All old soldiers should read the following article from the Louisville Courier—Journal, a Cleveland organ, and then come out and vote for the Republican ticket.
"RED-NOSED PATRIOTS"
It is supplemented by a steadily increasing pension list, looting the Treasury to the tune of one hundred and fifty millions a year, two-thirds of which go to the support of coffee-coolers and camp-followers, and other red-nosed patriots that loaf about the doggeries and brothels of the country, swearing one for another, toward an ultimate agrarianism as corrupt and corrupting as ever existed in the world—Louisville Courier-Journal. (Cleveland organ.)

The Hon. J. G. Tate has made some of the best political speeches ever delivered in this county. Wherever he has spoken, he has had big crowds and attentive listeners, and general enthusiasm. He will speak at Red Cloud, Saturday night, Nov. 5th. Every man, woman, and child should hear him.

About Right.
EDITOR CHIEF:—If my creditors had not given me credit I would be better off today. I felt sort of proud of the fact that I could get credit, and went into it lively. I bought many things that could have been dispensed with. Crops failed, but I was still full of hope, and would be as sound as our present currency had I not been beset by some of my neighbors whose heads got turned on the subject of the great reform move. I at first stood aloof, and pointed to my ruined crops as the cause of my poverty. Wife and I talked it over, and resolved to stick to business after the old style, but my neighbors came back again and said how a certain smart fellow was going to congress to pass a bill that would compel the government to loan us money at two per cent on our farms; also, that this bright fellow was going to knock the McKinley bill into a cocked hat; that there were millions of tons of silver bullion locked up in the treasury that he was going to have coined and shipped out to Nebraska and put in circulation; that he was going to have greenbacks printed by the cord and sent flying all over these western states; that he had formulated a bill already that would give to each man, woman and child fifty dollars annually.

Well, I am ashamed to confess the fact, but somehow I fell in with the move. Then there came around some fellows saying that I must subscribe for the papers published in the interest of the new deal, and I fell in and had to abandon such papers as the Lincoln Journal and the Red Cloud Chief, and read instead the organs—they call them—of this reformation, notwithstanding I was at the time owing Mr. Hosmer for his paper. Then I was told that I must contribute to the state fund so that the grand work of saving the country might go on, and I again fell into line. Next, I was told that I must attend all meetings, conventions and rallies, whether or not, so I fell into line again, though unable to do so financially. Well, our smart fellow went to congress sure enough, but instead of getting his bill through he sat there like the "poor boy as the corn husking," silent as a clam, and not even honored with the title of "the wild man from the woolly west"; in fact, he was not known in the great shuffle, and so dropped out of the game like grandfather's clock, "never to go again." But I must hasten to tell you something that tickle's my wife and I awfully. Now listen: After I had been in the reform business for a year or two, I got up one morning and began to mend up the harness, scour up the plows, brush down the horses, and after breakfast, started for the field with the determination to be a tool and fool no longer. I sowed and planted, kept the festive sun flower down, and had quite a good yield of grain. I paid off a portion of my indebtedness the first year, and now with another fair crop I am wiping out the old score, and by the end of another year—God helping me—I will be out of debt, and all because of the stand I took that morning, and the determination to be a fool no longer. It makes me ashamed when I recall those days wherein I was degenerating into what my good wife calls a poor old soreheaded pessimist. But enough. If you can forgive me, Mr. Hosmer, and accept the two silver dollars herewith handed you, one in payment of the old score, and the other for THE CHIEF for the year 1892, and drive out to my house some Sunday for dinner, then I will feel grateful indeed.

Mr. Editor, something is going to drop next Tuesday. Yours truly,
A. D. URN.

COMRADE: We do not send this sentiment, but cold facts, that we may all see wisely and well.
"I do not feel like supporting any man who has treated the old soldiers the way Mr. Cleveland has treated them. By his insults he sent Gen. McClellan with a broken heart to the grave. I feel as the old soldier does. I tell you, sir, the old soldier will not vote for Cleveland. He cannot carry New York."
GEN. DANIEL E. HICKLES.

The above quotation is taken from the remarks of the one-legged hero of Gettysburg, General Daniel E. Hickles. And again this brave General, at the reunion of his old Third Corps in Washington last month, said: "You are going home now, and there is something I want you to take home with you. Powder it; teach it to your children; tell it to your neighbors. It is the truth, that the people of the United States will see that no man is ever elected to an office of trust and profit in this country who opposes the payment of pensions to the soldiers of the union."
GEN. HARRISON A "COMRADE" WILL.

In his letter of acceptance is the following, which will be appreciated by the union veterans and all loyal citizens: "The union soldiers and sailors are now veterans of time as well as of war. The parallels of age have approached close to the citadel of life, and the end for each of a brave and honorable struggle is not remote. Increasing infirmity and years give the minor tones of sadness and pathos to the mighty appeal of service and suffering. The ear that does not listen with sympathy and the heart that does not respond with generosity are the ear and heart of an alien and not of an American. Now, soon again the surviving veterans are to parade upon the great avenue of the National Capitol, and every tribute of honor and love should attend the march. A comrade in the column of the victors' parade in 1865, I am as less a comrade now."
In republican Nebraska, the democrats are anxious to have Weaver snatched in taking the state from Harrison, thereby making it possible to throw the selection of president in to the democratic house of representatives and insure Cleveland's election. Senator John Sherman, of Ohio, says "the democratic party is as bold in their utterance as in 1863, and the loyal north should be as prompt to meet them as in 1861." Our last and urgent warning, comrade, is, remember, if you do not vote for Harrison, it is an indirect vote for Cleveland. Don't alap yourself in the face, comrade.

NEBRASKA UNION VETERAN REPUBLICAN CLUB.
World's Fair.
The ladies of Red Cloud met November 1st at the residence of Mrs. Wiener and organized a society auxiliary to the state board of the Columbian exposition. The following officers were elected: Mrs. M. Barker, Pres.; Mrs. Silas Garber, Vice-Pres.; Mrs. E. B. Knight, Sec.; Miss P. D. Yeiser, Treas.
It is desired that these societies should ascertain what women are doing in all the industries in this country; therefore superintendents were appointed to secure such information and report to the society.
Sup't of art, designing authors and professions, Mrs. McKeoby.
Sup't of educational work, Mrs. Eva Cass.
Sup't of stores, shops, office and domestic service, Miss Mollie Ferris.
The women of Nebraska have undertaken the work of furnishing the reception room of the Nebraska building at the world's fair, each county in the state making one or more articles for the room neatly made of corn and its appurtenances. This society has decided to make a small table decorated with corn. Mrs. C. Wiesner has appointed superintendent of that work. They would also like to make an exhibit to be called the Webster county fair, and marked in that way. They desire the co-operation of all ladies in the county in order to do this.
The next meeting of this society will be at the residence of Miss P. D. Yeiser, Saturday, the 10th inst, at 3 p. m., at which time vice-presidents for all the townships in the county will be appointed.
Now, ladies of Webster county, come out and join this auxiliary and help to furnish a room we may all be proud of and have a personal interest in. It will be a place for us to rest during the fair, where we can feel at home.
