"ON TO WASHINGTON!"

An Interesting Tour Through the East by The Chief.

A few weeks ago the editor of this paper and family took an east bound train on the B. & O., for Washington D. C., and the Dominion of old Virginia. Leaving Red Cloud on the Red Cloud and Hastings train at 6 p. m. we reached Hastings at about 7:30 and soon were aboard the Burlington's noted fast train and were whirling at a rate of 40 miles an hour towards the Windy City of Chicago, where we arrived at 2:15 p. m. the next day, and at 2:55 we were comfortably seated in one of those handsome B. and O. trains that have gained such wide celebrity for their speedy qualities. In 25 hours after boarding the B. & O. train we were safely landed in the finest city in the world,—Washington, the capital of the United States. Our stay in Washington at that time was necessarily short, and at 6:25 p. m. we again took a train for Vienna, Virginia, and later in the evening arrived at our destination.

IN VIRGINIA.

To those who have never been in a south-eastern state, Virginia, would have many charms. The state is heavily wooded and with a gentle rolling surface, puts on a pleasant feature to the new-comer. The soil is much different from Nebraska. It is a reddish soil, similar to vicinities where pine grows extensively, and needs a great deal of artificial aid to make it produce abundantly which it does in favorable seasons. Their crop is about the same as is raised in Nebraska, corn, wheat, oats, rye, potatoes &c., with a splendid line of all kinds of fruits which grow plentiful. In portions of Virginia the race question still enters into politics, but in the north-eastern portions the colored people have about the same rights as the whites, and therefore are not discontented.

VIRGINIA.

Is a handsome little suburban village, 18 miles west of Washington D. C., situated on the Richmond & Danville railway. Here many of the government clerks reside, the town having an estimated population of 600. Two stores are all that are found necessary to be maintained, a postoffice, depot, and the village blacksmith which is usually a blacksmith by trade and black by nature. While in Vienna THE CHIEF and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Freeman, Mr. F. and his estimable wife and family are old residents of Virginia having settled there prior to the war, and what is now known as Vienna, was the scene of one of the first, if not the first battles, that was inaugurated for the purpose of firing the southern blood into fighting fervor. On a high piece of ground lying adjacent to the railway, and about a half mile from an abrupt curve in the road was planted a huge piece of artillery, and here there laid in ambush several confederates who waited for a train, to come bound for the interior loaded with soldiery to subdue the rebels. The train came one day and without any previous notice the artillery belched forth and its deadly missile tore through the train strewn death and desolation there in abundance. The confederates hastily retreated and so did the union soldiers, and when reinforced again attempted and did make the passage, but then war was in all its fury.

Some very lively scenes were enacted near Vienna and the "Old Fort Washington" or more proper, heavy breast-works that had been thrown up there by union soldiers, still remains but in a few more years will be things of the past.

The famous Potomac river is within eight miles, and silently but majestically flows down to the sea. The "big falls" which keep up an irrest-and everlasting roar, as the elements in large volumes goes dashing over the immense rocks, lashing itself into foam, as it falls over the precipitous heights, is a dazzling spectacle and fills one with awe at the magnitude of the greatness of the creator. They can not be described, hence a trip to them is necessary to grasp their immensity. Here it was that the immortal Washington more than a 100 years ago in order to pass these great falls constructed a canal around them, and to-day the old bed and the locks are there, that were built under the direction of the greatest and most adored man that ever set foot on the American continent. The scene of his headquarters, during the revolution, was here and the old walls of the house, and jail, where prisoners were kept, are still standing, but time has used them hard and in a few more years no trace of the place where the sacred head of the Father of our Country was housed will be in oblivion, and the place that once knew him will be revered only in the imagination. Being somewhat thirsty we were led to the identical spring, where Washington to quench his thirst and there drank of its pure waters. If George could have been there and observed an editor drinking water, we have no doubt but what he would have banished us into the realms where most printers are expected to go. We didn't drink enough of the water however to see the identical cherry tree that was supposed to be lurking in that neighborhood, but we have since been informed that it had been made into canal boats years ago.

We are indebted to Major Freeman and Captain Salisbury for our information. Both of these gentlemen are among the best citizens of Vienna and we shall always remember them graciously for their efforts to make our stay in Virginia both profitable and pleasant.

After our pleasant stay in Vienna, we visited at the residence of our old friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kenney, who are nicely located in one of the most pleasant portions of Washington. Mr. Kenney has a very profitable position in the government printing office, and we are pleased to know that he is on the high road to prosperity. We are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Kenney for a pleasant boat ride on the Potomac to Marshall Hall, Mt. Vernon, and other interesting places, also to many of the interesting public places in Washington. The young friends of Lewis and Roy Kenney will be pleased to know that these young gentlemen are doing nicely, that each have a good position and are improving their opportunities.

