WIFE AND MOTHER. When she came to me first, a bride. Clothed in whiteness—a lify fair— veiled and blushing and virgin eyed. With sweet bride blossoms about her hair; O, her beautiful, soft, blue eyes Seemed like patches of summer skies Seen in the depth of a smilit stream, Between the lilies that on it gleam!

Up to our home I led the way, Under the low, budding apple-tree boughs; in the paie-red light of the dying day, Breathing anew our marriage vows. Love, "she whispered, "if such sweet bliss Be sin, then death should come after this." Nay" I whispered her back, "for me Love is sufficient; let sweet life be!

So in my home she took her place, Ruling with wise and grave control; All great hopes throve with a wondrous Thanks to her tender and steadfast soul. There, in the light of those fervent eyes (Those heautiful bits of cloudless skies), With me and my loved one-all was well

AN INVISIBLE WOUND.

One of the most celebrated practitioners of Pesth, Dr. K., was called upon one morning to receive at an early hour a visitor in great haste, who, while waiting in the ante-chamber, sent in word by the footman that delay for him was danger. He must be received imme-

The Doctor threw on his dressinggown hastily and had his patient shown a man utterly unknown to him, but who, to judge by his dress and manners, evipale face bore traces of great physical and moral suffering. He carried his right hand in a sling, and in spite of his efforts to restrain himself, from time to time a stiffed sigh escaped him. Seeing the poor man stagger the Doctor invited him to sit down.

> An Important Geological Fact. Geology has shown us that Nature accomplishes her greatest revolut ons in the earth's surface conformation slowly. Every year the river makes its channel deeper, the glacier wears a deeper gorge in the Alpine rock and the ocean tide deposits the sand it has crum-bled from the rocks upon which it breaks. We note the earthquake and the devastating burricane; but these changes are so gradual man seldom observes them uptil the channel has become overhanging coffs, or a mountain has disappeared before the fer stream, or the ocean has given us a Florida. Thus it is in disease. Our attention is attracted by acute diseases, as fevers, cholera, etc., while chronic faceable impression upon the system. Persons believing themselves comparatively healthful are oftlines the victims of these diseases, and only become aware of their presence when relief is aimost impossible. Diseases of the liver and stomuch are the commonest of these cheonic affections. Dr. Pierce's Golden Me ical Discovery and Pleasand Purcative Pollets are never-falling remedies for these diseases.
