A Wonder in Penmanship.

Among the curiosities preserved by the Minnesota historical society is a lithographed copy of an engrossment of the emancipation proclamation.

The engrosser, one W. H. Pratt of Davenport, Ia., was so very skillful in his manipulations of the pen that he succeeded, by a careful and exact shading of the letters, in producing a very excellent portrait of Abraham Lincoln, the author of the famous document, in the center of the copy.

In other words, the lettering itself is made to form a portrait of Mr. Lincoln. There were probably a large number of them originally struck off, but copies of it are now very rare: As a specimen of penmanship it is certainly very unique.

Money of Alexander the Great.

An interesting find has just been made near Patras, Greece, namely, a rich collection of money in gold and silver of the time of Alexander the Great, more than twenty-two centuries old.

The treasure was found by a peasant in a field. A great quantity was handed up to the authorities, who will deposit it in the museums. But the peasant has, it is thought, taken care of his interests by hiding a quantity, which he will be glad to sell to the highest bidder.

The Finest Stables in the World.

Baroness von Zuyllan, of Paris, has the finest stables in the world for her magnificent horses. Even those of the great czar himself do not equal them in magnificence.

On Sunday afternoons she takes her tea in the stables, where down the center of the great building a thick pile carpet is placed leading up to the tea room. The horses come up to the table for sugar from their mistress like pet dogs. The buildings cover over three acres of ground.

She Got the Ticket.

A Boston young lady at the union station in Portland, Me., wanted to buy a ticket for a way station, but had forgotten the name of the town. Being urged to make a guess at it, she fell into blushing confusion that sounded something like "cat's whiskers." She got the ticket for Wisconsin.
