THE ENTIRE LOWER PORTION OF THE CITY IS INUNDATED.

MANY PEOPLE HOMELESS.

Iwo Boys Drowned on One of the Principal Streets-Railroad Traffic Stopped -Missouret Pacific Shops Potirely Surrounded by Water -Much Damage Done to Property.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Aug 1. - An unprecedented precipitation of rain in the southeast corner of Kansas yester. day morning flooded the streams and wreaked destruction to life and property. In seven hours 4.22 inches of water fell in the city, and last evening the entire lower portion of town was inundated. The bodies of two boys lie somewhere on the submerged streets. The Missouri Pacific railroad shops are surrounded and the train service has been partially abandoned. Many families have been driven from their homes by the trespassing river, and another storm is threatening. The Marmaton river, Mill creek and Black Run have become one stream, spreading over sections of land which have not for years been submerged.

Walter Austin and Willie Gould, two well-known boys, were drowned on one of the principal streets, and O. Austin, father of one of the boys, was carried 200 yards in the treacherous current and finally resoued from the top of a tree by boatmen. Mr. Austin, accompanied by the boys, attempted to cross Mill creek bridge, which was surrounded by water, in a wagon. They proceeded 150 feet through the water, when the wagon and horses were swept away. He made a desperate effort to rescue them, but was helpless and they were drowned. He was carried down and was later found in a tree. The Missouri Pacific passenger train on the K. N. & D. division left for Topeka on time, but was compelled to return and all traffic on that branch has been abandoned. The damage to property will exceed that of the flood of the 5th inst., which was more destructive than any for years.

THEY CALL FOR ARMS.

Wyoming Settlers Ask for Aid Against the Indians. CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug 1 .- The Indian scare is spreading far to the south and east of Jackson's Hole and settlers in Fremont county are becoming alarmed. Governor Richards last night received the following from Dr. W. Lovejoy of South Pass, in the Miners' Delight mining district:

SOUTH PASS, July 30.—There is a band of from 100 to 300 Indians within the board of trade: a half day's ride of this place. They are all bucks and things look shady here. We have plenty of ammunition

Shortly after the receipt of the above the following was received from Leadstone, in the same district: LEWISTON, July 30.-Can you send us guns? Indians are near here. E. A. GUSTIN. The governor says the Indians no doubt are Utes from Duchesne, who are hanging around in the hope that there will be a big fight with the Bannocks which will give them an oppored a wheel off the cart, throwing the tunity to make an attack upon these boys out, and in the fall, dislocated settlers and get back to their reservawith them.

Miners Shot Dead in Alabama. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug 1.-Mine Boss Culverhouse of the Sloss company at Brookside discharged Jim Biggers, a negro miner, for a violation of mine rules. He remained about the mine making threats, and a warrant was sworn out for trespass.

Yesterday Deputy Sheriffs A. T.
Wood and Joel Baxter went to arrest Riggers. As they approached Biggers fired upon them with a Winchester. A bullet passed through Wood's hat and another through his heart, killing him instantly. Baxter was mortally wounded but was able to get back to the camp and give the alarm. The white miners at once organized and went to arrest Biggers. The lat-ter in the meantime had called on a number of his negro friends and when the two parties met a pitched battle followed until the negroes fled to the woods. Four negroes were killed and several wounded. Several white men were wounded.

Freckle Cures.

Do the freckles prove stubborn? There is usually a clamor for "freckle cures" about this time of the year, and the very best thing that proves reliable year after year is simply common buttermilk. found that nothing can equal this fresh buttermilk for removing tan, freckles, sunburn or moth spots. It has the great advantage that it does not injure the skin, but makes it soft and white. Take a soft sponge and bathe the face, neck and arms before retiring for the night. Then wipe off the drops lightly. In the morning wash it off thoroughly and wipe dry with a crash towel. Two or three such baths each week during the summer months will take off and keep off the tan and freekles and keep the skin soft and smooth.—Philadelphia Times.

Galveston Streets.

