CURRENT COMMENT.

A crowd of people attacked a detachment of carabinieri who were trying to arrest a famous brigand at Vicovaro, Italy, and succeeded in freeing the brigand.

The erection of a large telescope on the Andes mountains in Peru, where the climate seems especially adapted to astronomical work, has been suggested by a Harvard professor.

In places in New York, away from the gilded palaces, population is pretty dense, as may be judged from the following: New York has 8,162 dwellings which contain over ten families each.

Names of places are largely duplicated in nations where the name is a national favorite. There are seventy-two places called St. Etienne in France and thirty called Washington in America.

New railroads are not madly rushing out in every direction over the country, still there is considerable construction going on all the time. Up to June 1, 1900 miles of railroad had been made this year.

The United States dredge boat Lone Star is now doing excellent work in dredging out the rock bottom in the channel just above the bridge of the H. C. A. & N. railway, near Alexandria, La.

The consular representatives of Central and South American republics in New York have united in protest to the Colombian minister in this country against the action of the Colombian government in placing an embargo upon all vessels destined for Colon from United States ports.

One may get into trouble even in a joke, so troublesome is the world. A contortionist in an exhibition in Halifax, Nova Scotia, twisted himself into a ludicrous shape and said: "This is an imitation of an Albion hotel bedbug." The audience laughed, but the hotel proprietor couldn't see the joke. He began suit for $5,000.

Representatives from five tribes of Indians met at Pine Springs, A. T., to protest against the government forcibly taking Indian children from their parents and sending them to eastern schools. Many chiefs wanted to go on the war path. Utes, Pah Utes, Wallapais and Yava Sabai tribes were represented at the council. Over forty Wallapais families have gone into the mountains hundreds of miles from their old homes. They will resist all attempts to take their children to school.

A man is wise when he finds that home is where his friends live. One can exist elsewhere but can never truly be at home. Max O'Rell, who is lecturing in Australia, announces his intention of returning home and "settling down" for life after this last trip. Asked whether by home he meant Paris he replied in the negative. "In Paris everything is changed. We go there every year to look around, but when one has formed a circle of literary, social and artistic friends, as I have in London—well, that is home."

The census bureau has issued a bulletin on the color and nativity of the population of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota. Of the total population of these states as a whole, over 21 years of age, 19.59 per cent. are aliens and 64.33 per cent. of these have been naturalized, while 7.51 per cent. have taken out their first papers. Of the aliens in Ohio 35.43 per cent. cannot speak the English language; in Indiana, 26.10 per cent.; in Illinois, 30.24 per cent.; in Michigan, 27.99 per cent.; in Wisconsin, 42.33 per cent., and in Minnesota, 24.36.

The over-zealous man may become impertinent; and then it is well enough to administer the mild reproof. While Prof. Huxley was staying at a seaside resort in North Wales he was approached by a Liverpool evangelist, who thrust a tract into his hand with the inquiry, "Have you got your soul saved?" "I have sufficient respect for genuine religion to be revolted by blasphemous impertinences," said the scientist in relating the anecdote afterwards. "So I answered somewhat sternly, 'That is my business,' and tore up the tract."

Col. J. H. King, a government official interested in rain experiments, was in Pierre, S. D., recently. Asked when the experiments were to be made, Mr. King said: "You folks have been having so much cold, rainy weather out this way that we can't make any experiments until this condition of things changes. I am here to look the ground over, and will probably remain a week. If in that time I think the conditions are favorable for experiments, they will probably be made a little later on. Taken altogether, I hardly expect any experiments will be made this fall, and the whole matter will be postponed until next summer."

Bernhardt, who was recently in Brussels, expressed herself there with contempt regarding the cholera. Indeed, according to the London News, she felt sure there was no such malady. There might be an atmospheric state favoring its production in unhealthy people, but that was all. The cholera microbe seemed to her the most absurd child of the human imagination. She is willing to go to any cholera stricken town to give a benefit in favor of the so-called victims of cholera. Sarah's breezy indifference to cholera shows she is a crank on the subject, like many others who have the public ear. Cholera is not a nervous disease which may be bluffed away, but is caused by a specific virus, which, when it reaches the lower bowels, is just as likely to knock over the bold as the most timid.

TOTS WHO GAMBLE.

Miniature Wheels of Fortune All the Go Nowadays.

"Take a chance, mister. Please do. It's only a penny, and just look at the prizes!" This is the request that greets everyone passing through uptown streets nowadays. The beggars are little boys and girls who are practicing to develop the gambling instinct. A reporter ran a gauntlet of four girls and three boys on one block on East Twenty-sixth street a day or two ago. Nor would they take "no" for an answer, but followed, imploring him to invest.

Each held a toy wheel of fortune that was an exact counterpart of the gambling machines one sees operated by hard-faced fakirs at Coney Island. Those used by children are smaller; but for all practical gambling purposes they are identical. A flat metal arrow, about ten inches long, swings on a pivot standing in the center of a round piece of stiff cardboard, something like a foot and a half in diameter. A strip of cardboard, an inch high, is glued around the outer edge of the layout to prevent the prizes lying in between little partitions around the circle from falling off. There are twenty-four spaces, eight of which hold prizes. The remaining sixteen are blank.

The prizes consist of dimes, nickels, toys, watch charms, brass rings and candy. The little gamblers arrange the best prizes in compliance with the printed rules on the under side of the layout. In other words, the four prizes worth from five to ten cents each are placed at equal distances about the outer edge of the circle, after which four worthless rings or some other articles are placed midway between the four first laid down. This leaves sixteen blanks in the baby gambler's favor, to say nothing of the four worthless prizes. One who invests a penny gives the arrow a whirl and wins or loses according to what its head stops in front of. No toy of recent years has been so popular with little folks as these wheels of fortune.—N. Y. Advertiser.

—There are 3,643 policemen in New York city, an increase of 1,122 since 1880, an increase justified by the gain in population. Last year 90,124 persons were arrested, 18,912 of whom were females. There were 3,429 persons arrested for violations of the excise law, a decrease of 1,323 as compared with the preceding year. The value of lost property restored to owners was over one million dollars. There were 208 dead bodies taken to the morgue.
