Across The Kitchen Table with Blanche Pease

Oh, Mama, here's that woman again! Thank you! I do want to come in. If I'm a little late it's because there is so much for a farm woman to do these days. The cows have gone down on their milk and we don't get as much cream as we would like. I'm going to pack some butter before long. I make a salt brine strong enough to hold up an egg. I churn the cream as usual, but take special pains to wash and mix the butter well. Salt it just as you always do. Form into pats and immerse in the salt brine. Weight the butter down so that it is kept under the salt brine. It will not absorb the salt from the brine, and will keep sweet and edible for weeks.

You have already purchased your Thanksgiving turkey? I think that is an excellent idea. If you "finish" the turkey yourself, you will be sure that there are fatty particles just under the skin which will assure you of a juicy roasted fowl. When you buy a live turkey however you must remember that part of it will dress away. Allow a pound of live turkey for each person to be served. A dressed turkey accordingly will serve more, a fifteen pound dressed turkey serving from twenty to twenty-five people.

There are stuffings and stuffings of various kinds and for the different kinds of poultry used on Thanksgiving day. Perhaps your family insists on oyster stuffing and maybe your neighbor votes for a fruit stuffing, or an old fashioned bread stuffing. You may want to try these.

Oyster Stuffing
 Suitable for turkey or capon. Melt 1/2 cup butter and add to 1 1/2 cups dried bread crumbs, and 1 1/2 cups cracker crumbs. Wash and add 1 pint oysters, remove the tough muscles. Add 2 teaspoons salt, pepper, and 1/4 teaspoon mace or nutmeg and 1/4 cup oyster liquor. Leave plenty of room for the stuffing to fruit.

Fruit Stuffing
 This is delicious for duck. Cover 6 dried apricots which have been diced and 6 dried prunes with hot water and simmer until plump. Cool, drain and dice them. Remove the sections from 2 oranges and chop. Mix fruits and add 14 whole pecan meats which have been coarsely chopped. Add 4 cups soft bread crumbs, and mix lightly. Add 1 lightly beaten egg.

Goose Dressing
 If you selected a goose, here is a stuffing intended especially for this fowl. Mix the ingredients in the order listed. 4 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 cup unsweetened cooked diced prunes, 2 apples grated, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sage, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1/2 teaspoon summer savory, 1/2 teaspoon thyme, 1/2 teaspoon sweet majoram, one-third cup melted butter, and 1 cup boiling water. Pack loosely in fowl.

Plain Bread Stuffing
 Soak 2 quarts of stale but not hard bread in cold water or milk. Squeeze quite dry. Melt 1/4 cup butter in a frying pan, add the bread and stir until well mixed and the bread is slightly browned. Place in a mixing bowl and add 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon ground sage, 1/4 teaspoon pepper and 1 egg. For a variation I like to add a chopped onion, which has been slightly cooked in butter before adding to the bread. You might like to add a sliced apple, or a cup of soaked prunes. If fruit is added, add 1 tablespoon sugar.

Walnut Poultry Dressing
 Cook the giblets from one chicken, duck or turkey in boiling water until tender. Then chop giblets fine. Remove crusts from 1 large loaf stale bread and crumb the bread fine. Mix the giblets and crumbs with 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sage, 2 cups walnut kernels and 4 tablespoons fat. Stuff the fowl with walnut dressing and baste with the water in which the giblets were cooked.

Thanksgiving is a time when families get together. I don't believe that we serve as much, or eat as largely as our forefathers. Time was when tables fairly groaned with food. Mother put on her great linen tablecloth which had been a wedding present. At each end of the table she set a glass dish of pickles, dill or sweet kind, and the table was dotted with small fancy dishes of relishes, beet pickles, jelly and preserves. Celery was in long shallow containers while mashed potatoes were piled high in bowls. The turkey which usually graced the table was of enormous proportions. (Nowadays turkeys are smaller, because the demand is for a smaller bird.) Pie and cake and perhaps some other dessert was served, and folks felt offended if vegetables were not many and varied. That day is past. We eat more sensibly and it doesn't take us a couple of days to recover from a heavy holiday dinner.
