

In days gone by there was often sent a cry from Ireland for a royal pardon, but of late "No royal pardon apply" has been the prevailing sentiment. There may yet be seen the remains of an abortive attempt at a royal pardon at Jigginstown, near Naas. On account of the excellence of the bricks the walls and vaulted cellars have come down to our day. Strafford built it, "deeming it unworthy his Majesty should not have a house of his own here." Perhaps Princess of the house of Parnell may yet occupy it.

Under the Mexican law a creditor can have a debtor arrested on the day when the debt falls due. The prisoner is chained to a post five days, guarded by an officer. At the end of the time, if the money is not forthcoming, the man's labor is sold to the Government for 40 cents a day for as many days as will be necessary to discharge the obligation. The miserable debtor is sent to the silver mines, where he is chained to a gang of felons and compelled to work underground. He sleeps underground, and never sees daylight again until he is restored to freedom.

Prof Blackie is not the only eccentric master the young men of Edinburgh University have had over them. Prof.
Christie, whose name is eminent in the Edinburgh Medical School—once having caught a student winking in his Latin class, ordered him to stand up and speak as follows: "No sniffling, no smiling, and, above all, no tipping of the wink; for such things are hurtful to yourselves, baneful to the republic, and will bring down the gray hairs of your parents with sorrow to the grave. Hum! by the way, that's a very pretty sentence; turn it into Latin, sir."

A letter from Mexico says the poverty of the country may be traced directly to the slavery system of farming which prevails. The agricultural resources are enormous. Though only one-fifth of the best land in the great plateau is under cultivation, it supports millions of people with a style of farming that would produce starvation in the best sections of New York or Pennsylvania. The Mexican's sole conception of the utility of plowing is to scratch up enough loose dirt to cover the seed; in a great majority of cases the ground is never touched after planting.

You may not be aware of it, but it is a fact that many of the medicines recommended for croup, contain either chloroform or opium, and cannot be even to children in the large and frequent doses required, in case of croup, with any degree of safety. They are dangerous and should be avoided at all times. There one preparation however, that does not ever aim a single ingredient that would injure a child, and it is certain and positive proof of croup and that is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has cured thousands of cases and can always be depended upon.
Sold by druggists.

Your medicine, Athlophoros, has given my mother considerable relief stipation are cured by St. Patrick's Pil-tion of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States and is for sale
