With good pasturage almost any class joined by the Huascar and that the of stock can be fattened more readily and at a less cost than when they must depend largely upon dry feed. This is one strong reason why it is best to push the feeding of the unthrifty stock and market before the pasturage begins to fail. Look over the stock and select out those that under favorable conditions have not done as well as others managed in the same way.

With hogs and cattle especially quick growth and early maturity are necessary if the best profit is realized; this They must be animals that, when given good pasturage and plenty of water in summers and good shelter, good care and plenty of feed in winter, will make a steady gain until they are matured. and when they are matured the sooner they are marketed the better.

FARM NOTES.

In preparing the ground for wheat keep the best soil and fertilizer near the surface, to insure a good crop.
