

Over the County

SOUTHWEST BREEZES

By Romaine Saunders

George Holcomb of Amelia was over this way Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Young attended the funeral of Arthur Johnson at Stuart last week.

George Schrecker of Albion, was looking after his interests in this community a day last week.

The elderly codgers are realizing more and more that old age assistance was quite largely campaign subterfuge to get their votes.

If what I read is reliable, the most popular feature of the animal exhibits at the state fair last week was several girls in the nude.

To all appearances the demise of the fair at the county seat is permanent, but we believe Mayor Kersbrook would make a go of it.

Union labor agitators have taken care of themselves by increasing their salaries nearly 70 per cent and assessing the men on the jobs another dollar.

Mowers will be running in the southwest for at least another week. The few corn fields found here and there are still green and will produce 20 bushels per acre.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dexter were Sunday guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Ray Bly, as were also Mr. and Lawrence Westover of Ballagh. Little Dwayne Bly is staying with his grandparents, the Dexters, for the school year.

With not a load yet brought in from the field to be tossed into the crib, white-collar farmers whose knowledge of agriculture is limited to consulting departmental reports, are telling us there is a 1937 corn crop of two and a half billion bushels. A lot of Nebraska farmers will wonder where it is to come from.

Mr. and Mrs. Bly went to Ballagh Saturday to attend a shower given in honor of Mrs. Bly's cousin, Helen Rouse, who recently became the bride of Glenn Ballagh. The affair was held at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ballagh.

Those attending the fair at Chambers from this neighborhood are agreed that it was the best they had ever attended there, splendid exhibits notwithstanding the unfavorable season and the entertainment features equal to much more pretentious show places.

It is said a business man in a Holt county town would have a heart attack if he spent a ten with the printer lost around a hundred to a transient gambling device. It is regrettable that occasions of wholesome amusement and educational exhibits are so often the point of focus for skin games and other follies of the immoral raff. But even these are servicable in showing the astute citizen that he doesn't know it all.

It must make the old Dead Eye Dick gun totters of the northwest snort with disgust to read of an 18-year-old upstart from Tennessee holding up a restaurant at Crawford, locking the proprietor in a refrigerator, taking a gun away from an officer, locking a railroad man in a shed and stealing an automobile or two. The breed of the Jim Dahlman's, Billy the Bear and Rattlesnake Pete has evidently perished in that section. Under the guise of civilization the old west is fast taking on the characteristics of the shameless tenderfoot.

Hybrid Corn

The process of producing hybrid corn is somewhat of a mystery to most of us, but a group of Randolph farmers saw how it was done by a trip last week to Iowa fields in the Coon Rapids vicinity.

Jake Backer, Anton Topf and T. J. Mahoney of Randolph and Ed Rethwisch of near Sholes visited the plant of the pioneer Hi-Bred seed corn plant at Coon Rapids and visited many corn fields in that vicinity and observed how hybrid seed corn is produced. These men will try and interest Randolph farmers in producing this high yielding corn. They saw fields estimated to yield up to 85 bushels per acre.

Farmers who have tried the new variety here have had splendid results.—Randolph Times-Enterprise.
