Success in Farming. To be successful in farming one must always be careful in selecting his seeds, keep his farm well cultivated and free from weeds, keep fences in order, and take good care of tools. He must also, as an exchange says, be one who keeps out of debt, and has a contented mind; sends his children to school, and tales one or more good papers devoted to farm and stock interests. A farmer who never reads is like a machine that is never oiled-it wears. He wears himself out, exhausts his land, and dies poor. One good suggestion found in a caper or book is worth to men more than half a life of trials, when not made intelligently. Don't be afraid to read and acknowledge that you can learn from others. No one knows it all Somebody knows something you don't.
