yesterday and "got here all right" this morning. The third congressional office force is complete. The office has been moved from the old House building to 1017 new House office building. Letters can reach the office by merely sending them to Room 1017 House Office Building. The service has been complete as the office here has been open for the past month and the district has been in constant touch with the capitol. Ray Nedrow, the secretary, is on the job. He spent a few days with his folks at Fairmont, Nebr., and then came directly to Washington. Ethel Smerah of Fremont, Nebr., is added to the staff as stenographer and Ramona Stewart of Norfolk, will be temporary stenographer. Congress opens for business at noon on Jan. 5. Lot of committee meetings being attended before that hour. But the grind of legislation has started and we hope that "everything will be all right."

Ed Gunn has been laid up with the flu all week.

Mrs. J. H. McPharlin is confined to her home suffering an attack of the flu.

Archie Bowen has been confined to his home all week with a severe attack of the flu.

The O'Neill Woman's Club meeting which was to have been held Wednesday afternoon was called off indefinitely on account of the storm.

Supervisor John Sullivan has been missing from his usual haunts all week. Reason, John is confined at home with an attack of the flu.

Lloyd Gillespie is among the few lucky dogs to have an Eskimo outfit to crawl into when the Arctic Circle expands into this territory. In coon skin cap and brown fur coat he got out and hurled defiance at '37's introductory storm, so to speak.

Paul Mintken, an employee of the Interstate Power company, received word Wednesday morning of the death of his stepfather at Hooper early that morning. Mr. Mintken at once started for Hooper to attend the funeral but was forced to turn back when he reached the vicinity of Page on account of the drifted roads.

Henry Moberg, general superintendent of construction of the court house, was taken to his home in Omaha Wednesday of last week. Mr. Moberg had been ill for a few days and deemed it better to get home where he could receive medical attention in home surroundings. He is expected to return the first of next week prepared to stay until the job is finished.

Mrs. Stuart Meech left last Monday for her home in Chicago, after a three weeks visit here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. O'Donnell and with other relatives and friends here. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Grace O'Donnell, who will resume her studies in the Chicago university after having spent the holidays visiting at the home of her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cronin and daughter, Marjorie Joan and son, Richard Dwight, returned Sunday night from Nebraska City where they had spent the holidays with relatives and friends. It rained hard in Nebraska City on New Year's morning, over half an inch falling, and later on in the evening another shower fell. Very little snow visited that section of the state and roads north and south of there were open as usual. They have had a good deal of moisture in that section of the state during the past three months and people are very confident of having a bounteous crop the coming year.

The various county officials are busy on their annual reports which will be made to the county board after their reorganization for the ensuing year, on Tuesday, Jan. 12.

Lewis Cambre left Tuesday afternoon for Simpson College near Des Moines, Iowa, where he will renew his college work after a two weeks vacation with the home folks.

An interesting discovery was made as a result of Friday and Saturday's blizzard. Humanity can survive without the daily receipt of mail and the big city papers.

C. J. Barnum, undertaker and furniture dealer of Neligh, was in the city Wednesday night, being stalled here with his hearse, on account of the blockade of the highway east of town.

Murder of Famous Chief Resulted in Many Deaths

One of the most inexcusable murders in the history of our contact with the Red race, cites a writer in the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer, was the killing of the famous Chief-tain Cornstalk. Having gone to the American camp at Point Pleasant in West Virginia on a friendly visit to bring about peace between the two races, he was held prisoner by the officers. While thus detained, a prowling Indian in the vicinity killed a white man. The soldiers, hearing this, rushed upon Cornstalk—also his son Munnipico and Black Hawks, who were imprisoned there—and in revenge cruelly murdered them. This destroyed the only hope of reconciliation and peace between the white settlers south of the Ohio river and the Indian tribes north of it. Occurring in 1777, this was followed by a succession of wars, forays, and murders down to the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794, during which many thousands of white men, women and children, and many thousands of the Red race perished at each other's hands, all of which might have been averted by peace had not the beloved Cornstalk been murdered.

Famous Russian Library The famous and magnificent state library at Leningrad which was founded in 1814 and early became one of the great treasure houses of the world has not lost much of its magnificence and value since the revolution. It still contains most of the valuable collections for which it was noted, including Voltaire's library, which was bought intact by Catherine II, many of the most celebrated copies of the Bible and the Koran, rare Hebrew manuscripts of the Pentateuch and the famous Codex Sinaiticus, which next to the one in the Vatican, is the oldest Greek manuscript in existence of the New Testament, having been found in an ancient monastery on Mount Sinai.

Height of Hemlock Trees The hemlock commonly attains a height of about 75 feet and a trunk diameter of 2 to 3 feet. Very old trees in good soil may reach up 100 feet and attain a diameter of 5 to 6 feet. The hemlock is a sturdy tree. It is valuable for lumber and an important source of wood pulp. The bark is extensively used in tanneries.
