Mr. Wiggins weighed them and paid them 42 c nts for their wheat, remarking that the boys wanted some spending money He accommodated them

The range from Plum Creek to the South Loup is all burned off Full 500 tons of hay were burned, besides two stables, 12 acres of corn and 12 acres of broom corn. The country north of the South Loup, as well as the Wood River Valley, is all burned off, to the destruction of the ranges and the loss of a great quantities of hay.—North Platte Republican.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

A Man reads Escape.

Twenty Four Hours to the Burnt Prairie

Last Saturday we took a team and started for the scene of the terrible fire in Nuckolls county From our own observation, and the evidence of the Arkansas man, we are enabled to give the following facts concerning the death of a young lady, and the narrow escape from death of a young man.

It appears that on Tuesday afternoon Oct. 15th John Downing and Miss Maria Crozier left Mr Bowers house (six miles south of N Loup to go to Mrs Crozier's home in Webster in T 5 R 9. As they came within about one mile of Lee Mayfield's farm they were surrounded by fire

From appearances it is supposed that the horses became unmanageable and upon the buggy before they got into the fire as the bed of the buggy was partially burned upside down and where it lay the girl was found burnt

On Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock, Mr A Downing with others were passing and discovered the two bodies lying near each other with a quilt over them Mr D turned to leave them to go for assistance, supposing them dead, when Johnny rose on his elbow and said, "for God's sake, don't leave me here to die alone" Mr D then took him up finding his head turned all over, his face swollen very badly, his hands and arms burned to the elbows, and his feet burned to the ankles His coat and vest were gone and his shirt and pants partially turned up The young lady was burned to a crisp, from her shoulders to her feet, and her clothes entirely burned. Her head and hair were not burned and her hat was found about two rods away uninjured

Mr D took Johnny into his wagon and carried him to Mr Mayfield, leaving Miss Crozier's remains on the prairie

Meantime the horses become separated from each other and the forewheels, and one of them went to Mr Schumm's on Liberty Creek, with the collar burning on his neck, the other went to some point near Nelson. The latter being known at that place, and he worst being feared, a party started out, and reached the scene soon after Mr Downing left. They too passed on and getting a suitable conveyance, returned and took up the remains and carried them to the home of her parents' arriving late in the evening of Wednesday. She was buried the next day.

When we saw Johnny it was a sight to appall the most stoical. His face was one mass of burnt flesh, as also his ears and hands. It is thought that possibly one eye will be saved. His hands will probably have to be amputated. His memory was coming to him, he knew very little of the circumstances save that he was in a fire. He heard Mayfield calling his hogs. Wednesday morning but did not dare to move, had he been able, for fear of getting lost.

From appearances he fought manfully against the fire, and worked like a hero to save Miss Crozier's life and did not give up until sightless with one of his hands, he lay down exhausted, to await—he knew not what.

Nuckolls county with a commendable sympathy and public spirit, has hired four men to care for him while he needs help, and from the character of those so hired we know that he will be carefully watched and tended.

Johnny's father is at home, sick with a fever, and has not seen his son since the terrible accident. The afflicted ones of both families have the sympathy of all who know them in this hour of deep trouble
