Some Wholesome Advice. To "tide over a period of calamity" seems to be the great question. The usual remedies to meet such distress are all directly calculated, not only to aggravate it when it exists, but to create it.

Relief work would seem the natural remedy, but relief work is a very dangerous thing. Relief work, to be a benefit and not an injury, should be continuous, hard and underpaid. Industrious persons would rather earn a living than to accept "charitable relief."

There are unfortunates, or loafers. These men, whether by their own fault or not, have become so unfit for regular work or a decent living that they require a course of severe discipline, even before an attempt to reform them can be made.

CASTORIA for Infants and Children. Large advertisement with logo and introductory text.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paragoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine? Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons? Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons? Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed? Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proved to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose? Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest? Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts. The fac-simile signature of Dr. S. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper. Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

LEARNING BY EXPERIENCE. Mr. Newlywed's Dress Suit Was Not Exactly In the Right Condition. Mr. Robert Newlywed turned up at his office one morning last week with a grievous expression, indicating very plainly that he could tell a tale of woe if he were urged. Only two months before he had run the gamut of rice and old slippers, and since that event life had been developing for him in unexpected ways.

That was before the old slippers and rice. Judging from Mr. Newlywed's fragmentary remarks on life in a flat, Mrs. Newlywed has been learning some things in just the way Robert expected she would. Mr. Newlywed's grievous expression occasionally is understood by his friends to announce an acquisition of knowledge on the part of Mrs. Newlywed. He told of the latest experience of this kind after a reasonable amount of sympathetic urging.

Mrs. Robert has her own ideas of good form. She not only objects to her husband carrying home bundles of any kind, but she further believes that her servants should not be seen carrying any of the results of a morning's marketing into the rather aristocratic apartment house in which she lives.

"I think," she said not long ago, "that it is positively vulgar—no other word fits it—for one's servants to lug home a package of steak or whatever the marketman has neglected to deliver. There are many little ways in which such displays of one's household economy or extravagance may be avoided, you know."

Mrs. Newlywed had an opportunity to test her theory one Monday evening. When she returned after some calls in the afternoon, she found that her orders for dinner had not been delivered. She sent Mary out to get them. She told Mr. Newlywed that none of the other servants in the house had even suspected that her servant had brought in the dinner at a late hour, and Mr. Newlywed asked no questions. The next afternoon the Newlyweds went up to Poughkeepsie to dine with old friends, and it was the day following that Newlywed's grievous expression appeared at the office.

"Of course," he said, "she won't do this same thing again, for it was very embarrassing. Our host thought it was funny, and so it was, real funny—ha, ha—but very embarrassing." More sympathy for Mrs. Newlywed, mixed with judicious praise of Mrs. Newlywed, provoked the tale. "I had just time," said Mr. Newlywed, "on Tuesday to fire my evening clothes and some things, you know, into a leather gress suit case and run for my train. My wife went on an early train. When I reached the house in Poughkeepsie, I made a rapid change and was dressed just on the minute that dinner was announced. I thought that in an apartment we were not so constantly reminded of the presence of a kitchen as we were in this house. My wife began to look embarrassed five minutes after I entered the room, and so did the hostess and the other guests. Say, I'm not going into the details of this thing. It wasn't explained until my wife suddenly asked: "Robert, you never packed your things in that leather box, did you?" "That's just what I did do," said I, "and I made quick work of it." "I thought my wife was going to faint. Then she became hysterical, and in that condition she explained. Of course it was funny, you know, but embarrassing. Mary had been using my dress suit case to smuggle in the marketing. Mrs. Newlywed and I are fond of fish, you know. It was a clever idea, now, wasn't it? But embarrassing—

Tired, Weak, Nervous Could Not Sleep.

Prof. L. D. Edwards, of Preston, Idaho, says: "I was all run down, weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep. I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and now everything is changed. I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active and ambitious. I can do more in one day now than I used to do in a week. For this great good I give Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the sole credit. It Cures." Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit.
