THE CHIEF.

M. L. THOMAS, - - - EDITOR.

THURSDAY DEC. 11, 1879.

The two men charged with the killing of Yocum and the burning of the depot at Hastings, Baldwin and Taylor, are in prison awaiting their trial, one at Lincoln and the other at Kearney.

—The South-western Chronicle is the name of a new Democratic paper just started at Nelson Nuckolls Co. by Moore & Macfie. We wish them success but hardly think they will achieve it.

To our inquiry of the U. S. Land Department has decided that Cottonwood and Box Elder will not be accepted on Tree-Claims, the Register of the Bloomington Land Office writes us that, "The decision don't say so," and adds—"I don't think cottonwood ruled out."

—Nebraskan.

An important law-suit making the title to some eighteen thousand acres of land in Thayer and Nuckolls Counties has just been decided in the supreme court in favor of the Denver City Railroad Co. Some of the homesteaders and others in those counties will doubtless loose their houses.

The Secretary of the Interior has decided that the benefits of the timber culture law may be secured by planting cottonwood trees.

This decision reverses former rulings of the Department. Those who have timber claims and have been planting cottonwood thereon can go ahead and "do it some more" without any fears that they will have difficulty in proving up.

An exchange says, "Some men never spend a cent for advertising, either in the newspapers or any other way. In the stores of such men are generally seen old barrel heads, on which are inscribed in chalk or charcoal such devices as these: Flower, Corn Meal, Potatoes, Pork, Cheze, Kalker, Country produce bawt and sold, goods cheep for kash. Tee, Sugar, etc."

We are sorry that there are a few such dead beats in this town, but hope they will soon move out and make room for men with some vim and business enterprise about them.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON D. C. }
Nov. 26th, 1879. }

Some curiously contradictory statements are made touching the reports sent out from here to the effect that Secretary Sherman and the President had agreed to recommend to Congress the gradual but final complete retirement of the legal tender circulation. That the report was allowed to travel several days without contradiction is well known, and there are people who say that it was encouraged if not directly made by persons related to the administration. But suddenly there appears to be a halt in the report and now it is denied. Those who are good at solving riddles assert that the report was put out by the President and Secretary as a feeler to test the public sense, and to ascertain whether such a policy would be sustained. Of course the report was gleefully received by the friends of the National Banks and hard money people, and so far all was satisfactory. But shortly the other side began to be heard from, and it was found that many conservative men deprecate any agitation of financial questions at this time to disturb the even tenor of business affairs. At any rate it proved such an opposition in all parties, that it was concluded best not to push any such question to the front, lest it should cause a dangerous reaction. Friends of the administration deny any such purpose as is attributed to them, and say cautiously that if the report was put out it was in good faith, whatever may have been the truth in this matter the more general opinion now is that no recomendation will be made to Congress on the subject.

I hinted sometime ago at the threatened reaction against General Grant as a Presidential candidate among the stalwarts of the Republican party. It has made its appearance. Several leading Republican papers have been provoked by the apparent love making of the Southern toward the General, to cite examples of his encouraging them to do so. They quote his dispatch to Govener Packard March 1st 1877, in which he said the people would not submit to the use of troops to sustain his government, to his speeches in Europe endorsing the Hayes policy, and to his speeches since arriving home to show that he is not a stalwart, and is ready to strike hands with the men who pushed the Republican party so hard last Winter and Spring in Congress. It is likely that General Grant is undisturbed by all this talk, however for the latest trans-formel opinion related to him is that he will take a hand in the Nicaragua ship canal project, and spurn political honors. As to the scheme to confer honorary fittle upon him and attach to it a big salary, his friends do not favor it, and say he would not accept it.

The political pessimist is apt of the future is mixed up that it is hard to venture an opinion on Presidential probabilities, but it does seem to me that Senator Bayard is profiting by the Tinden, Kelley and Randall—Wallace quarrels, and is taking the lead among the Democratic candidates. Tere is a good deal of time in which to change this view before the conventions are held.

There is a pretty good indication of a long session to be noted, nothing has been done toward getting the work of the appropriation committees at work on the estimates. Usually they lay it out early in Dec. Many wiseacres predict the this condition forebodes a session into midsummer, especially if there is any political debate of consequence as there can hardly be a doubt there will be.

KNOX.

Dec. 11. 1879.

General Ewing is accredited with the remarks that Congress will devote itself chiefly this session to whetting political issues for the campaign of 1880. Although I have tried to get at the truth, touching the matter, I must confess to having made several contradictory predictions, and now it seems to me that General Ewings remarks is pretty nearly correct.

The President makers are at it again, the gathering of members having given them new opportunities. Speaker Randall is the latest Presidential candidate to have a "boom." It is reported that he is really running a hopeful canvas, and trying to "pull off Bayard," to use the common phrase. The other Presidential talk is not new, but there is a good deal of it in consequence of so many people coming together from all parts of the country.

One event I may mention as having some influence on the Republican canvas for President. It is the recommendation in the President's message for retiring the greenbacks. That is well understood to be Secretary Sherman's policy, and he is a well known candidate for President. There can be no mistake that he has by that course alienated some eastern support, while reaching for western favor. The matter is quite freely talked of, and as a political point the general opinion is that he has made a mistake, however right he may be in his theories.

Many eastern Republicans say he cannot get the support away from Blaine and Conkling with which experts to off set his loss of support in the West. It is not likely that Congress will take kindly to the Presidents recommendation, as a very large majority of democrats and many republicans are opposed to it, while many more republicans are averse to any financial legislation at this session. The promptness with which Congress responds to the Presidents recommendations touching the Nicaragua Canal, shows at once the importance of the work. The interests is so great on that subject that I believe Congress will make a handsome appropriation in its aid if it is ever asked.

Members of the administration cannot conceal their chagrin at the conspicuous manner in which the "antes" have been put forward in New York following Mr. Cornell's election as Governor, we have the news that General Arthum is likely to be sent to the Senate here, and that General George A. Shurtz will be made Speaker of the State Assembly. Both are very smart men, and have a reputation much beyond their party.

It seems to be pretty well understood that the appropriation Committees will not have any legislation perfected before the Holidays. The democrats are agreed upon one point, to refuse money to pay troops to be used at the polls, but as to the payment of supervisors and marshalls of election they are devided.

KNOX.

It is reported that the U. P. contemplate the construction of a branch road from Platte centre down the Shell Creek valley and connected with the main line at Schuyler.

A large elk, in a wagon drawn by four horses, passed through Crete on Friday. It was captured in the western part of the State, and was on its way to Lincoln.

At a Dixon county wedding last week, according to The North Nebraska Eagle, too much beer on tap aroused the animosities of the guests, who accordingly, one and all, indulged in a free fight.

The average wealth to each individual in Nebraska is $563.25.
