We have several thousand of those to any one who wants them.

-From our eastern paper we learn of the deaths of Rev. O. R. Wilson and his wife, of Surry, Me., which occurred over a month since. Rev. Wilson, with his family, came to Nebraska in the spring of 1873 and settled at Overton, in Dawson county. He with his brother, William, also a Methodist minister, were the pioneer preachers in Western Nebraska: both on the Platte and upper Repub lican rivers. But Rev. Otis became somewhat discouraged after having been here a year, and he returned to Maine. They have many friends in Maine and Nebrasks, and after living together for many years, in death thoy are not divided.

-The Red Cloud Select and Nor mal School is flourishing almost beyoud what we dared to hope. Started amid obstacles, which hindered on public favor and every week brings new students. The people of the town should feel interested in the progrees of this school, as it has already been a benefit to them in some way: especially those who trade or take boarders. We are confident that the school would be larger to day than it is, if it had larger and more commodious rooms, and there were greater opportunities for boarding.

-It is rather late to mention our new officers, but it is "better late than never." they say. J. A. Tulleys succeeds himself at the clerk's deak. and E. H. Jones stands beside him at his old place ready to take in the ceeds Judge Tulleys in the administration of justice. J. D. The accurate and full knowledge the distribution of rain over our state is of great importance to the agricul tural interests of the people and to plysical mience. No general system of observation is in operation whereby the people, especially the farmers. can learn how much rain has faller during the season, or how this fall compares with that of past seasons This knowledge is not only of scientific importance, but of high practical value, since the amount of rainfall, and its distribution, each season necessarrly influences the condition of the crops. A full system of reports wil soon enable the people to decide a number of practical questions which climate. In order to apply this deficiency it is proposed to establish a Meteorological Congress," and now in successful operation in Iowa and a number of other states : to be known Service."

It is not intended to invade the field already occupied by the signal service. the aim being to study as carefully as possible the climate of the state. The only instruments absolutely necessary are a rain-guage and scale, which will be furnished at cost. Any other instruments desired will be furnished at cost. The cost of rain-guage and scale will not exceed $1 with gradusted glass cylinder (the most accurate measure) the cost will not exceed $3. All blanks for records will be furnished in duplicate, one set to be retained and the other to be forwarded at the end of the month to Lincoln. Full instructions for recording all phenomstrumental aid will be furnished volunteers. Reports will be furnished to press of the state monthly.

Volunteers are requested from every county in Nebraska. Please forward your names at once. If sufficient encouragement is received work will commence with February 1st, 1878 It is proper to state that this work is Agricultural College of the State University, Lincoln being the central station; and that for my services as director I shall receive no pecuniary consideration. Papers throughout the state are re-Quested to copy. Resp'y yours,
