

THE FIRST DAY.

Temporary Organization of the Republican Convention.

Chairman Fassett Enlarges on the Work Performed and the Issues Ahead—Orations at the Mention of Leaders—Reed's Speech.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 8.—An angry, threatening day and delegates in thorough fighting mood, ill-natured almost to the point of savagery, were the marked features of the opening of the republican national convention to choose a candidate for the presidency of the United States.

It was fitting, perhaps, that the patriotic airs of "Columbia," "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "The Star Spangled Banner" should be the prelude to the convention, and hardly had the last melody died away when Chairman Clarkson, of the national committee, rapped the tenth republican national convention to order. Prayer was offered by Rev. William Brush, chancellor of the University of Dakota of Mitchell, S. D.

Michael H. DeYoung, of California, one of the secretaries of the national committee, read the official call for the convention, and five minutes were consumed in this and other monotonous proceedings.

"Gentlemen of the convention," then said Mr. Clarkson, "I am instructed by the national committee to nominate for your temporary chairman Hon. J. Sloat Fassett, of New York."

There was a momentous pause while the body awaited the action that might be taken by the Harrison wing in opposition to Mr. Fassett's selection.

But the anticipated contest did not take place. No one was placed in nomination in opposition to Mr. Fassett, and when the question was submitted there was not an opposing vote to Mr. Fassett's election.

"Your temporary chairman, gentlemen," was the introduction with which Mr. Clarkson presented Mr. Fassett to the convention. The expected Blaine demonstration was forthcoming when Mr. Fassett attempted to speak. One prolonged cheer resounded through the hall and galleries, and Blaine delegates arose as a man to salute their chairman.

Mr. Fassett said, as soon as he could be heard: "Mr. Chairman and Fellow Republicans: For the distinguished honor which you have conferred upon me I am very grateful. I approach the duties of presiding officer with extreme timidity and am sustained only by a reliance upon your generous forbearance and co-operation. It is eminently fitting that a republican convention should be held in a temple erected for the display of the products of protection to American industries and in this beautiful city of Minneapolis, at once the joy and the pride of the giant west. This city, which just about equals in age the republican party, with its prosperous mines and factories and workshops and its generous and happy homes, abounds in object lessons, teaching clearer than in any words the sound wisdom of republican doctrines when epitomized as facts.

We are met to exercise one of the highest privileges of our citizenship. The gathering of 4,000,000 of voting republicans gathered from every state and territory in the union it becomes our duty to formulate for the inspection of the people the beliefs and purposes of our party relative to the living political questions of national importance. I propose that man who leads under whose guidance we feel we shall be most sure of establishing those beliefs in the form of laws.

We are here not as warring factions, struggling to win supremacy under favorite leaders, but as members of one great party looking to select from the shining roll of our honored great men that type of statesmen which shall be regarded as the soundest and most complete embodiment of the cardinal doctrines of our party. There is not a republican in this convention whose heart does not burn with ardor for triumph in the impending campaign. We all are eager for success; we are here to make the necessary preliminary arrangements and we hope to make them in the right way and in the right spirit.

If there is ever a time when it is proper for republicans to differ it is precisely in such occasions as this, when they are met together for the express purpose of reaching ultimate unity through the clash and contest of present differences. In the wide reaching and delicate business of agreeing upon the platform and officers, a great opportunity is afforded for honest and open expression of honest opinion; the more determined the contests and collisions, the more complete will be the final unanimity. The air is always sweeter and purer before a storm. It is our right now to oppose each other. It will be our duty to unite to oppose a storm. Our differences should end at the convention doors and will end there.

The eyes of all the republicans at home and the eyes of all our adversaries are intently fixed on this convention. The nation is watching us—our enemies to criticize, our friends to ratify. The responsibility is enormous, but you will act wisely. The republican party has never yet made a mistake in its choice of candidates; it will not make a mistake here. All over this great land the bonfires are being set to be lighted, the flags ready to be unfurled and the republicans at home are waiting to shout an approval of your choice. The history of our party since 1868 is the history of our country. There is not a single page but shines brighter for some act of some word of some republican. Count me over your chosen heroes whom we are teaching our children to love and revere, and you shall name republicans—Lincoln, Seward, Grant, Sherman, Garfield, Logan, Harrison and Blaine. These are a few of our republican friends with the defiant challenge: "Match them." These men became great and remained great.

