

PRESS COMMENT

What the Various State Papers Say About Red Cloud.

"Stars from the Sand Hill." [Cor. Omaha Bee.]

Red Cloud boasts of the quietude which characterizes that place, and the firmness of the town is thus sought for by the McCook Democrat, which murmurs: "Quite likely, sweet neighbor. Grave yards have been from a time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, the quietude spots on earth. Poets and orators make use of the tomb in similes depicting quietude, and when they desire to 'make it a little more binding,' they say 'as still as death.' Why not henceforth say 'as still as Red Cloud?'"

"Whom the Gods wish to destroy, they first make mad," and this is the case with our disgruntled friends from the little burg located on the sand hills, west of us called McCook. The facts are that McCook is "dying Egyptian" and her jealousy is so great of the metropolis, (Red Cloud) that she is likened unto a man who is made fast to a chair, with sand burrs in the bottom. "She wants to get up but can't" while Red Cloud is booming right along building one enterprise after another and making a great city, in the meanwhile, McCook languishes in the center of a vast sand desert, waiting and praying for deliverance from sandstorms and the burning rays of Old Sol. Yet, there is a chance for McCook, should she ever get rid of the old fossil that inhabit that burg, and nature blows enough soil in that direction to cover the sand heaps thereabouts, else, she is forever lost and in the words of our special poet, we say:

Farewell, McCook, Farewell to all thy lovin' friends, It is the fate of towns built upon the sand, Tomorrow there comes a blizzard—and upsets in the sand.

And Boom They Will. [Smith Center Daily Pioneer.]

S.S. Howard returned today from Red Cloud. He reports that city as lively up somewhat and that their street car railway will soon be in operation. Red Cloud has some energetic citizens and they are determined to make that city boom.

Hasn't Gone to Superior Yet. [Smith Center Daily Pioneer.]

Geo. E. McDonald, the architect, arrived this evening from Red Cloud, and will personally superintend the new buildings of which he has charge here.

Going to Build Soon. [Omaha Bee.]

It is said that the Nebraska Southern intends to commence work soon on their line to Red Cloud and that the precincts have voted bonds.

That's the Way We Do It. [Blue Hill Times-Winner.]

The railroad bond proposition was carried in Red Cloud without a dissenting voice. Railroads are horrible things, but few live towns neglect an opportunity to get one of them.

We Always Get There. [Superior Daily Journal.]

The people of Red Cloud are jubilant over their street railway. They have been quite a while in perfecting their plans and we congratulate them on their final success.

Acted Wisely. [Indianola Times.]

The citizens of Red Cloud acted wisely in electing Geo. Holland mayor of that flourishing city.

It Certainly Will. [Blue Hill Times-Winner.]

We this week place on our exchange list the Y. M. C. A. of Red Cloud, which is a strong organization in good hands, and one that we think will be the means of accomplishing much good.

Want Those Railroads. [Holdrege Cor. Omaha Republican.]

Our board of trade has appointed a committee consisting of E. W. Roberts and J. R. Patrick to confer with a like committee from Red Cloud and Plum Creek, for the purpose of making propositions to certain railroads tending this way, and if possible to procure them to build into these towns. The Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe is the main one in view.

You Can Bet Your Life. [Kearney Daily Journal.]

Red Cloud is up and doing. On Monday the track laying on the new street railway began.

Webster County's Clerk. [Omaha Republican.]

J. H. Bailey, county clerk of Webster county, was in the city yesterday getting some pointers from County Clerk Roche.

Thanks Awfully. [Hastings Gazette-Journal.]

The Y. M. C. A. of this city is favored with a number of publications and several papers in the state sent to it gratuitously, and Secretary Ogden says the Red Cloud DAILY CURIER is the latest welcome acquisition to the files, which are carefully kept.
