Hon. J. S. Gilham of this city, has been making some excellent speeches for the republicans in the state this month. He is an able speaker.

President Fillmore, in his message to the 32d Congress said "as our manufacturing establishments are broken down by competition with foreigners, the capital invested in them is lost thousands, of honest and industrious people are thrown out of employment, and the farmer to that extent is deprived of a home market for the sale of his surplus of products.

McKeighan in speeches in the country tells the farmers that the republican party is to blame for prices not being higher; and in the towns and cities he tells the laboring men that the republican party and the McKinley bill is to blame for prices being so high on farm products. He is not very consistent to say the least. We cannot understand how he can reconcile his two statements.

The Nation says: "Some one furnished passes to the Hastings joint rally to republicans, to holler for Andrews. The passes were furnished out of a campaign fund, but we took notice that a number of independent availed themselves of republican generosity and went on the same passes that the Nation accuses the republicans of having been furnished with. "For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" we fear that our independent brothers are the equal of their more unsophisticated celestial friends. There seems to be no honesty of purpose in these trying (?) times, except one looks through the independent goggles.

In an editorial article the Nation uses the following language:

"We advocate free silver coinage as a matter of policy. If nothing more, it gives us the silver mining states without doing us any harm."

It seems by the above remarks that our friend, can, in extremity even lose sight of an advocated principle of his party and recognize the silver barons, in whose interest free silver would be, when they can be used to further the cause of the independent party. From his remarks it would seem that he does not believe that free silver is right, but advocates it as a drawing card to carry, if possible, the western states. Verily the new party is as corrupt as they would have people believe that the republican party is.

President Harrison's campaign is one of many independence and perseverance. His administration during the last four years has been decidedly American and directly opposite to that of ex-president Cleveland, who took more pains to crawl after the English government than to uphold American ideas. He has made it his business to see that the American government is respected in all quarters of the globe and shown that respect that it is entitled to. What a difference between the two administrations. One strongly in favor of everything American, while the other was so-called as you please if the British were willing. The people have enough of Grover Cleveland. Harrison's victory is certain.

Died.—In the city of consumption. A familiar headline isn't it? It's pretty risky to neglect a cold or cough. One minute cough cure is pleasant, safe and sure. For sale at Cotting's.

The Lie Natted.

F. P. Shields, of the Blue Hill Leader, was one of the five delegates in Red Cloud convention who voted against making the nomination of McKeighan unanimous. Before the county convention he telegraphed McKeighan that he would support him for $250. Mc. didn't think Shields was worth it, so he let him slide. Hence Mr. Shields will support Parsons Andrews. That's the kind of fellows who were against McKeighan in the Red Cloud convention.—Clay Centre Gazette Democrat.

The Leader of F. P. Shields will bet any man all the way from $1 to $1000 or as much as we can raise, and we can raise enough to satisfy the demands that Bill McKeighan never received a telegram from us in his life, let alone one whereby we proffered our support to him for any consideration. We brand Mr. McKeighan or any of his leechmen as liars, and they dare not confront us.

Banker Van Wyck's Record. In 1879, when house roll 184 was up in the state senate for consideration, relating to rates of interest, Mr. Noyes moved to amend to reduce the rate to 8 per cent Mr. Van Wyck voted "No."—Senate Journal p. 628. In congress on the 8th day of June, 1868, Van Wyck voted "Aye" to refer, (and so bury and kill) Holman's resolution to tax United States bonds, Cong. Globe 40, Cong. 2d Sess. p. 2936.

Holman said: "Of course every member knows that the reference of this resolution will kill it," and it did kill it; Van Wyck helped. Van Wyck "dodged" the vote on the resolution to pay the $20 U. S. bonds in the same kind of money "with which the government paid the soldiers who fought the battles of the war." (Cong. Globe, 40th Cong. 2d Sess. p. 2571.)

Senator A. S. Paddock has been one of the hardest working public men in the country, and the fruits of his labors are attested by the most splendid results. As chairman of the committee on agriculture he has been brought in touch with the farming interests of the country and has accomplished more in that position for those than any senator who has preceded him. Indeed, Senator Paddock is today without doubt stronger among the farmers of the United States than any man in either branch of congress. He has their confidence and friendship, not through any tricks of the demagogue or by posing for notoriety, but because his effort in behalf of the farmer have been practical and covered a wide legislative scope, while being both arduous and unassuming. Senator Paddock's term expires next March and if the Republicans win the legislature this fall there will be no question as to his reelection, judging from the solid public sentiment of the state that has already been expressed. There are several senatorial lightning rods already in the air, but the Republicans of Nebraska will be disposed to repeat the compliment in Mr. Paddock's case that was paid Senator C. F. Manderson four years ago. Senator Paddock should be re-elected.—Kearney Hub.

The political situation grows brighter every day for the republican party's success this fall. So for Vermont and Maine have gone republican by decisive majorities, which is an indication that this is a republican year. Let every republican take courage and do his utmost to elect the republican ticket in Nebraska. Van Wyck is certainly losing ground every day, as people well know, although he denies it, that he is a millionaire and as such is not a fair champion of the people's party as they promulgate it, besides that he is unclean in politics as well as in many other things, while his opponent, Judge Crouse is a man in every way his superior, clean in politics and a clean public record.

