

Mrs. Sarah Muir of Minneapolis. "I was for a long time a sufferer from Female Weakness and tried many remedies and physicians, to no good purpose. One bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla made so great a difference in my condition that I took three bottles more and found myself perfectly well. I have also given Hood's Sarsaparilla to the children, and find that it keeps them in good health." Mrs. SARAH MUIR, 308 10th av., So. Minneapolis, Minn.

KALASKA county, Mich., at three elections during the last six years has elected a democratic prosecuting attorney by the following plurality vote: 1886, by one vote; 1888, by two votes; 1892, by four votes.

A ST. LOUIS landlord recently rented a room for sleeping purposes. The tenant turned it into a blacksmith shop and the landlord hardly knew it when he saw it later. He wanted the tenant arrested for malicious damage.

THE Society of the War of 1812, which was chartered in Philadelphia last week, numbers fifty-five members, of whom David McCoy, of San Bernardino, Cal., 102 years of age, is probably the oldest. Another very old member is Abram Daily, of Brooklyn, who sees without glasses at 97.

A DOCKING clause against the salary of legislators might stop absenteeism, which has become so common in this country. It is thought likely that the French chamber of deputies will adopt a rule under which absentees shall be fined 20 francs ($2) a day, the amount to be deducted from their official salaries.

A BERLIN correspondent says that the first paragraph of the German conservative platform ends: "We combat Jewish influence in our national life on which it acts with disintegrating effects; we demand Christian government for Christian people and Christian teachers for Christian pupils. We condemn excess of anti-Semitism."

PERSONS generally have a tenderness for those whose lots have been cast in the same hard lines. Christine Nilsson has just fulfilled a vow made when she was a young girl—poor and unknown to fame, suffering from an attack of croup—by giving $5,000 toward the founding of a hospital in France for the treatment of sufferers from throat troubles.

THE steamer Fonar, from Rotterdam, fell in with the whaling bark A. R. Tucker, Capt. Baker, which had been nearly two years out from New Bedford, and nearly all of this time had been inclosed in ice in Hudson bay, shut in from the outside world. The sailors were all healthy, but were very hungry for news, and Capt. Willis sent them newspapers.

A SCOTCH engineer is said to have solved the problem of making the rail run with the water that has passed. It is reported by a Glasgow paper that a resident engineer has devised an arrangement by which all the steam used by an engine is returned to the boiler. As a result it is said that as much energy can be gotten out of one ton of coal as is now secured by the consumption of seven tons.

SAN FRANCISCO gets her water from Lake Tahoe, 150 miles distant, and her whisky to mix with it from Kentucky, via New York. The finer grades are shipped by steamer. The rolling and tossing of the vessel improves the quality, shaking the spirits up and evaporating the fuel oil. The sea air also improves the whisky, and when it gets to San Francisco it is worth 25 cents more per gallon than when it started on its journey.

THE good people of Pittsburgh, Pa., have forced the authorities to turn disorderly characters out of town. The lawfulness of turning anybody out of a community is open to question, but its selfish wickedness is plainly apparent. No one would be allowed to scatter the firebrands of his own premises on those of his neighbors, nor should cities be allowed to rid themselves of their moral firebrands in the same fashion. Let them keep their filth and deodorize it when it becomes unpleasant.

MISS ELLA F. KNOWLES, over whom the papers made so much of a to-do when it was reported that she had been elected attorney-general of Montana, is said to be in every way worthy of the honors tendered her. She was born in Rockingham county, N. H., but just how long ago her biographer fails to mention. She graduated from Northwood seminary at the age of 15, and from the state normal school one year later. She graduated from Bates college, of Lewiston, Me., in 1884, and now holds the degree of M. A. from that institution. In pursuit of health she made her way west, and in the fall of 1887 settled in Helena, where she found she could not pursue her plan of the practice of law because the state laws barred women from the bar. Not daunted by this trifling, however, she set to work and secured an amendment to the law, and at once began work in her chosen profession with a degree of success that won the admiration of the entire bench and bar of the state.

THE morning James P. Barrington, a drayman, committed suicide at Grand Island by drinking four ounces of laudanum and one ounce of carbolic acid mixed in whisky. After drinking the dose he walked two blocks home and told his wife what he had done. Physicians were instantly called, but no relief could be had. He leaves a wife and five children in destitute circumstances.

A CAR of cattle on the way to South Omaha was burned in the train between Newport and Bassett, about seven miles west of Newport the other day. Conductor Hutchinson cut the car loose from the rest of the train and ran to Newport with the burning car, but was too late to save the stock. All that was left was the body of the car and the burnt carcasses of twenty-four head of cattle.

DICK BERLIN and Charles Hays, two South Omaha gamblers, were recently arrested upon the charge of having murdered Mayor Miller, of that city. It will be remembered that the mayor was found dead some weeks since in the outskirts of the town and it was thought to be a case of suicide. Detectives were put to work upon the case and the result has been the arrests. The motive is thought to be the mayor's fight on the gambling houses.

