SENATOR EDWARDS, who arrived from Europe a few days ago, in an interview with a reporter in response to a question about the present condition of trade in England said: "It is depressed—very much depressed. I made inquiries wherever I went on that point and the reply was everywhere the same. The cause is undoubtedly over-production. England has gotten on manufacturing until she has glutted all her markets."

A STRANGE malady has broken out among cattle, particularly milk cows, in the neighborhood just north of the Union Stock Yards at Chicago, and extending to the Bridgeport slaughter houses in the southern part of the city. The disease appears to be in all cases fatal. It is thought the afflicted cattle show symptoms of Texas fever. When the spleen is examined after death it is found swollen to three times its natural size. The district in which the disease is confined contains many patches of open prairie, upon which cows graze in herds. Texas cattle are frequently driven into Bridgeport through this district, and it is believed that the disease was caught from these passing herds.

In the new code of Rules of Practice prepared by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the most important departure from the present practice is in respect to the initiation of contests under the present rules only a party interested can bring contest, except in the case of abandoned homestead or forfeited public culture entries. The new rules extend to everybody the privilege of initiating contests against "the party to any entry, filing of other claim under the laws of Congress, relating to the public lands for a sufficient cause affecting the legality or validity of the claim." The power of local land officers of contests is extended by the new rules, "to all cases where an entry has not been forfeited and no certificate has been issued as a basis for a patent." The new rules take effect September 1st.

THE full text of the decision of Judge Crease of the Supreme Court of British Columbia in the Hibbs extradition case, who issued fraudulent money orders in Montana and then escaped across the lines, has been received at the Post-office Department. In it Judge Crease says: "It is a case of considerable importance, because a complaint is for an offense which has no exact parallel in the history of extradition cases, and the danger that would arise of repetition should it not prove to be an extraditable offense. That will be easily understood when it is considered that there are some fifteen thousand postmasters having the same facilities as the prisoner in the issuance of money orders in the United States, and if one such can with impunity unblushingly confess to having abused his trust by embezzling twenty thousand dollars in three days, and then avoid all punishment by merely skipping abroad as an imaginary boundary line, it is a mere rule-of-three sum to ascertain the mischief such an example to even a few of that great army of postmasters must do."

MARINE DISASTERS.

A British Vessel Wrecked and a Steam Locomotive Lost—Six Old War Vessels Sunk—A German Vessel and Two Hundred Lives Lost.

PORT WASHINGTON, I. L., Aug. 21.—A fire causing a loss of over $1,000,000 broke out on board the steamer Republic lying off from the shore here last night. The flames spread from the funnels to the following ships, all of which were burned to the water's edge and sunk: Minnesota, Susquehanna, Congress, South Carolina, Iowa, Lottie Grant and the Fair Play. All with the exception of the last two formerly belonged to the United States Navy. They had been condemned and were bought from the Government by Sturtevant & Co., who were to break them up for the old iron and planks they found got out of them. The fire broke out on the forward deck of the Minnesota where men were at work burning up planks to get the iron spikes. On the right of the Colorado was the Susquehanna to which the flames spread rapidly, and before either it or the Colorado could be opened the flames had spread to the other boats. They all burned like tinder and the fire spread so rapidly that the men on the decks of the Colorado and the other vessels were unable to get away until they were on the shore and up the rigging. The picture now presented of the eight burning vessels, outlined against a bank of iron clouds, was one to be remembered. The fire on the Colorado lasted three hours and she was one of the three vessels of the United States that were burned up. The Colorado was the first to sink and as the waters closed over her a mast from the Minnesota topped over the Colorado, and the mast of the Colorado, which was the mast of the Colorado, was the mast of the Colorado. The Susquehanna burst from her moorings and at one time the various fishing crafts anchored along the shore appeared to be in danger. She drifted about twenty yards from the shore and after floating for a minute, keeled over and sank. The South Carolina and Iowa followed her to the bottom in short order, but before going down the flames spread from the Iowa to the Lottie Grant and the Fair Play, which were lying near the shore, and they, too, sank. When the owners of the steamers could not be ascertained, as the crews became so mixed up in the mad scramble for their lives, they could not be found. It is estimated that there were not less than $100,000, as it was only for the iron in them that I bought them. Had they been scuttled the loss would have been paid in the millions. The loss on the steamers will be less than $15,000.
