TO NOMINATE CANDIDATES FOR STATE OFFICERS.

The Republican electors of the State of Nebraska are hereby called to send delegates from the several counties to meet in State Convention at Fremont on Tuesday, the 23d day of May 1876, for the purpose of electing six delegates to the Republican National Convention to be held at Cincinnati on the 16th day of June next, to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, and to transact such other business as may properly come before it.

STATE APPOINTMENT.

While many of our western contemporaries have exercised their powers, not a little in criticizing the action of the State Con. Con., the CHIEF has thus far withheld comment. Our word conclude from the tone of the Hastings Journal, that its editor had been badly misled and that the rights of the west had been wholly ignored. We do not believe that a personal attack against the Journal was intended, neither do we think if Adams county should elect the editor of the Journal to represent her in the Fremont convention, that Western Nebraska would tip up when the injured critique of the Hastings Journal should pass into the eastern portion of the state. Webster county is satisfied with her appointment of two delegates. It strikes us that Adams county, with 4, ought not to raise an unworthy yell, when Johnson and Seward with 3, Jefferson and Seward with 4, Nemaha, Otoe and Saline with 5 and Richardson accept the action of the committee as just and equitable. A proportionate cutting down of the delegates is all that a fair minded person could expect, and in figuring up the apportionment, we find that the west will have one delegate for each 191 Rep. voters, while the east will have but one delegate for each 290 Rep. voters. It seems that the yielding ought to come from the eastern part of the State. We are glad to see the Columbus Journal, the Fairbury Gazette and other western papers coming to the front and retracting their former hasty and ill-considered opinions and acquiescing in the action of the Central Committee, with becoming grace. Surely there ought to be no inimical feeling between the west and east and we cannot believe there is. A few ambitious schemers of the west are desirous of drawing sectional lines, that they may champion the cause of western interests and through this stroke of policy hoist themselves into the public crib. Had it not been for help from Eastern Nebraska the West 4-d-y would not have representatives in the Governor, Atty's General, and State Treasurer. Draw the lines closely, commence an open hostility against Adams and more populous portions of the State and you at once invite both their disgust and opposition. The CHIEF is and always has been an ardent supporter of western interests, but it is the last paper in the State to speak up for the neighbors, or to assault upon their neighbors, or to cry wolf, wolf, when to behold, there is no wolf.

The following letter was received from Prof. Aughey, State Geologist, and its contents deemed to be of such general interest as to justify publication:

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA, DEPT. OF NATURAL SCIENCES, LINCOLN, Neb., March 29, 76.

JAS. S. GILHAM Esq., Dear Sir: Yesterday the CHIEF with your letter came to hand. I was exceedingly interested in your lecture, and most of your positions I can subscribe to. There are two points on which I would slightly differ, but I am very glad that you delivered this address, as it must do good in stimulating thought, and putting agriculturalists on the right track for helping themselves.

and cover them with earth in November. Do not put manure on them.

In planting gooseberries, raspberries, blackberries and currants, cut them back close to the ground. They cannot safely be planted as fruit trees. When two or three feet high, plant raspberries and blackberries to make them stocky. Currants must have cool and moist soil; mulching insures this. Do not think most of the expense is ended when the trees are planted; you have just begun. Do not put manure into the holes; use best loam. Do not let anything grow within five or six feet of tree, or plant to shade the ground. Do not water evergreens or any other trees in summer—save moisture by mulching when the ground is moist. If mulching is neglected and watering is necessary, thoroughly saturate the ground to the depth of ten inches, then mulch at once.

DIRECTIONS FOR TREE PLANTING.

If possible, select high, rolling ground. North slopes better than south. Trees ripen better and less danger from spring frosts in blooming season. Plant eight or ten rows of windbreak on south and west sides—two tree rows on the north and east. Wildow, box-elder and ash are better than cottonwood for this purpose. Leave thirty to forty feet between windbreak and orchard, to avoid shooting. If work enough is done, trees do as well next year after the breaking as later. Lay off lands twenty to twenty-four feet wide; plow with two teams, one behind the other in the same furrow, when dead furrow is reached plow backward in dead furrow, having a man to ride the plow, until the ground is loosened eighteen inches in depth. Stir dead furrow with four horses and a subsoiler. If this can be done in the fall leave until spring.
