CURRENT COMMENT.

ROMANCE is a great student of Shakespeare. He quotes the great Englishman frequently.

Many of the men in the islands of the western Japan lead lives of idleness and are cheerfully supported by the government.

On the Sahara desert the day may be boiling hot, but not infrequently the temperature at night falls below the freezing point.

An enterprising physician in California advertises: "I will pay half of the funeral expenses in cases where I am not successful."

Self does not enter into the food of the poor Venetians. They never taste it, and the hospital for the scrofulous children at Lido is filled by those who have not had this necessary article in their food.

Twenty-five cents was paid for a horse at a sale in Bucks county, Pa., the other day and the auctioneer threw in a halter to make a respectable bargain. The horse dropped dead before the purchaser got him home.

A woman in Georgia, it is related in a southern exchange, quenched a longing for eggs and buttermilk by eating at one meal two dozen hard boiled eggs and a gallon of buttermilk. "She died in great agony three days later."

MAIL carriers in Morocco are said to avoid the risk of losing their places by oversleeping by tying a string to one foot and setting the end on fire before going to sleep. The string, they know from experience, will burn so long, and when the fire reaches their foot it is time for them to get up.

KOREAN native coin is copper cash. Mexican dollars and Japanese yen are used in the ports to a moderate extent, but are almost unknown in the interior, and the cumbersome nature of the coin employed, together with the great fluctuations in its value, is a serious obstacle to the expansion of trade.

WHILE splitting an ash tree into rails a few days ago, Benaesler Hopkins, of Monument Creek, Pa., came across a section of the heart that was decayed as fine as powder. The rotten part was three and a half feet long and the heart and outside of the tree were as sound as a nut below and above it. There was no hole from the outside, and in the hollow Mr. Hopkins found a half of dead honey bee and an ounce lead bullet. The leaves of growth showed that the bee had been there for at least fourteen years.

IN Russia a child 30 years of age cannot go away from home to school without a passport. Servants and peasants cannot go away from where they live without a passport. A gentleman residing in St. Petersburg or Moscow cannot receive the visit of a friend who remains many hours without notifying the police of his arrival, as the case may be. The porters of all houses are compelled to make returns of the arrival and departure of strangers. And for every one of the above passports a charge is made of some kind.

CARDINAL MANNING'S manners with women were always charming; and his bow, when he took off his hat of more than Queen's trim, was a homage the most graceful ever made. It was not often that he permitted himself a mere compliment, when he did it was only because a lady phrased carried him away. "You have given me a book which has kept me awake, and bring you a book to send you to sleep." The book which had not kept him awake was a volume of poems of a tone he hardly caught. The book to send the poet to sleep was a collection of his own sermons.

Uruguay, like Paraguay, is a great cattle and sheep country. Her 650,000 people and 73,000 square miles are meat producing. The great problem is how to dispose of the surplus. Large quantities of frozen meat are exported. Cattle are killed for their hides and tallow. The annual product of wool is 70,000,000 pounds, valued at $10,000,000. The soil is rich, and such of it as is cultivated produces the same crops that grow in the United States. Within the last four years a trade has been developing between the United States and Uruguay. This country takes from Uruguay bones and bone-ash, cow hides and horse hair, and sells to Uruguay lumber, kerosene, cotton goods and machinery. The foreign trade of Uruguay amounts to $63,460,406 a year. The trade with this country is $3,000,000, and with other countries, $60,000,000.

The death of the duke of Clarence attracted public attention in England very forcibly by the danger often incurred by mourners at funerals, a fact sufficiently well known before to have originated the proverb: "One funeral makes many." There seems to be little doubt that the luckless prince brought his original cold at the burial of Prince Victor of Hohenlohe, and a general protest has arisen against the custom which demands that mourners shall stand bareheaded at the grave in all sorts of weather. The doctors say that many deaths can be traced directly to this practice, and point out that the dead cannot be benefited by the sufferings of the living. The Lancet goes so far as to declare that only persons in the most health ought to be permitted to attend funerals in bad weather, and endorses its argument by referring to the death of a prominent Liverpool merchant, which was caused solely by exposure at the burial of a friend. The New York Evening Post says an enumeration of the deaths brought about by cold winds in Greenwood cemetery, one of the bleakest spots in winter, would be startling.

DOWN TO DEATH.

Fearful Plunge of a Santa Fe Passenger Train.

