Dr. Talmage Describes His Visit to Athens.

The Great Market Place and the Acropolis Described. The London Patriot on Mars Hill—Lessons Drawn From the History of Athens.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage in his sixth sermon on Bible lands, recently preached at Brooklyn, took his text from Acts, xvii, 16: "While Paul waited for them at Athens his spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given up to idolatry." Dr. Talmage said:

It seemed as if morning would never come. We had to wait after dark in Athens, Greece, and the night was sleepless with expectation, and at the first ray of dawn, I called to our party to look out of the window upon that city which Paul said he was a debtor, and to which the whole earth is debtor for Greek architecture, Greek sculpture, Greek poetry, Greek eloquence, Greek prose and Greek history. That morning in Athens we sauntered forth armed with most generous and lovely letters from the president of the United States and his secretary of state, and during all our stay in that city those letters caused every door and every gate and every temple and every palace to swing open before us.

The night while we were in the stadium through which the defeated races departed from the stadium and into the city, and the Acropolis, and the Parthenon, and the temple of Athena, and the temple of
