Attar of Honor.

"Genuine attar of roses," remarked a New York chemist, "which is made in India and Australia, costs $100 an ounce at the place of distillation. It takes fifty thousand rose blooms to yield an ounce of attar. They are the common roses and grow in great profusion in California, where the distillation of attar could be made a very profitable industry. I have seen hedge rows near Sumner, Ia. that state, so dense with these roses that the odor on a warm, sultry day caused a feeling of peculiar faintness to the passer by.
This is the effect of the attar that is distilled by the heat and the moist air, and is held suspended, as it were, in the atmosphere.
"There is money in that cause of faintness and indolence, but in this country not only the sweetness but the great value of the flowers is wasted on the desert air. In northern India the roses are regularly cultivated. They are all planted in rows in fields, and require no particular care. When they begin to bloom they are picked before midday. This work is done by women and children, who seem to regard it more as a pleasure than a pursuit of labor. The leaves are distilled in twice their weight of water, which is drawn off into open vessels. These are allowed to stand over night, being covered with clothes to keep out dirt and insects. In the morning the water is cooled with a thin, oily film. This is the rare attar of roses. It is skimmed off with a fine feather and dropped into vials. The process continues daily until the bushes cease to bloom. So it may well be imagined that any essence of oil that requires the distilling of fifty thousand roses to fill an ounce vial has a right to have a good price set upon it."--New York Sun.

Our Clothes Our Enemies.
Professor Hamilton, in a late address on hygiene, denounces broadcloth as an enemy to exercise, and therefore to health. He says: "Ameri-
