PRESIDENT HAYES was peaceably inaugurated last Monday, March 5th. The following brief notes of the insu guration ceremonies we condense from the Omaha Daily Republic in :

There were also present. County Surveyor the vice-president elect and commissioners of the District of Columbia The party adjourned to the blue parlor and passed some time in conversation. In the meantime the grand inaugural pageant that had gathered at Washington in a circ'e in the west end of the city, about a mile from the white house, started with their flying banners and bands of music. Lieut. Colonel Grant, in field uniform, and Col. Amos Webster, of the militia of the District, special aides to the president in the grand parade, reported at the executive mansion. As soon as the new Chief Magistrate had reached the White House an immense crowd rian troops to evacuate the Servian congregated on the portico, hoping there would be a general reception In this they were disappointed, though many were admitted during the afternoon and paid respects to President Hayes. The green parlor was the scene of great animation after the party returned. It was profusely decora ted with flowers, and the new president received therein the first welcome to his home.
