Ice Cream at Calmes.

Mrs. A. G. Willis and Mrs. G. W. Lindsey have returned from the convention of the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, and report a very pleasant time. Among the most interesting things was a very large key presented to the worthy Grand Master by the mayor of the city.

A farm paper says: "There is nothing more necessary for a business man than to have his calling and address neatly printed on his envelopes and letter heads. That it pays is seen when it is remembered that city business men, from the smallest to the greatest, use printers' ink liberally in this manner. Farming is a business just as much as handling goods, and there is no good reason why the general farmer should not have his name, calling and address on his stationery as well as his city brother."

Of Col. J. D. Gage, of Franklin, the republican candidate for state senator in this district, the Hardy Herald says:

Col. J. D. Gage of Franklin, has many friends in this senatorial district who want to see him go to the state senate this winter as a representative of the district. We have been well acquainted with the Col. since 1874 and one of his staunch friends before we knew him. He took his seat as county commissioner of Franklin county, Jan 1st, 1875, and a set of political schemers undertook to prevent it. In the struggle the Colonel won our friendship and has ever since held it. He settled on a homestead west of Bloomington in 1871, and his every act, public or private, has proven himself worthy of the confidence of anyone having the true interests of this country at heart, and we should like to see him honored by the district. He has never asked for office outside his county and he has never betrayed a trust when chosen inside of it, and we are satisfied he would be a strong candidate.

June is the month of brides and roses, and it is usually the case that there are a dozen weddings in June for every one in every other month in the year. There is a sense of fitness in it, too. June is the loveliest of months, her skies are the bluest, and her flowers are the sweetest. The birds sing never so gaily as in June, and the bright sunshine and flower-scented breezes make the very soil on earth feel happy. So it is most that when the young folks, with their hearts filled with love and tenderness, join hands and set sail together upon life's sea, they should begin their journey in the month that is in tune with their own joyous glances. This June will be no exception to the Junes of other years, and any number of the young people of DeWitt county are making ready for what is perhaps the saddest as well as the happiest event in life. All the world loves a lover, and all the world looks on with interest and admiration when the lovers wed.

A piano that squeaks, a piano that shrieks, a piano that hums itself, a piano that growls, a piano that howls, should be laid on the closet shelf.

A dog that will fight, a dog that will bite, a dog that sleeps all day, a dog that will scold whenever you shoot, should be sent to the dump right away.

A cat that will wow, a cat that will meow in the depth of midnight gloom; such a cat should be shot on the self-same spot and softly consigned to the tomb.

A mule that will kick, a mule that gets sick, a mule that delights to bray; a mule that won't pull should be yoked with a bull and worked 16 hours a day.

A man who will lie, a man who will buy, and never expects to pay; a man who will scratch on his trousers a match should be promptly adjourned without delay.

A man who will smoke till he's ready to croak and his bank account runs in the red, had better go slow or the first thing you know he'll wake up and find himself dead.

A man who will drink and waste all his chink should be hung to a hickory limb, for he ain't worth the space occupied by his face, and that's what's the matter with him.—"Nothing But Lies" in Lincoln Herald.

Andrews Will Reclaim the Fifth

Prof. W. E. Andrews, who was on the first ballot at the McCook convention made the republican candidate for congressman in the fifth district, is in every respect a typical, energetic young western man. He was born in Mahaska county, Iowa, in 1854. His father was a farmer, and Mr. Andrews engaged in farm work until he was 20 years of age. In 1874 he entered Simpson college of Indianola, Iowa, and June 10, 1885, graduated with the degree of A. B., from Parsons college at Fairfield, Ia. Part of the time from 1874 to 1885 was spent on the farm and in public school work to meet necessary college expenses. In January, 1875, six months prior to his graduation in June, he was elected to the chair of Latin and history in Hastings college, Hastings, Neb. On September 1, of the same year he was married to Miss Mira McCoy of Fairfield, Ia. In June 1888, Prof. Andrews, received the degree of master of arts from his alma mater, Parsons college. During the year '91 he served acceptably as president of the Nebraska State Teachers Association, and the last seven years he has been continually identified with the work of the Hastings college. In the winter term of 1889 he was elected vice president of the faculty. Prof. Andrews has never been an office seeker, although prominent in state and district politics for some time. He served one term as county superintendent of schools on Iowa. He is intensely republican.

Some Foolish People,

allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine known as Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. At all druggists. 1

Every testimonial regarding Hood's sarsaparilla is an honest, unvarnished statement of what this medicine has actually done.

We wish again to call attention of our stockmen to the sale of short horns at Superior, Neb., Saturday, June 25. The sale will be at the creamery stables. This will be a grand opportunity to get some fine cattle at your own price. See ad in another column of this paper.

FARMERS' ATTENTION.

All who are contemplating getting a harvester should see the Davis Platform Binder before purchasing, as it is the leading harvester of the day, the following points of excellence will show its superior qualities over all other binders. The chief point is there is no elevation of the grain at all, it simply binds all the grain at an elevation of not over nine inches above the stubble. Thus saving the power necessary to elevate the grain, making a saving of from one to one and a half horses in the draft of the machine.

There is a complete separation between the bundle being bound and the rest of the grain of nearly three feet, thus doing away with the tangle and hanging together of bundles so common with many binders. No other binder has this quality. A most wonderful feature of the Davis Binder, the only one ever put on a grain binder, is the reel rake, which enables the driver to handle down and tangled grain with ease and make the bundles smooth and straight. We challenge any man to produce a field of grain that the Davis Binder cannot harvest better and make every sheaf straighter and more symmetrical than can be done by any other binder.

We don't thresh out and waste grain as other binders do, as we don't have the friction necessary to elevate the grain, and thus save enough grain to the farmer to pay for the entire cost of harvesting and also pay for the cost of seeding the next crop.

The Davis uses no canvas aprons at all, instead uses studded belts, that can be loosened at night or tightened in the morning, or after a rain, in just one second, thus saving much valuable time used in tightening the canvas of the other binders. The driver can raise or lower the cutter bar without leaving his seat, so as to cut the longest or shortest grain, and at the same time keep the platform in proper position to handle the grain.

There is no weight on the horses' necks from the tongue, as it is perfectly loose, there is absolutely no side draft at all. Will bind tighter and with less end than any other binder. The binder is a steel binder.

The Davis needs no folding apparatus for transportation about the farms as it will pass through any eleven foot gate.

The Davis binder is fully warranted. Before purchasing a binder, call and see the Davis at Guivits' blacksmith shop in Red Cloud on North Webster street, at Hammel's old stand.

W. M. GUIWITS, Agt. Red Cloud, Neb.
