TO FRONTIER READERS AND VOTERS OF THIS DISTRICT

The editor of The Frontier is a candidate for the nomination for member of the legislature from this, the 28th District and his name will appear on the nomination ballot as a candidate for that office. We have been unable to make an active campaign for the nomination on account of lack of help in The Frontier office. For the past seven weeks we have been doing the work in the office alone and if you think that is a picnic, ask some one who has tried to get out a newspaper all by himself. But we still carry on and hope to have competent help before long. Although we have been unable to contact the voters personally we want to assure them that we will appreciate their support at the polls at the primary election. The coming session promises to be one of the most important in the history of the state and we believe that our experience in the legislature enables to give the people of the district good service in the senate.

During our previous service in the legislature we were free and independent and advocated and supported those measures that we believed would be beneficial to the people of the state, irrespective of their political origin. We believe in a rigid economy in conducting the affairs of state. If you believe I have the ability to give you good representation at Lincoln next winter at Lincoln I will appreciate your support.

In Father's Footsteps

Across the yard to help feed squealing pigs. Small footprints swallowed up by big ones. Pocket-size farmer, he picks up golden ears of corn while Dad feeds fattening steers; he tries to carry milk pails almost as big as himself while Dad milks cows. Across the years small footprints gradually fill big ones. An American farmer's son grows up "with livestock in his blood."

Lucky for America that there are many such men with sons who follow in their footsteps. Lucky for America at war that farmers in 1943 made sensational new records in producing livestock and other food. Meat, for example, is fighting food in the diet of our fighting men. Meat gives needed proteins and vitamins to war workers on the home front. And meat will be needed by the armies of workers who will reshape and rebuild this war-battered world.
