With December 18 as the date for the referendum on whether Holt county shall be recognized as a Soil Conservation District, mail balloting is already under

The mail ballots may be secured from now until December 18 at the following places in the county:
First National Bank, O'Neill
National Bank, O'Neill Farm Loan
Association, O'Neill Production
Credit Association, O'Neill; Atkinson, First National Bank; Page, Cooperative Credit Assn.; Inman, Postoffice; Dorsey, Postoffice; Ewing, Farmers' State Bank; Star, Postoffice; Chambers, Chambers State Bank; Emmet, Emmet State Bank; Dustin, Postoffice; Stuart, First National Bank; Amelia, Postoffice.

Polling places will be open from 3:00 to 7:00 p. m., Saturday, December 18, at: Stuart, American Legion Hall; Atkinson, Memorial Hall; O'Neill, Court House Assembly Room; Page, City Hall. Only owners of land in Holt county can vote and a threefourths majority is necessary for the proposal to carry. Decision to hold this referendum was reached by the State Soil Conservation Committee, composed of Dean W. W. Burr of the Agricultural College, Director W. H. Brokaw, of the Extension Service and Dr. G. E. Condra, Directer of the Conservaton and Survey of the Conservaton and Survey division of the University of Nebrraska, after public hearings were held in Atkinson and O'Neill about a month ago. Sentiment at these hearings, which were called as a result of 116 landowners signing a petition, was practically unanimous for creation of