I have not the time even to count over the long list of work performed by them. You are familiar with the story. The irrepressible conflict undertaken and concluded; slavery abolished; public credit re-established; the constitution of the union restored and reconstructed; the old flag washed of every stain and now stars added to its glory; the wide west thrown open to easy access and settlement; the policy of protection to American labor and American industry established, developed and vindicated; the markets of the world opened by the persuasive idea of reciprocity; the opening of the American republics to the products of the American workshop and the American farm, until to-day the nations of the earth are paying tribute to the sagacity of our legislation and diplomacy and Lord Salisbury has been driven to the significant confession that even in England free trade has proved a disappointment. Rivers and harbors have been opened to commerce, the white hulls of our navy are plowing the waters of every sea; there has been peace maintained at home and respect secured abroad and so the list might be extended and expanded, while your patience might endure to listen, while our political adversaries though perpetually using every measure of our new republican policy are compelled to see the wisdom of our course and to confess that we have been right and that they have been wrong.

They have just about exhausted in the Fifty-first congress one year of congressional life in vain assaults upon three items in a tariff bill made up of thirty items. At this rate of progress they would have to be trusted for about eight hundred years in power before we could see a tariff formed upon lines agreed upon by our conflicting democratic friends.

But we cannot hope to win merely upon the record of the achievements of our past, brilliant as they have been, any more than our adversaries can hope to succeed upon platforms of glittering praise. The past is chiefly useful to us in so far as it demonstrates the vitality of the party to reform its pledges and its ability to govern a broad and enlightened and progressive people. Our pledges have been kept, all save one, and I greatly mistake the temper of the republican party if it will ever be contented until that pledge is made good.

The words "Harrison and Blaine" were mentioned so rapidly that the friends of the former candidate were taken by surprise and had no opportunity to cheer for their candidate. But the Blaine men made the most of the occasion, and for three minutes delegates waved their hats and handkerchiefs wildly in the air and cheered the great leader.

Another scene came when Chairman Fassett praised the work of the Fifty-first congress "under the iron will and strong arm of Thomas B. Reed." Almost equal to the ovation to Blaine was the enthusiasm inspired by this reference to the republican parliamentarian. He was seated far in the rear of the speaker's stand and was invisible to most of the audience. Some one started the cry of "Reed, Reed," and it was instantly taken up by the delegates and the gallery, but it was not until the chairman of the convention turned and beckoned commandingly to him that he finally arose from his seat. At the first sight of the distinguished son of Maine every delegate and every auditor arose to do him homage.

After the cheering subsided Mr. Reed said: "Mr. President and Fellow Citizens—I want to add in the presence of this vast audience my hearty expression of feeling in the future of the republican party. [Applause.] Its past needs the endorsement of no man. It has the endorsement of history, for the deeds of the republican party are history itself. [Applause.] And while we are prevented from pointing with pride to the achievements of our party on account of our tenderness for the democratic party, [Laughter and applause.] nevertheless we sit here today rejoicing that our past history shows that from our birth until now our character has been such that it is a guarantee of the magnificent future we are bound to have. [Applause.] It is true that we have done great things, but it is equally true that we have no right to rest upon them. Our party is glorious, but our future ought to be more so. It is true that we have given this country a wonderful reciprocal prosperity. It is true that wealth has been poured into the laps of our people by the great system which we believe in and which we have carried out but I say to you to-day that there is another future even greater than having given prosperity to a country by the republican party. [Applause.] And that nobler future is to give every citizen of the United States liberty of thought and action. [Cheers.] Wealth and prosperity are notable, but human liberty is magnificent. [Cheers.]

The other officers selected by the national committee were then chosen. It was ordered that, until the permanent organization should be effected, the convention should be governed by the rules of the last preceding republican convention.

