OFFICIAL WHIPPING.

How Boy Criminals Are Punished by Thrashing In England. Boys who are found guilty of minor offenses in England are sentenced by the judges to a sound thrashing at the hands of the policeman. Here is a description of it taken from an English paper: The birch is a very different instru-ment of torture from the cat. The former is made up of a number of long birch twigs, while the latter is really a whip with nine knotted small cord lashes. When the cat is administered, the prison doctor must be present, but when the birch is put on it is only necessary for the inspector or superintend-ent of police to witness it, although the parents or near relatives of a boy sentenced to be flogged may be present at the castigation. When a dose of the cat s dealt out, none but those connected with the prison are allowed to be there. Like the cat the birch may be made a very severe punishment or a compara-tively trivial affair, not merely accord-ing to the number of strokes, but from the instructions given the constable who is told off to do the flogging. I have seen a boy after six strokes resemble nothing so much as a piece of raw beef and bleeding fearfully, while I have also seen a boy after six strokes merely a trifle red. Some policemen dread the duty of flogging, and after the first two strokes get a sharp order to "hit the boy and not play with him." Other constables delight in the work and boast of their ability to draw blood at the first stroke.

Various modes of administering the punishment obtain in different parts of the country. In some places boys are placed face downward on a form. One constable holds his arms and head firmly, while another does him the same service with his legs, and the third ad-ministers the punishment.

In other prisons the culprit is placed on a constable's back, and as he sits there with his arms around the officer's neck, awaiting "the event," his attitude strikes a spectator more as one of affec-tion than discomfort. Another way is to compel a boy to lean over a chair as if he were praying, then run a strap right around his legs and the legs of the chair, a constable holding his head and arms from the other side.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THROUGH OTHER EYES.

Life at Marvard College From the English Point of View.

The student life of America is eminamely an American institution. It has grown up in an odd compound of native manness and foreign influences, which form an essentially new product. It is a good deal more complex in its organization than anything known an the laise or the Cara. There is more details in it, and consequently less breadth of effect.

The university organizations are innumerable. Men are banded tegether in college clubs for every conceivable purpose of study or amusement. Their bond of union may be their attempt to talk Greek with the accent of modern Attica, or it may be only a passion for domineedly an American institution. It has or it may be only a passion for domi-nos, but it has all the notes of institution in its machinery of committee, president and secretaries. Great variety of life somes from the differences in fortune among the students, but of late years there has been a laudable attempt on the part of the university and college thorities to introduce a more uniform simplicity. Plain living is the cry, and with this secured it is believed the thinking will take care of itself.

At Harvard some time ago Professor Palmer tried to discover how far the living had departed from the philosophic standard by asking some handreds of students for a zeturn of their annual expenditure. The answers showed that Harvard at least had nothing to be ashamed of. Many of the students, Res than a fourth, spent less than £180 a year; some less than £100. The average probably did not amount to the £200 a year which the professor regards as an entirely adequate allowance for both than Harvard, so these institutions at hast are not open to the reproach that they have introduced the millionsire into American university life.-London

The Duke of York's Baby.

There is a report that the Duke of York's baby is deaf and dumb, but ev-erybody will hope that it is not true, and that the royal suckling will talk and hear as well as anybody when the time comes. If not, the disability will not be without its alleviations. Only a few of his line have said anything good or heard snything good of themselves in six generations. One of his succession earned this epitaph, which he may deserve whether he talks or not:

Whether he talks or not:

Here lies Prince Fred,
Who was alive and is dead.
Had it been his father
I had much rather.
Had it been his brother
Booner than the other.
Had it been his sister
There's ac one would have missed her.
Had it been his whole generation
All the better for the nation.
But as it's only Fred,
Who was alive and is dead,
There is nothing to be said.

A Trick of the Hunten During a visit to Montana a prominent Chicago gentleman went with a party just starting for a grand "hunt for big game in the Yellowstone re-gion." He remarked to the leader, "You cannot hunt in Yellowstone park." "Oh, no," said the leader. "We go outside the limits of the park, and if the game won't come to use we know how to manage to make it come." Such excursions are not uncommon, and it will not be strange if hungry Indians should occasionally imitate their white brethren.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE CITY.

The liles in my garden blow.
Wide meadows ring my garden round.
In that green wood wild violets grow
And pale frail cuckoo flowers are found.
For all you see and all you hear
The city might be miles away,
And yet you feel the city near
Through all the quiet of the day.

Sweet smells the earth, new washed with rain.
Wet leaves gleam in the moonlight pale,
And in the wood behind the lane
I hear the bidden nightingale.
Though field and wood about me lie,
Soft hushed in dewy deep delight,
Yet I can hear the city sigh
Through all the silence of the night.

For me the skylark nests and sings;
For me the vine her garland weaves;
The swallow folds her glossy wings
Fo build beneath my cottage caves.
But I can feel the giant near,
Can hear all day his sad slaves weep,
And when at last the night is here
I hear him moving in his sleep.

Oh, for a little space of ground,
Though never a flower should make it gay.
Where miles of meadow lapped me round
And leagues and leagues of silence lay!
Oh, for a wind lashed, treeless down,
A black night and a lonely way,
A silence deep enough to drown
The voice that mocks me night and day!

Never fail to relieve Dyspepsia, Constipation, and Headache.

"I have proved the value of Ayer's Pills in relieving dyspepsia and headache, with which complaints I was so long troubled that neither the doctor nor myself supposed I should ever be well again. Through the use of the above medicine I am better than I have been for years."—A. GASKILL, Versailles, Ill.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for to years as a cathartic in liver complaint, and always with extremely beneficial effect, never having had need of other medicine. I also give Ayer's Pills to my children, when they require an aperient, and the result is always most satisfactory."—A. A. EATON, Centre Conway, N. H.

"Having been severely afflicted with costiveness, I was induced to try Ayer's Pills. Their use has effected a complete cure, and I can confidently recommend them to all similarly afflicted."—C. A. WHITMAN, Nipomo, Cal.