It Dashed Into a Swollen Stream With Its Load of Passengers, Seven of Whom Are Killed and About Forty Injured—The Victims.

FORT MADISON, Ia., May 6.—Without a word of warning, in the midst of a frightful storm, the eastbound transcontinental express on the Atchison, filled with human beings wrapped in slumber, plunged through a trestle weakened by rain, to death, at about 1:45 o'clock yesterday morning, between Revere and Medill in Missouri, about 365 miles from Chicago.

It was a frightful night. The rain fell as it never had been known to fall before, and an occasional flash of lightning could be seen in the gloom. The great express had come through from San Francisco, Los Angeles and Mexico to Kansas City on time. On arriving at Kansas City at 4:40 on Wednesday afternoon orders were received to hold it until 6:40 and run to Chicago on the time of the Denver limited, which was very late.

At 6:40 the train composed of a postal car, a baggage car, chair car, a tourist sleeper and two Pullman coaches commenced its run to Chicago. All went well until a pile and trestle bridge over the Fox river near Revere was reached. This bridge is 220 feet long and thirty-six feet high. Two hours before the transcontinental express struck the bridge a heavy freight train passed over it in safety but the heavy rains had swollen the torrent which raged beneath the rails to a miniature Niagara, which had carried the bridge out of line but left it standing, and so far as the engineer on the locomotive could see, all right.

The engine crossed in safety, but not the balance of the train, for the bridge went down with its precious load, only the engine and rear sleeper remaining on either end of the abutments. The other part of the train was precipitated into the swiftly flowing waters which coursed through the ravine below.

Five cars with their load of human freight, wearily with a long trip, and the remains of the bridge sank together in one conglomeration of crushed timbers, torn and twisted iron work and mangled humanity.

Men sprang from the windows of the wrecked cars and fighting their way through the whirling waters filled with debris reached the banks and fell to the ground exhausted. Seven sank in the wreck to die. Thirty-eight are known to have been injured.

Killed: William Hynes, Oklahoma City, Ok.; Alonzo S. Markee, Kansas City, Mo.; Luther Cornelius, Kirksville, Mo.; Samuel E. Verkler, Westport, Mo.; John C. Groves, Macon, Mo.; lady and child, names unknown.

Injured: J. Tucker, conductor, Dawnes Grove; Martin Regan, brakeman, Riverview, Kan.; Andrew Ronan, express messenger; Claude Beal, postal clerk; R. E. Dutcher, postal clerk; Mrs. Jane Hisey, Riverside, J. H. Winslow, Chicago; H. M. Cutler, Chicago; H. C. Cowling, Chicago; N. Lancaster, Chicago; W. A. DEATH OF FRANK LYNCH.

The Editor of the Leavenworth "Standard" at Rest—His Demise Unexpected.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 6.—Frank T. Lynch, editor and proprietor of the Evening Standard, died yesterday afternoon at ten minutes past 5 o'clock at his home of heart failure. He had been ill since Sunday night, but it was only Wednesday when the physicians, after a thorough diagnosis, satisfied themselves that the young editor was not only a very sick man, but could never recover, pneumonia having complete possession of his system, the result of a heavy cold contracted two weeks ago at the Salina convention, which he presided over.

Yesterday afternoon only a few moments before breathing his last (Mrs. Lynch having just left his bedside for a moment) Mr. Lynch arose in his bed with the intention of dressing himself. Dr. Neely, who had just entered, told him that he certainly could not go down town and asked him to lie down, which he did with the doctor's assistance, and almost immediately expired from a rush of blood to the heart.

In 1888 he associated himself with Henry C. Burnett and obtained control of the Standard, established by ex-Senator E. G. Ross. Later he became sole proprietor of the paper.

In 1885 he was appointed by President Cleveland postmaster of this city. In 1890 he was succeeded by the present postmaster, George Ritchey, a republican. He was married in 1885 to Miss Birdie Blair, second daughter of Gen. C. W. Blair. She survives him with two children, a son and daughter.

The Russian Famine.

New York, May 6.—Mr. Charles Emory Smith, the United States minister to Russia, who arrived on the Teutonic yesterday, in an interview said he was glad to get back. With regard to the situation in Russia he said it had been in no way exaggerated. The ravage of famine had been felt in its severest form everywhere. He believed, however, that the worst was over and that the survivors would soon be free from famine and disease. Some suffering, of course, he said, would follow, but with the outside aid Russia was receiving, he thought the people would be able to tide over until the next harvest.
