Saint Patrick's Day was fittingly celebrated by a large delegation who year after year on the feast of the apostle of Ireland, return to the Steskal home to honor the Patron Saint, and in connection celebrate Mrs. Ed Steskal's birthday which falls on March 17, also birthdays of two others that are family related. Each year the annual banquet is held with all the immediate friends invited. This year we missed a few familiar faces.

There have always been Irish exiles perhaps because the Irish have felt keenly the fact that all human beings are in truth exiles in this world. There never can be for them on this earth a lasting habitation. The mode of life in this day and age, so hurried, so busy, so external, that the expressions of the Irish spirit such as music, poetry and humor have been sadly neglected.

Dennis Murphy in his toast to Ireland said the history of the Irish people was one of belief and actions based on principles that might well be followed by other nationalities of the world, a clear insight of vindication of Robert Emmet that any nationality would be proud of.

A committee consisting of Mrs. James Earley, Muriel Murphy, Mrs. Walnofer and Mrs. Klingler served lunch that was par excellence. After the lunch Robert Earley sang "The Hat Me Father Wore," that created quite a commotion. When the young people settled down to the card tables to battle for the prize, the older set acted and reacted on the court procedures they had attended during the week in the new court house. This concluded the night's session and we all felt well repaid for turning out for the occasion. All extending our hospitality to the hostess.

Ignatius D. Hytrek and Miss Mary Schmaderer, both of Stuart, were granted a marriage license in county court last Friday.