Ex-Senator W. J. Sewell, of New Jersey, presented a resolution that the roll of states and territories be called and that the chairman of each delegation announce the names of the persons selected to serve on the committees as follows: Permanent organization, rules and order of business, credentials and resolutions. This was adopted and the roll of states began.

Immediately after the completion of the call of states and the announcement of the membership of various committees, the convention adjourned until 11 o'clock to-day.

HARRISON AND REID.

The President Renominated by the Convention at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 11.—President Harrison was nominated on the first ballot yesterday. The vote of Texas gave him the necessary majority. The effort of the opposition to divide

The hall was crowded almost to its utmost capacity when Chairman Fassett pounded for order. The proceedings were opened by Bishop H. H. Whipple, of Minneapolis with prayer. L. E. Walker, of Nebraska, on behalf of the Nebraska delegation presented Temporary Chairman Fassett with a gavel made from trees grown on the first homestead in Nebraska. The gavel, he said, was of wood of hard growth and was inlaid with silver.

S. C. Lockwood, of Idaho, presented the report of the committee on organization. A wild scene took place when the committee reported Gov. William McKinley, of Ohio, for permanent chairman.

A magnificent ovation greeted the governor when he stepped to the chair on the platform. Temporary Chairman Fassett introduced his successor, saying: "The chairman, gentlemen of the convention. Before presenting to you your permanent chairman, the chair desires to thank you most heartily for the kind forbearance which you have extended to him. I now have the honor and the distinguished pleasure to introduce Hon. William McKinley, of Ohio."

Temporary Chairman Fassett retired amid great applause and there was prolonged and renewed cheers and waving of banners, after which Gov. McKinley spoke as follows: "I thank you for the honor of presiding over the ninth quadrennial convention of the republican party. [Applause.] Republican conventions mean something. They have always meant something. [Applause.] Republican conventions say what they mean and mean what they say. [Applause.] They declare principles and policies and purposes and when invested with power execute and enforce them. [Applause.] The first national convention of the republican party was thirty-six years ago in the city of Philadelphia. The platform of the great convention reads to-day more like inspiration than the affirmation of a political party. [Great applause.] Every provision of that great instrument framed by the fathers of our party is in the statutes of our country to-day. [Applause.] Every one of them has been embodied into public law and that cannot be said of the platform of any other political organization in this or any other country of the world. [Cheers.]

We are for a protective tariff and for reciprocity. [Great applause.] We propose to take no backward step upon either one of these great republican principles. [Applause.] We stand for a protective tariff because it represents the American home, the American field, the American family, the American child and the American boy and the highest possibilities of American citizenship. [Applause.] We propose to raise our money to pay public expenses by taxing the products of other nations rather than by taxing the products of our own. [Applause.] The tariff does not involve in direct taxation, that is in taxing ourselves, but we don't believe in that principle, so long as we can find anybody else to tax. Our protective tariff not only does everything which a revenue tax is doing, raising all needed revenues, but a protective tariff does more. A protective tariff encourages and stimulates American industries and gives the widest possibilities to American genius and American effort. Does anybody know what tariff reform is? [No, no, and laughter;] and that is to be the platform of our political opponents this year. What does it mean? You say Grover Cleveland's utterances. From the first one he made in New York when he said he did not know anything about the tariff until his last one in Rhode Island, you come away ignorant and uninformed as to what tariff reform means. Since the war there have been three great tariff reform bills proposed by democratic leaders, none of them alike, neither of them with the same free list, neither of them with the same tariff list, neither of them with the same rates of duty, but all made by the democratic party upon the same principle to symbolize and present tariff reform. What does it mean? You say Grover Cleveland's utterances. From the first one he made in New York when he said he did not know anything about the tariff until his last one in Rhode Island, you come away ignorant and uninformed as to what tariff reform means. Since the war there have been three great tariff reform bills proposed by democratic leaders, none of them alike, neither of them with the same free list, neither of them with the same tariff list, neither of them with the same rates of duty, but all made by the democratic party upon the same principle to symbolize and present tariff reform. You may go to Mills, you may go to Springer, and you will find they differ totally; but you may go to the house of representatives at Washington, which was elected to be the platform of our political opponents this year.
