ilians was issued this week by M. E. Rawlings, District OPA Director. The figure usually given was six hundred and fifty million pounds, and the public was given to understand that it represented a vast surplus piled up because people did not have the stament said.
The facts, according to Rawlings, are that about 380 million pounds—well over half—of the meat now in storage in this country is recently slaughtered pork. When the amounts being held for the government contract are deducted, that figure is entirely normal for this time of year.
The mount of beef now in storage is rather unusual, but the beef in storage today is largely there to take care of future needs of the military, the OPA stated.
Total civilian meat supplies in 1944 have been estimated at about 17 billion pounds. The total meat storage holdings today are only a little more than half a billion pounds, or he equivalent of two week's supply for civilians.
"When you consider that meat holdings at this time of year are always higher, because of seasonal variations in slaughter, and that this year much of the meat stored is held for government contracts, you get an entirely different picture—and it isn't one of excessive supply," Rawlings said.
Meat rationing was started one year ago to assure all of us our equitable share. Today our supplies are not enough to take care of uncontrolled demand, but with our present ration rate there will be about 132 pounds this year for each of us. That's more than we had last year and no one really suffered in 1943, but as our fighting strength increases, the armed forces will need more meat," Rawlings added.
Expiration dates for food rationing stamps are out for the duration, according to an announcement by M. E. Rawlings, District OPA Director. That means that your red and blue stamps in Book IV will be good indefinitely. This does not apply to stamps which have already expired.
There is no change in the validity date, however. Three red stamps worth thirty points become valid every second Sunday, and five blue stamps worth fifty points become valid the first of every month.
This change is in line with similar changes in other rationing programs. The expiration date on shoe stamps was removed last September. Sugar stamp expiration dates were removed a few weeks ago. Ration tickets are also good indefinitely.

A recent national poll reported that the number of victory gardens this year would total about 19,600,000, a drop of 400,000 from the number planted in 1943. Your government has set a goal for 1944 of 22 million gardens to obtain an estimated 10 million tons of garden vegetables for home consumption as fresh and canned vegetables, over and above the anticipated commercial production.
Increased requirements for processed fruits and vegetables for our armed forces and allies make it of vital importance that every American plant a victory garden if possible.
Food is a decisive weapon in this war and an adequate supply for ourselves and our allies will bring Victory sooner. Plant a Victory Garden in 1944.

CONSERVE
One of the best ways to conserve food is to utilize those foods which are relatively abundant. Eggs are now in abundant supply. They are high in protein and other food values. The average adult requires 500 grams of protein a week, according to the recommended dietary allowance determined by the National Research Council. The weekly allowance of meat under the rationing system is about 2½ pounds per person, which supplies an estimated 200 grams of protein. One egg a day will add about 50 grams of protein each week to the average adult requirements.
By increasing the consumption of eggs, Americans can not only assure their own good health but assure a supply of eggs for next winter by enabling farmers to keep their laying flocks on the farm.

SHARE
All frozen fruits and vegetables amounting to about six per cent of all rationed processed foods, are now ration free. This bonus to the family larder was made by OPA at the request of the War Food Administration to release cold storage space for meats, dairy and from 1944 production. Canned poultry products and other foods peas and fig plum jams also were reduced to a zero value in the April ration list. Other than the above changes, housewives will find most point values for processed foods unchanged. Canned fruits will continue at current levels and most canned vegetables will remain at bargain point values.
