Naturally, they premiums awarded at the county fair trust the word of men who come in the interests of morality, never stopping to think that the source of this stream of purity may be tainted with the germs bred by secret vice and wrong doing. It is a good injunction which the Christ gave to men: about getting rid of the beam in their own eye before tackling the mote in a brother's know of some men whose care on of such doubtful moralityi past that they have been almost denied admission to the bar; whose present morality is so dubious that it is often questioned, and yet who gain the ear of virtue by dint of heroic mockery of morality. And virtue sometimes heeds the hypoc-And virtue sometimes heeds the hypocrisy, which is the homage vice pays to it. Nevertheless, no republican candidate is on the defensive on grounds of morality. They leave it to virtue finally to brush away the web of slander and act in the clear light of truth. They leave it to the Pharisees in this campaign to say: "I am better than thou," and profit by the tales of foul tongued hypocrites, if profit there be.

Cherry Pectoral

So says Mr. T. M. Reed, a highly-respected Merchant of Mid-dletown, Ill., of a Young Man who was supposed to be in Consumption.

"One of my customers, some years ago, had a son who had all the symptoms of consumption. The usual medicines afforded him no relief, and he steadily failed until he was unable to leave his bed. His mother applied to me for some remedy and I recom-mended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The young man took it according to directions, and soon began to improve until he became well and strong."—T. M. REED, Middletown, Ill.

"Some time ago, I caught a severe cold, my throat and lungs were badly inflamed, and I had a terrible cough. It was supposed that I was a victim of consumption, and my friends had little hope of recovery. But I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, took it, and was entirely cured. No doubt, it saved my life."—I. Jones, Emerts Cove, Tenn.