Don't forget that McKeighan appointed an Iowa boy to the cadetship instead of giving it to a Nebraskan, who was fully his equal. Andrews will always be found fighting for Nebraskans.

Euclid Martin, of Omaha, a solid democrat, and chairman of the state democratic Central committee, is opposed to the election of McKeighan and so is Tobe Castor another rock-ribbed democrat.

It is reported that up at McCook, Hon. W. E. Andrews, pelted McKeighan so hard with political facts that he attempted to leave the stage and would have done so had it not been his Independents forcing him to come back. Mack has evidently found his match in the next congressman.

People who give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial realize its great merit and are glad to say a good word for it. Have you tried it?

Knocked Out.

(Furnished.) The story is told of an old Massachusetts farmer that he took to his bed weary and sick at heart when Hayne delivered his remarkable speech. Here the news of Webster's magnificent reply reached him and he leaped from his resting place with joy and satisfaction.

Last Friday night at Hastings the same was repeated, the greatest political blackguard of the age, the defamer of republicanism and of all that is good in our past, met the champion of republicanism and a defeat more crushing than Waterloo. Republicans ventured out in throngs, many confident but not fearing, they departed exultant, triumphant, jubilant to a man.

Andrews is eloquent, but the terrific bursts of applause that greeted every sentence of his last half hour could have been evoked by no man's mere eloquence, they were shouts of satisfaction for the downfall of the demagogue.

Andrews opened in an hour and in a neat manner put his opponent on his own record, which he strove for an hour and fifteen minutes to vindicate. The issue logically was McKeighanism and Republicanism. Then Andrews neatly and expeditiously summarized in concise statements republican principles and policies and the reasons why they were most worthy of support. He made a strong, vigorous argument in which was no flaw for the wily Mc. to magnify to the men he had brought there to gull by his sophistries. The bursts of applause were frequent and tremendous. McKeighan in reply didn't dare say he was a democrat, didn't dare say he was an independent, though the entire audience joined in a vociferous demand that he say one or the other then and there. Mc. promised to tell Andrews alone, after election, if Andrews would go behind a hay stack. What a subject for a cartoon that hay stack would make.

A long verbatim quotation from one of Bryan's speeches was a singular feature of McKeighan's address, and it was like feeding the crowd chestnuts with the meat carefully removed. His quotations didn't stop here. In spite of the fact that every one except McKeighan knows that the bookmakers and theorists are free traders, McKeighan proceeded to dare Andrews to drop his text books, and then rehearsed the old argument about a balance of trade that every college boy learns from democratic Walker's free trade, political economy and then refuted from native common sense.

McKeighan took occasion to thank heaven that he never looked with favor upon the motives of such bad men as Washington, Jefferson, et id omne genus, and Webster county folk wondered that he should thank heaven for anything or recognizing a God even by words.

The Colossus of Rhodes made the biggest straddle known to history. McKeighan's whole effort was to equal it and sustain his equilibrium against Andrew's mighty blows, and because like the Colossus, brass enters largely into his composition he succeeded measurably, that is he wouldn't get off the fence on either side.

Andrews answered in a half hour and at every sentence the crowd went wild. He declared that he didn't have to go behind a hay stack to tell any man what he was, and in reply to McKeighan's fling that he had water on the brain, said that was better than to have no brain to put water on at which McKeighan gasped audibly. In fact Mc. was nearly thoroughly and artistically flayed.

At the close a body of independent rose and cheered Andrews until they were hoarse. A crowd of enthusiastic republicans put Andrews on their shoulders and carried him around the hall. McKeighan was left alone to reflect upon the compensating occurrence induced by vulgar ambition and measure the lot of the fallen.

The crowd was immense. An overflow meeting was held down town, while probably 2,500 people endeavored to hear the debate. Republicans are jubilant and aggressive, Andrews is the hero of the hour; hurrah for Andrews the champion of honesty and decency in fifth district politics, and hurrah for another Corbett-like victory of mind over matter.

The Handsomest Lady in Red Cloud

Wright's Health Underwear.

Non-Irritating, Always Soft.

And more durable than the ordinary knit.

New York, 1892.

To the Trade and the Consumer:

In submitting to you the "Wright's Health Underwear" we desire calling special attention to their SANITARY QUALITIES.

The garments absorb the perspiration as rapidly as emitted through the pores of the skin and carry it to the surface of fabric where it is evaporated, thereby preventing the body from being suddenly chilled by atmospheric changes and guarding the wearer against colds, la grippe, pneumonia, rheumatism, etc.

The finest material is used in their manufacture, and for warmth, comfort and durability are unsurpassed.

The fleecing is woven in the fabric and is guaranteed not to wear off until the garment is thoroughly worn out. Use only ordinary care in washing fine woolsens.

Upon their merits alone we commend to you

WRIGHT'S HEALTH UNDERWEAR,

P. S.—Beware of imitations.
