EDITORIAL NOTES
 Hon. Leonard Swett, who died in Chicago Saturday, was one of the noted criminal lawyers of Illinois. He was of remarkable presence, of mind, of great magnetism as a speaker and well versed in the law. He gained considerable note as a politician, having taken an active stand for the principles of the republican parties from its organization to the present. While more or less conspicuous in Illinois politics he never held but one office in his life, that of member of the state senate from 1858 to 1862. This was the legislative chosen at the election of 1858, the year of the remarkable campaign between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, and Mr. Swett was a conspicuous advocate of Mr. Lincoln for United States senator at that time and was after his warm, personal political friend.

Foiled by a Mocking Bird.
 Under a tree near the porch, an old hen had gathered her brood of interesting balls of fluff and promissory feathers, some day to be real spring chickens. Between the porch and the tree, under which the old hen was delivering a noonday lecture to her thirteen children, lay a plump and religious looking cat. She was not one of our scampish, frisky, half-fledged cats, but a demure old tabby, too well fed and perhaps too moral to even look with evil eye upon the sparrows in the bushes near by. She certainly was at the time I speak of—when the mocking bird, whose cage hung on the adjoining piazza, was making a strange ditty out of "Hark! Hark! My Soul!" and "Dem Golden Slippers," combined—as quiet and benevolent as a cat can be.

After awhile the mocking bird stopped whistling, and apparently directed all his attention to observing the scene before him. All at once there came from the mocking bird's cage the shrill pipe of a young chicken in pain. The old hen heard the cry, and in an instant had left her flock and flown with ruffled neck and wings outspread upon the sleepy cat. The cat was terror stricken by the suddenness of the assault, and received several sharp pecks and scratches before she could get away. The old hen kept up the pursuit until the cat fled into the house. The mocking bird, whose skillful imitation of a chicken's cry had caused the disturbance cheerily whistled: "There's a land that is fairer than day."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Order of Delphians.
 Prof. Curran and Judge Coin of Superior will leave for Topeka, Kan., next Monday on a mission in the interests of the Order of Delphians. Though two months have not elapsed since active work in organizing lodges was commenced yet great success has crowned the labors of those working in the interests of the order.

Last week the most prominent educators of Iowa expressed their high appreciation of the merits of the Order of Delphians and promised the existence of between 200 and 300 lodges of the order in the Hawkeye state by January 1 1890. From all sections of the country inquiries are being made in regard to the great objects of the Order of Delphians which when the teachers learn they will unanimously pronounce it the great means by which their interests, and those of the profession generally are to attain that success which the grandeur of the teacher's work demands. Though the progressive spirit of education is recognized generally, the material interests of our public school system greatly improved, yet educators are not slow to notice that those interests that pertain to the teacher—the most potent of all factors in the production of educational results—are not what they ought to be. In other words, the teacher is not surrounded by those conditions absolutely necessary to his individual success professionally, socially and materially. Hence the great aim of the Delphians is to bring around the teacher such circumstances as are best calculated to promote his interests professionally; to stimulate him to that high standard of scholarship necessary to bring his school work to that degree of efficiency commensurate with the requirements of the progressive educational spirit of our time.

The next six months will doubtless show a growth of the Order of Delphians unprecedented in the history of secret organizations. The matter will receive a prominent consideration at the approaching National Teachers' Association to be held in Nashville, Tennessee, next month.
