Speaking of paying farmers for not producing—after noting some of their work we are of the opinion it might be all right for Uncle Sam to pay these PWA artists for the pictures they don't paint.

It's a good thing we have ocean steamers instead of the old fashioned clippers. If we had to depend on the latter just think what the sails tax would be.

Now is the time of year when the old folks begin to regret the fact that they bought Junior a live rabbit for Easter.

The old fashioned man who used to pray each day for his daily bread now wants it delivered sliced and wrapped in cellophane.

The reason they increase the horse power of automobiles engines each year is because it is necessary to pull against taxes as well as gravity.

One of the shortcomings of old age is that it is lot easier to act young than it is to look that way.

Women's skirts are getting shorter but that doesn't mean they will be any cheaper.

While coming to town last Friday morning on highway 20 east of here, Dr. H. L. Bennet found a live beaver on the highway and loaded it into the rear of his car, bringing it to town. Quite a crowd gathered on south Fourth street to look at the animal. The highway at a point five miles east is nearly three miles from the river, which is a fair distance for a beaver to be away from home. There is so little water in the river he might have been looking for a new place to build.

Joe Mann left last Monday afternoon for a vacation trip to the west coast. He went to Sioux City Monday afternoon and will go from there to Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash., where he will visit for a few days and then go south along the coast and visit relatives and friends in southern California. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Omaha, and Lyle Smith, of Los Angeles, Calif., drove up from Omaha last Saturday for a short visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mellor. Lyle Smith had not been in O'Neill since the family left here about twenty-five years ago and he put in a pleasant day visiting the friends of his boyhood who are still residents of the "old home town." While here Frank Smith purchased a new Ford V8 from the Mellor Motor Company and drove it back to Omaha.

The Western Union Telegraph company announced a reduction in their rates for overnight telegraph service, which will be effective on June 1. The reduction is effective only on night messages. A representative of the company handed this office a so-called "news story" which is purely advertising in the hope that we would be chumps enough to run it free and give them the benefit of this advertising. Western Union has always been a "sponger" of newspaper space but they do not find us falling for it.

Owen McPharlin came up from Omaha last Thursday night for a short visit with his mother, Mrs. J. H. McPharlin. He was accompanied from Omaha by his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. H. McPharlin and son, James and daughter, Ann,
