DO THEY REALLY?

Blackie Knew Her Job

My black and white alley cat had kittens last week. From past experience I knew better than to try to move one of them—for the last time I did that she meowed all over the house till she found them and then proceeded to carry each one back to the place of its birth.
 The natural instinct of motherhood is developed rather highly in Blackie. She seems to take a positive pride in caring for her kittens, and shows signs of pleasure when a stranger looks them over. She knows that the school of life is a hard one—especially for alley cats, and she does her best to cuff what knowledge she has of it into her kittens.
 Blackie's best friend is my mother. The reason for this is obvious. My mother has a large family and she appreciates the difficulty of feeding and raising one. I have often spoken to her about it, and she always remarked that while it was difficult, it has its compensations.
 All parents have a natural instinct to nurture and protect their young. They have also the right to do so. When I tried to

GOOD PLANS—BUT
 Various tax plans have been proposed in an effort to establish a Federal taxing system which would insure adequate governmental revenue and at the same time encourage the productivity of industries and individuals.
 All of these plans have a common characteristic. They have been evolved by the best brains in the country and are constructive efforts to bring the monstrous problem of Federal taxation under control before it destroys the very freedom for which American men are fighting in every corner of the world. But—and there is a very large but—no plan will work unless the politicians and the people sincerely wish it to work. The old battle of class taxation, with group pitted against group, each seeking to unload taxes onto the other fellow, if continued, will block any sane tax plan.
 Dr. George Stevens, of Sioux Falls, S. D., spent the week-end here visiting old time frinds.
 Leo Mullen returned Monday from Omaha, where he had spent the past week visiting relatives and friends.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought in 25 years ago as night is from day."
 "Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflaging equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, paratroop equipment and dozens of other things."
 "Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out... ready and eager to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have been of much help."
