THE MANGO TRICK.

A Scientist Discovers How the Yoghis

Work Their Createst Wonder. A French scientist, M. Ragonneau, has just discovered how to make a plant grow from a seed in thirty minutes as much as it would under ordinary circumstances in as many days. says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Heretofore nature has shared this secret with the Yoghis of India alone, and the methods pursued by these clever magicians in performing this trick have often been described. They plant a seed in the earth and cover it with a cloth. In a few moments the cloth begins to be pushed upward by the growing plant, which in a short time attains the height of several feet. Various theories have been advanced as to the modus operandi of this miracle, one of the latest being that the spectators are all hypnotized by the magician.

During his travels in India M. Ragonneau saw the trick performed frequently, and noticed that the Hindoos always imbedded the seed in soil which they brought with them especially prepared for that purpose. At last he learned that they obtained this earth from ant hills. Now, as every one knows who has inadvertently eaten one of those industrious insects, ants contain a large proportion of formic acid, with which in time the soil of their habitations becomes charged. This acid has the power of quickly dissolving the integument surrounding a seed and of greatly stimulating the growth of the germ

After a little experimenting with this acid the learned Frenchman was able to duplicate perfectly the Hindoo trick. His further researches have led him to believe that this discovery may be profitably applied to agriculture. By infusing ants in boiling water acid as strong as vinegar can be obtained. M. Ragonneau has achieved the best results and most perfeet growth by using earth moistened with a solution of 5,000 parts of water and one of acid.

Wonderful Power of Personation Resulting From Inherited Instincts.

The serpent dance, winding through a sinuous maze of gliding measures. appears almost a transformation or reincarnation of the performer into the cobra, which she represents, says All the Year Round. Instincts inherited from bygone generations of Nautch dancers combine with close observation of nature to produce miraculous results. The Nautch girl lives to please, and labors for that end with the success which attends the unwearied pursuit of one absorbing object. Mrs. Will J. Chalmers, daughter of the late Allan Pinkerton, and herself a notable figure in Chicago, in West Side society at least, has lately added to her retinue of domestics a welltrained English butler, who, being a late importation, was unaware of the existence of the navel orange. The other day Mrs. Chalmers ordered a box of this fruit to be sent home. During dinner, a few intimates being present, the lady of the house, surprised that the oranges did not make their appearance, inquired of the butler what had become of them. "Hif you please, mum," said the butler, "I ad to send 'em back. Hevery one of those oranges 'ad 'oles in 'em."-Argonaut.

Character in Old Gloves. Liverpool boasts a woman who can carn a good living by reading character from old gloves. This curious occupation is called "manicology," and all one has to do who wishes to give a trial is to dispatch a pair of cast-off gloves, together with a few postage stamps, to the enterprising "mani-cologist," who will forward in turn a full and particular account of the sender's character, disposition, and "prospects in life," as disclosed by the Moisture and Temperature.

A cubic foot of air at the temperature of zero (Fahr.) can contain only 0.5 of a grain of water vapor; at 32 degrees it can hold 2.13 grains; at 65 it can contain 6.8 grains, and at 98 it can hold 18.96 grains of moisture in suspension. These figures go to show that summer air can hold at least nine times the quantity of damp-ness that air can when reduced to the temperature of freezing.

NCOMES FROM THE SLUMS Where Some of the Charitable Get the Wealth They Give.

The "Inconsistencies of the Rich" would make an interesting chapter were it not for the fact that in all justice it should be followed by one on the "Inconsistencies of the Poor," and then a wider judgment would end by classing them under the "Inconsistencies of Human Nature." There is, however, a certain type of charitably disposed rich women that have this trait so largely in one respect that it invites attention. A woman of this class is taught from childhood the duty of giving a tithe to the poor. She is good and takes pleasure in the duty. Religiously she apportions each year sums of money to help the needy and improve the vicious. She is very devout; attends faithfully to every church duty: sits Sunday in her luxurious pew, and is moved to deepest sympathy by appeals on behalf of suffering humanity, and gives freely when the time comes.

If such a woman were told that she is in a measure the cause of much that she endeavors to alleviate by money she would not understand. Yet she is, and if some day she would visit personally some of the real estate from which is derived the income which keeps her in case her eyes notorious fact that many of the wealthy class are totally unacquainted with their possessions, which they leave entirely in the hands of agents whose business it is to make the most money possible out of them. Most of the houses in certain neighborhoods pass through many hands until by a series of subletting they reach the miserable creatures who pay for a small space within. So one of the potent factors in "slum" making waxes and grows strong.

Some time ago one who had gone down to live among the poor and miserable, hoping by personal contact to better their condition, found near the tiny house which he had taken a sale by Deyo & Grice. most deplorable state of affairs, says the Chicago Times. A narrow alleyway contained five small houses of three rooms each, each room being occupied by one family. Fifteen families were thus crowded into this nurrow space. One hydrant did duty for the whole crowd, and here young and ting. old, male and female, performed what ablutions they feit moved to indulge in. The one outhouse was in such a terrible condition that the stranger feared disaster when the warm weather should come. He found out that the property was owned by a woman of wealth, and paid her a personal visit. He described to her the terrible conditions, of which she knew nothing, as she never interfered with such business, she said.

She was pursuaded, however, to visit the place and was shocked into bed for two days by what she caw there. Workmen were speedily sent her art, differs as much from the and the condition of one little slum was materially bettered. Treasure Trove in an Attic.

A short time ago a young woman of | can't discourage. Medford, while rummaging in her father's attie, came across an old retiold stamps. The reticule had been value. Last week, to her surprise, her father told her that for her interest in the stamps he would pay her fare to Washington and back, and her expenses for a two weeks' visit there. This sounds like a very liberal offer, but it is probably not so much a trip might be about $50, while the stamps are worth about $90. They are the 3-cent pink, of the issue of 1861, and are valued in the new catalogue, which is just coming out, at $15 each. In the old catalogue they were offered at $5, but they have become so rare that the price has been put up. Although they could probably not be sold to a dealer for that price, they are sufficiently valuable to make it a lucky find .- Boston Tran-

A few who do not know any better may call themselves so, but they are wrong. Those who know what is right call themselves Jews, and that is the only correct name.-Jewish Tidings.

A Strange People.

North Carolina's strange people of the swamps have counterparts in the mysterious race of so-called Indians in Southern Delaware. They are a swarthy people, with some strong traits of the redmen, though there are contradictory stories as to their origin. They are fully civilized, however, and follow the ordinary occupations of the region to which they are natives, though they mingle little with the whites and refuse to associate with the negroes.

Cherry Pectoral SAVED HIS LIFE

So says Mr. T. M. Reed, a highly-respected Merchant of Mid-dletown, Ill., of a Young Man who was supposed to be in Consumption.

"One of my customers, some years ago, had a son who had all the symptoms of consumption. The usual medicines afforded him no relief, and he steadily failed until he was unable to leave his bed. His mother applied to me of for some remedy and I recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The young man took it according to directions, and soon began to improve until he became well and strong."—T. M. REED, Middletown, Ill.

"Some time ago, I caught a severe cold, my throat and lungs were badly inflamed, and I had a terrible cough. It was supposed that I was a victim of consumption, and my friends had little hope of recovery. But I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, took it, and was entirely cured. No doubt, it saved my life."—