The streets of Galveston are not merely lettered like those of Washington, but in Galveston they name some of the streets with half letters. This produces such an astonishing system that one reads on the carts that milk can be had on P-and-a-half street and eggs are for sale between N and N-and-a-half. Presumably wicked persons do not merely live in L, as they do in Washington, but give their addresses as in L-and-ahalf. Avenue I is the finest street to look at in Galveston, but J avenue is a tumble down countrified road, with grass growing in the wagon ruts.—New York

A Hugo Fad.

An enthusiastic admirer of Victor Hugo has made a collection of all the black and white and colored portraits of the poet that he could find. Altogether they number nearly 4,000, of which about 2,500 are caricatures and cartoons. The collector, M. Beuve, has also gathered together with infinite pains innumerable pipes, canes, tobacco jars, bottles, scarfpins, handkerchiefs, even cakes of soap, on which the head of the poet appears.

Perth and South Amboy. Thousands of tons of coal are shipped

FORTUNE IN BLACK DIAMONDS.

Value of the Thousands of Tons of Coal at from the ports of Perth and South Amboy, at the mouth of the Raritan river, every month. It is loaded in vessels for all points along the Atlantic seaboard and many European ports. The coal docks of the Lehigh Valley railroad at Perth Amboy are among the largest in the world. The docks of the Pennsylvania railroad at South Amboy are nearly as large in shipping capacity.

In connection with the handling of such immense quantities of coal one of the most troublesome problems for the railroad companies is to keep their rolling stock in constant motion. It is considered a loss of revenue for a car to remain several days at a given point, and everything is done to facilitate the rapid movement of the cars, both loaded and empty. For a number of years loaded cars were kept standing in the storage yards of the Pennsylvania railroad at South Amboy for weeks at a time. At times the company was embarrassed for want of cars to transsport the coal from the mines. The difficulty was finally solved about three years ago. In place of the long string of loaded cars may now be seen immense piles of coal.

When a train arrives from the mines, the various kinds of coal are sorted out and the cars drilled to the proper side track for unloading. In close proximity to each side track stands a large derrick with a movable boom extending diagonally into the air about 80 feet. To this boom is attached a large traveling belt, on which are fastened large buckets. The belt is operated by a small steam engine in charge of the man who manipulates the elevator. As the coal drops from the outlet in the car it falls into the buckets on the elevator belt and is carried to the end of the swinging boom, where it is dropped in the center of the pile and distributed by gravity. The coal remains in these piles until it is required for shipment; then it is loaded in cars and transferred to the docks.

The immense piles of coal green, contain from 10,000 to 12,000 tons each, and are worth from $40,000 to $50,000, according to the market value of the coal. It is frequently the case that there are 12 of these piles of coal in the storage yard, representing a value of from $500,000 to $600,000. It was discovered recently that the coal rusted while in these piles. This did not detract from the burning qualities, but affected the selling value. To prevent this canvas covers were made at a cost of $1,000 each. When the piles of coal are all covered, the storage yard resembles a large circus. The sight of such an immense quantity of coal is viewed with astonishment by strangers, although the residents of South Amboy are so accustomed to it that they never give it a second thought .- New York Telegram.

AN ANCIENT BLOCKHOUSE.

The Bouquet Redoubt the Only One In Existen

Here in Pennsylvania we find what is not in existence in the east or south -one of the original blockhouses built before the Revolution and still in a perfect state of preservation. All the others have disappeared. Forts Duquesne and Pitt are things of the past, but the redoubt of Colonel Bouquet stands today as it stood 130 years ago. To the Pittsburg chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution we are indebted for its restoration. It has been owned by them since 1888. Until that year the old redoubt of Bouquet, as it is called, was occupied as a tenant house, and within its walls was born Pittsburg's local historian, the late Neville B. Craige, Esq. Down on "the point," on a narrow, dirty little street called Fort street, surrounded by tumbledown buildings nearly as old as itself, is a little five sided building of stone and brick erected by Colonel Bouquet in 1764 as a defense against the Indians. The lower story is of stone and the upper of brick. In both are perforations or loopholes, through which the defenders could fire with comparative safety from the enemy.

Why this redoubt was erected has been a query to us, as but a short distance away stood Fort Pitt, a work of considerable magnitude and whose erection cost the colony of Virginia, or the English government, £60,000, but the redoubt was built, as a stone slab over the door with the legend, "1764 Coll. Bouquet," testifies. -Philadelphia Ttean
