THIS BIRD

SPEAKS LOUDER THAN WORDS,

The Grand Victory of the Republicans.

- OHIO IOWA KANSAS NEBRASKA NEW YORK NEW JERSEY PENNSYLVANIA MASSACHUSETTS

Ohio elects McKinley by 90,000 majority. New York elects republican officials by 35,000. Massachusetts by 30,000. Iowa by 30,000. Kansas elects republicans in 90 counties out of 105. Nebraska elects its state officials. New Jersey elects its entire legislature. Pennsylvania goes largely republican, and so on all along the line. Surely glory enough for one day.

Election has come and gone, and the republicans have not only been triumphant in Webster county, but in New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Michigan, Kansas, Iowa, and in nearly all of the states where elections have been held. This fact goes to show that the people have become tired of the misrule of the democratic party, and have decided that the grand old party is still the best party on earth.

Reading Room.

We want it distinctly understood here and now, once and for all, that these rooms are not to become a leading place for boys. Those who have comfortable places at home are expected to stay there in the evenings. Understand us every one is welcome to come to the rooms whenever they are open; and if the boys have a few spare minutes when they are down-town, or the lessons are easy some night, and they wish to read some book we have, or write some letters, why come on, boys, and invest your time where you think it will do you the most good.

MONTHLY REPORT. Amount pledged to Oct. 31 $24.50 " received " " 21.00 " paid out " " 12.00 Balance on hand Nov. 1 8.00 Bookcase open for examination at any time. We need some chairs. Surely there are a number of families in Red Cloud who can donate a common chair. We need many other articles but it seems useless to again mention them. If you have anything which you think could be used in a reading room, and which you do not need please either bring it to the rooms, speak to one of the directors, or drop us a card. Address City Reading Room.

Another Political Battle Won by the Republicans

AFTER A WELL FOUGHT CAMPAIGN.

With Big Odds Against Us.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

After the battle is over, After the victor's war, After the boys tall grover, After the ball is done, Go and tell Capt. Honebin, Go tell some others, too, Go tell August Zerweh, Go tell all the crew. That the "Pops" weren't in it, That they're on the wane, That the "Bears" chewed their fat, That their efforts were in vain. For the Republicans are workers, For their candidates they fight, For they have us for kickers, For their victory's out of sight.

The great political campaign of turmoil and adversity is at an end. To assert that it has been an exciting one is but a true statement. Both locally and abroad, the recent election has been characterized with much enthusiasm, indicative of the relative strength of each party. The press throughout the country has displayed its usual strength in the extolling of the candidates advocating its principles, the crafty politician has concocted his various schemes, the chronic campaign debator has sung his little song, the usual amount of campaign literature has been promulgated through the country, the sanguine orator has reiterated in glowing terms the grand achievements as an inevitable result of the victory of his party, and the obnoxious campaign tattler has been relegated to obscurity till another election.

All the various factions have employed means to pervert those susceptible to a change, but we are thankful after a long period of painful suspense, to mount our familiar and adored pinnacle, and wave the flag of republican victory. In our own county the contest has been a very spirited one, there being many men in each party who were readily acknowledged to be deserving of the votes of the people. The actual result, however, has determined the four most important offices won by republican candidates. It was well known from the beginning that the most strenuous efforts would be required to defeat the populist ticket, as it was even conceded by some republicans to be almost formidable. But such was not the case. In many parts of the county, they fell far short of their vote of two years ago, and nowhere was there increase in their number.

Although the election was an interesting one, there was a reasonable fairness manifested in the race, and with the exception of the Guide Rock Signal, which sold its influence to the highest bidder, there was little bribery or unfairness in the entire campaign. L. H. Fort proved his popularity with the people by capturing the office of county clerk. Mr. Fort is a typical gentleman, a skilled accountant, and a conservative business man, and his genial, frank nature has gained the popularity of our people to that extent that they conferred upon him the honor of clerk on the republican ticket, the one which he has always supported.

J. S. White was at no time uneasy concerning his election. From start to finish, he made a thorough and honorable canvass, which is strictly in accordance with his principles as a man, and he was rewarded with the election to the office of county treasurer by a handsome majority. That Mr. White will make an excellent and honorable official there is no doubt, as he has always been an honorable man, and a conservative republican.