While in the capital city, we saw the president and visited the White House in company with Mr. Kenney. Also, the navy yard, treasury building, museum, Smithsonian Institute, and in fact all the important sights that were to be seen. The capitol building, which is the wonder and admiration of the people from all parts of the world, is a living monument to the freest country that the sun shines upon. It is a magnificent building, and we do not feel able to describe it in this article.

While going through the capitol we drifted into the rooms of Senator Paddock, chairman of the committee on Agriculture, and were extended a hearty welcome and all of the courtesies that a citizen of the great state of Nebraska could wish.

Our stay in Washington was brief, but we were there long enough to learn that Nebraska's senators are among the most respected of all the senators, and with hardly an exception are to be found in their seats working for Nebraska's interests. They command the closest attentions and are classed among the ablest men in the senate. We also saw Congressman McKeehan and daughter, Miss Edith. We also met Mr. and Mrs. Bayard. Mrs. Bayard will be remembered as Miss Strohm, by Red Cloud people. Also had the pleasure of meeting Prof. Caster in Washington's monument, and as we were there for the same purpose we took the elevator and ascended to its dizzy heights.

After visiting all of the interesting places in Washington that our time would permit of, we again resumed our journey

VIA THE B. & O. RAILWAY

For Red Cloud. This justly celebrated and much traveled road passes through one of the most enchanting spots on the globe. It runs through some of the most delightful country that we have ever had the pleasure of beholding. The scenery along the Alleghenias is sublime, filling one with thrilling sensations, never tiring of the enraptured beauty of the landscapes, the winding curves, the deep ravines, the steep ascents, and the swift downward slopes as the train rushes swiftly onward, passing over deep canyons, swift streams, dashing here and there into tunnels of inky darkness, coming forth just in time to behold some new object of admiration. The Alleghenias while not as imposing as the Rockies are still more dazzling in their beauty. The B. & O. folks make it a point to have first-class trainmen, who are always careful of the wants of their passengers, and as to speed it is simply remarkable how fast the trains run and how comfortable the cars are. This route should always be taken when visiting Washington. To go by any other line to the National capitol would be to miss the most entrancing scenery that is to be observed in America. No route can surpass it. Nebraskans intending to go east should take the Burlington for Chicago, and there is close connection with the B. & O. Ry., and no time is lost being able to make the 2,000 miles in about 40 hours. In traveling between six and seven thousand miles in the last few weeks THE CHIEF has found no state that can surpass Nebraska for beauty and big crops. She simply is the garden of America. Her fields are teeming with unbounded prosperity, and her people are generally prosperous and happy, while her sister states have many things to contend with, such as too much water or too much mud. In Nebraska we have just enough of both to make us feel good.

Eternal Vigilance.
Is the price of health. But with all our precaution there are enemies always lurking about our systems, only waiting a favorable opportunity to assert themselves. Impurities in the blood may be hidden for years or even for generations and suddenly break forth, undermining health and hastening death. For all diseases arising from impure blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is the unequalled and unapproached remedy. It is King of them all, for it conquers disease.

Farm loans at lowest interest.
Strictly first-class loans at lower rates than has ever been given in this county before. Option to pay part or all attend of any year.—C. F. CATHER.

My head aches; my stomach is sour I can't sleep; have had dreams, pain in back and limbs, dizziness, absent minded, bilious, languid, dull and stupid. All these are indications of malaria, blood, liver or kidney disease, deadly typhoid fever, all of which can be avoided by using "Hepaticure." For sale by L. H. Deyo.

TAYLOR'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE.

The Only Big Show to Exhibit in This Vicinity This Year.

Through an arrangement entered into between the proprietors of the leading shows of the country the great F. J. Taylor shows, which appear in Red Cloud, July 25th, will be the only tented exhibition of any importance that will visit this section of the country this year. Already the circus-loving portion of this community is on the tip-toe of expectancy over the coming of the old reliable F. J. Taylor aggregation; and it can be set down as a certainty that it will attract tremendous crowds. The proprietor of this well-known establishment who is the acknowledged leader of the circus business of America, is said to have outdone all previous efforts in this line, both in the novelty of the entertainment and in the wonderful features exhibited. The securing of the umbrella eared elephant, the only one in America, at an enormous outlay of cash, is evidence that the manager of this great show is bound to exhibit to its patrons something new and worthy the great name and reputation it already has. The street parade will be the grandest ever seen here. After the parade a grand free show will be given on the grounds, which is said to be the best ever given. We confidently predict enormous crowds on July 25th.
