Ban On Gift Of Hams Is Lifted

The ban on gifts of hams, jel-lies, preserves and other rationed foods was lifted today by the OPA and a further effort made to make rationing fit the practical needs of American families.

This action means such gifts will be permitted this Christmas, the first under war-time ration-Fairview-Wyoming-Harold L ing of many important foodstuffs, and will assist charitable organizations in carrying out their tra-ditional gift-giving at this season. In addition shoes may be given away point-free beginning today. Henceforth housewives may give rationed foods bought with their own ration stamps to other consumers or to charitable organiza-tions. Charitable organizations receiving these rationed foods from individuals may distribute them to needy families without collecting ration stamps. In announcing the change, Dis-trict OPA Director M. E. Raw-ling said: "There were some per-fectly good reasons for the old rule against giving rationed goods without collecting stamps, but they were outweighed by the ar-guments for making this rationing program just as simple and practical as possible for Ameri-can families. Under the new plan we're free to do as we please with the food we buy with our ration ooks.

Rawlings said that while the hange becomes effective with the Christmas season, it will continue in effect indefinitely.

The gift provision does not apply in any way to dealtrs, jobbers, nanufacturers or other commercial food handlers.

SUNDAY IS FUNDAY with the Big Sunday Magazine

You can keep going all day in the big Sun-day Magazine. Do you play Crossword Puzzles? Well there's a superdooper puzzle to try your wits. Do you play bridge, or want to learn? Culbertson tells you the intricate how. Do you write poems, or think you could? Then spend some time in the Poet's Corner, strictly for amateurs.

And never, never miss "Letters Home" from the boys at the fighting front. Here's the war in intimate detail, first hand, and all the facts that will pass the censor.

Big Sections

Eighty-six per cent of the people who open the Sunday Magazine read "Letters Home," so they must be good. A lot of folks read the Book Reviews and more read "Ne-braska Scene," a collection of homespun opinions on current events from prominent Nebraskans, compiled by John Bentley.

The Magazine is a panoramic review, one of six big feature sections in a big Sunday newspaper. It carries short stories by such writers as Mark Hellinger, articles by na-tionally recognized authorities like Constantine Brown, columns by Walter Winchell and Damon Runyon, and state fea-tures by Carlyle Hodgkin and other well known local writers.

Make this next Sunday your fun day and get the big Sunday Magazine in the big Sunday World-Herald, six sections, for only 10 cents.
