The air of the city is filled with falsehoods. They hang pendant from the chandeliers of our finest residences; they crowd the shelves of some of our merchant princes; they fill the sidewalk from curbstone to brownstone facing. They cluster around the mechanic's hammer and blossom from the end of the merchant's vardstick and sit in the doors of the churches. Some call them "fiction." Some style them "fabrigation." You might say they were me to call them-lies.