THE missing Indian boy, who was thought to have been murdered near Columbus a few weeks since and whose name was supposed to be Tommy Worldmover, has been heard from. Superintendent Backus, of the Genoa Indian school, received a telegram from J. M. Coe, mayor of Sloan, Ia., stating that Tommy had been there and left on the 17th of November. The boy's name, it seems, is Thomas Blue, instead of Worldmover, as formerly reported, and Superintendent Backus thinks there is no doubt as to his being the missing lad.

AN aged couple named Burgen, both over 80 years of age and who had been married for sixty-one years, without children or other relations, whose home was between Wilber and Crete, recently went to the graveyard to look at the place they had selected for a last resting place. The shock proved so great to the old gentleman that he soon died and was buried by the side of his life companion on Thanksgiving day.

THE incubating and brooding rooms of the Beatrice Poultry & Kennel Co., half a mile east of Beatrice, were destroyed by fire the other day. The entire pet and show stock of the company was burned, including 300 of the finest brood and show poultry in the state, which had been housed in an upper story of the building for the winter. These had received first premiums at the Kansas and Nebraska fairs for two or three years past. The loss also included a large number of pet rabbits, guinea pigs and sixteen valuable dogs of the terrier and hunting breeds that were penned in the building. A large barn adjoining the poultry pens was also destroyed, with its contents, hay, grain, vegetables, etc. About 1,000 head of chickens, all valuable stock, were burned.

The Subjects Left Over That Congress Must Consider. THE Prohibition of Immigration and the Anti-Option Bill Will Cause Much Talk—Financial Necessities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The second session of the Fifty-second congress which begins to-day is likely to be more remarkable for discussion than for action. Not that there are not many things to be done, if the bulky calendars of the senate and the house are put in evidence, but principally because of lack of opportunity, or of inclination. The thing that must be done and will be done, is to provide means for the maintenance of the government, and it is generally believed that the regular annual appropriation bills will represent nearly all the positive achievements that can be credited to this session.

There may, however, be several important exceptions. One of them relates to the subject of immigration. The public interest in this subject, which was awakened last summer by fear of the cholera epidemic, has been stimulated by the radical suggestion of the senate immigration committee that all immigration be suspended for one year. Undoubtedly powerful influences will be brought to bear to compass the defeat of any bill embodying such a proposition, but it may be that the great public sentiment behind it will oblige congress to pass the measure.

Looking toward the prospective subjects of discussion, however, and taking into account the measures which have already passed one or the other of the two houses the field is large. No one expects any tariff legislation in either house, but the subject is so much involved in the revenue question and in the appropriations to be made that more or less division on that topic may be expected.

The senate finance committee has not yet completed the formidable task it undertook last session, which was the compilation of a series of elaborate reports upon the different tariff systems tried in the United States. These reports probably will be most interesting to the student of political economy, and may come under discussion at some period of the session. Then there are bills to admit Arizona and Mexico to statehood. The house has passed both of these bills, and the one providing for the admission of New Mexico is on the senate calendar favorably reported from the territories committee. The chairman of the committee is opposed to the bill, but it may be that New Mexico will yet join the union by the act of the republican senate.

The anti-options bill has advanced so far as to become the unfinished business in the senate. It was known to have a large majority of that body in its favor last session upon a direct vote, if one could have been reached, but it is threatened with a renewal of the determined and skillful obstructive tactics which then proved successful, and the result is still doubtful.

There will probably be many propositions and much talk this session looking to reforms in the national banking laws, the necessity for which is said to be indicated by the Keystone and Mavorick bank failures. The state bank tax may also be a fruitful theme of discussion, and the alliance senators and representatives will be heard upon some of their radical propositions.

These matters, however, are likely to be simply themes for discussion without action. Strong efforts will be made by the house appropriations committee to retrench expenditures at every point, but as this must be done with great care in order to avoid embarrassment to the coming democratic administration, there may be stormy debates and much feeling aroused before the desired result is obtained. In connection with the appropriation is the pension list, and there will be no lack of suggestions looking to changes in the laws designed to regulate more closely the enormous expenditures under that head.

The friends of the new navy are not expected to sit quietly by and witness any unfriendly pruning of estimates and as congress is already under the obligation to make a heavy appropriation for the great ironclad, authorized by the present law, it will be hard to reconcile the views of the economists and the naval defense element. The work of the session will probably begin quietly.

In the senate the vice president will appoint a committee to wait on the president and notify him that the body is ready to receive any communication he may desire to make. To this committee will be imparted the information that the president will communicate with the senate next day, whereupon an adjournment will follow, perhaps based upon resolutions of respect to the memory of some of the members of the house of representatives who have died during the recess, or, it is feared, by reason of the news of the death of Senator Gibson, who is now reported to be so dangerously ill. Tuesday the president's message will be read and is likely to fill out the legislative day.
