How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have a watch case to carry a gold watch case, and they know how a watch case is made, and the vast difference in the quality of cases. In a solid gold watch case, the case is made of a large proportion of gold, and is made only to stand and hold the watch movement in place, and is not made to furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case strong and close fitting.

The watch case must combine gold with a metal that will supply the place of the gold if the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the use of the watch case.

The watch case must be made of a material that will stand the wear and tear of the watch case, and will last as long as the watch case.

An Industrious Tramp.

The other day a tramp walked into a Carson yard and asked for a day's work trimming trees, stating the man of the house that an old pair of pants or a square meal would be considered a sufficient equivalent for the job. The man who owned the premises was a philanthropic fellow and fished up an old pair of pants in a few moments, as the same time setting the stranger to work mauling the wood-pile. While thus engaged the children got around him and were dazzled with the pictures of some angels in red and blue and a lot of street-nechers and mormons tattooed on his arms. They soon learned the story of the history of his life. He had been a sailor in the Caribbean, Caspian, and Polar Seas, and after giving a graphic account of his tiger-hunts in India, his wrestles with gorillas in Africa, and his great catch-as-natch-can match, Queensberry rules, with a box-constructor in south America, it is but to add that he commended the entire respect and attention of the audience. When the wood-pile had been sufficiently splintered he announced that the hospitality he had received called for more work, and there seeming to be nothing special in sight he expressed something unusual unless he was shown something new. One of the children asked him if he would put some pictures on her as he had on his arms. He said he could, and in a twinkling produced the necessary paraphernalia. The children were simply delighted, and almost had a riot disputing over the first choice. By 4 o'clock in the evening he had two young boys, aged 4 and 7, and a baby all covered over with pictures of South-American scenery, hearts, sheet-anchors, and Italian sunsets, besides making engagements with twelve of the neighbors' children and enough prospective jobs to last him a week. When last seen he was leaving the premises in front of a shotgun and bulldog.—Carson (See.) Appeal.

Stock Definitions.

What is a bull?
A bull is a person who talks much of the prosperity of the country, the vast mining capacities of the railroad, the big cross on West, and then eats a ten-cent sandwich for dinner.

What is a bear?
A bear is a person who talks much of the depressed condition, too many railroads, and that everything must go to smash. In the evening he occupies a front seat in the crack theater of the town.

What is a broker?
A broker is one who, in consideration of a certain commission, properly sees to it that you "go broke."

What is a put?
A put is an instrument in writing which secures to you the right of putting your money where you will never see it again.

What is a call?
A call is an instrument of torture benevolently issued by a capitalist. The profits you thought you would make generally begin after it has expired. Brokers sometimes accept them as a margin.

What is a margin?
A margin is a sum of money put up on your deal. It has a patent right for always growing smaller, and is retained by marriage to a stop order.

What is a stop order?
A stop order is an electric machine used in bringing you out of the market.—Wall Street News.

At Sing Sing, Professor Gordon, a school principal, severely whipped a boy because he could not sing. The boy then sang, but not the right tune. The angry father of the boy is now trying to make the professor sing in court. A musical authority says there are boys whose nerves cannot stand hearing their own voice in singing, and who cannot be made to sing. It is seldom the case with girls, but with boys is of frequent occurrence.