John Runchey is another republican who won laurels in the election which constitute one of the most important offices in the county. John is an honorable young man, full of ambition, reasonable in his ideas, and judicious in his dealings. He will make a sheriff which will be an honor and credit to the county.

The race for the office of county superintendent was, indeed, a close contest with the two leaders. All in the race were well qualified, but the republican candidate, D. M. Hunter, won the race. His most active opponent was the populist candidate, Geo. R. McCrary, who is virtually a stranger, but at the same time, a gentleman in every sense of the word, as shown by the vote he polled. Mr. Hunter enters upon the duties of the office of county superintendent for the second term, and his efficient work in the educational line in the past insure the requirements of that office well attended to in the future.

Judge Duffy is a good citizen and a good judge, hence the people of the county decided to have him remain in that office.

Stephen Bayles became the county coroner on the populist ticket, and will, no doubt, give satisfaction. Our defeated candidate for that office is very cheerful, and although he is a man unblemished, he did not get the required number of votes to elect him. In the case of Judge Trunkey, it was on the same principle. Mr. Trunkey is a gentleman, and had it not been for the satisfaction given by the present incumbent of the office of county judge, he would undoubtedly have been elected.

Frank Kuehn was the populist candidate for county surveyor, and while he defeated an excellent man for that place, Mr. Thorne of Bladen, he has given satisfaction, and, no doubt, will continue to do so.

The following is the result of the county election:

JUDGE OF SUPERIOR COURT. T. O. O. Harrison, republican, 868; F. Irvine, democrat, 247; Silas A. Holcomb, independent, 952; Ada M. Bittenbender, prohibition, 77; Holcomb's plurality, 84.

A QUAIN CEREMONY.

A Wedding Which Was Conducted In Accordance With Quaker Rules.

At noon, in the prim meeting house of the Society of Friends at Rutherford place and Fifteenth street, Miss Elizabeth Willets and Dr. Samuel W. Lambert married themselves. No minister officiated, for none was needed. No prayers were said, and no music greeted their approach to the altar. Ceremony and display were lacking.

Half an hour before the ceremony was to take place the little meeting house was crowded to the walls. Three thousand invitations had been sent out, but only about 400 could gain entrance.

Everything had a subdued character—the pews painted in soft yellowish brown colors, the ceremony, the decorations and the people. No flowers were displayed, but the rostrum and the choir seats were banded with a mass of palms. Especially noticeable among the people were the young women, clad in soft colored cloth gowns, wearing big hats, which drooped in unexpected turns and crept over their foreheads and had soft veils twisted about the brims, which shaded the eyes and the brows. These young women as they entered kept their eyes right toward the pews where they were going to sit. Scattered among the crowd pressing into the church came a few Friends dressed in their old time attire—wearing smooth black coats, with velvet faced standing collars and broad topped lapels, and broad crowned, wide brimmed black hats.

Miss Willets reached the church, accompanied by her father, shortly before noon. A few minutes later the ushers led the procession up the aisle. Following were the two bridesmaids. The bride advanced leaning on her father's arm. She wore a white satin gown trimmed with point lace and a tulle veil. The bridesmaids were attired in delicate green and white striped gowns, made with full skirts and adorned with black velvet bows.

The procession was received at the rostrum by Dr. Lambert and his best man and Dr. J. W. Markoe. Dr. Lambert advanced and took Miss Willets by the right hand. They stood facing each other, scarcely looking at their assembled friends, as Dr. Lambert said:

"In the presence of the Lord and these, my friends, I promise to take thee to be my wedded wife, promising through divine assistance to be a faithful and affectionate husband till death."

Then Miss Willets spoke a few hurried words, inaudible to the people. What she said was:

"In the presence of the Lord and my friends I promise to take thee to be my wedded husband, promising through divine assistance to be a faithful and affectionate wife until death."

No prayer was offered, but after a moment's pause Mr. Howard J. Wright, the white haired clerk of the meeting, unrolled a large certificate. Dr. and Mrs. Lambert walked a step or two to the left, where he was standing, and then seating himself in a chair Dr. Lambert signed his name to the certificate. Then Mrs. Lambert signed the document, writing not her maiden name, but her new name.

Then Mr. Wright stood up and read the certificate, which recounted that on the 21st day of October the two parties in the presence of witnesses had pledged themselves to be husband and wife. To this certificate is appended a list of witnesses giving testimony that the ceremony was performed. The marriage is recorded in the birth, marriage and death book of the society.—New York Letter.
