What He Was Afraid Of.

He was from the back counties of Virginia, and he had made his first trip away from home with a lot of cattle to New York. The big city bewildered him, and he got away as soon as he could, but in an evil hour he took the advice of an acquaintance who wanted him to see all the world possible and had taken passage on a steamer down by sea to Richmond. It was all new to him, and he got to bed before he fully realized where he was. During the night the wind rose, and the ship tossed about at such a lively rate that it awakened him. He was scared, but stood it for awhile because he didn't know what else to do. At last, though, he rolled out of his berth and found his way to the deck.

"Where's the boss of this boat?" inquired he of the first officer he saw.

"He's off watch. What do you want?"

"I want to see him."

"Well, I guess I'll do. What do you want?"

"Ain't the wind blowin' mighty hard?"

"Not very."

"Air we safe?"

"Perfectly."

"They ain't no danger of a tree blowin' down and mashin' in the roof, is they?"

The officer laughed, but he saw the man was serious.

"That's all right," he said, humoring him. "You go back to bed. We never go near the woods when the wind is blowing."

"Much obliged, mister," responded the passenger in the most grateful way. "You see, I wuzn't shore, and it makes me kind of squirmy not knowin' how it was in these parts. Good night," and he sought his berth once more.—Detroit Free Press.

A MARTYR TO INDIGESTION

Cured by Using Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Words of Comfort to All who Suffer from Dyspepsia.

"For years, I was a martyr to indigestion, and had about given up all hope of ever finding relief, as the complaint only seemed to grow worse instead of better, under ordinary treatment. At last, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and I hereby testify that after using only three bottles, I was cured. I can, therefore, confidently recommend this medicine to all similarly afflicted."—FRANKLIN BECK, Avoca, Ia.

"I am personally acquainted with Mr. Beck and believe any statement he may make to be true."—W. J. MAXWELL, Druggist and Pharmacist, Avoca, Ia.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla for general debility and, as a blood-purifier, find it does exactly as is claimed for it."—S. J. ADAMS, Ezzell, Texas.

A PHILOSOPHER'S ATTIC.

Quaint Combination of Greenery and Beauty Above the City.

One of the queerest places in New York can be found in what looks, from the street, to be a funny little gabled roofed house perched jauntily on one corner of the roof of the Windermere; on Fifty-seventh street. It is a conservatory and observatory in one, a miniature roof garden, the den of an attic philosopher, Henry S. Goodale, whose somewhat celebrated daughters, Elaine and Dora, evidently got from him their poetic strain.

The attic is reached by a steep nautical flight of steps leading up through a small square hatchway straight into a wonderful greenery of bloom, a snugger of comfort, likewise a henry, consisting of one fine brown Leghorn fowl and a single fluffy, yellow chick, and a dovecot, where there are softly whirring wings. It is a charming bit of Arcadia, high above the ceaseless roar and heartbeats of a great city, which under its potent spell seems unreal and evanescent, like the undulating, elliptical rings of smoke that float past the "attic" windows. The attic is all windows, except the floor, roof and the simple matched board dado. The little room is a symphony in green; the floor is carpeted with dull green denim; the gabled roof is covered with burlaps of the same hue; a green wicker couch is cushioned in green yachting cloth; a broad green and white striped awning shades the sunny sides of the little house; all the carelessly strewn cushions, though of varying designs and materials, are of the same general hue, and green figured denim draperies on slender brass rods hang ready to exclude the whole outside world if it is desired.

But it is the window gardens that give the greatest charm to the place. Long, deep boxes of country earth and loam give sustenance to thick, tangled clumps of spiky pinks, old fashioned rose bushes and honeysuckle vines, clambering over wire network trellises, which metaphorically kill two birds with one stone by literally preserving the birds—that is, the hen and her chick—from disaster and upholding the lacy green drapery of the vines.

Of course the hen is not allowed the liberty of this garden in the air, though she keeps a vigilant and determined eye out for opportunities to maraud outside her own domain, which is quite spacious enough to keep her hale and hearty, apparently contented with her lot and graciously disposed in the matter of eggs. Dame Attica Henmica—which is the hen's classical name—evidently belongs to a fine old Latin race of fowls, and her neighbors, the doves, are on the most amicable terms.—New York Press.

WANTED FRESH AIR.

The King of Anam Broke a Custom and Created a Fiasco.

Not long ago there was terrible excitement at the royal court of Anam. The king, Thanah-Tai, who was then 14 years old, was missing. Etiquette requires that the Anamese king shall never leave the royal grounds. He is a mighty prisoner. But the young potentate was not hard to find. Though he was a king, he was a boy, and it is natural for a boy, when he has some money in his pocket, to want to get out and spend it.

That was exactly what the king of Anam had done. Entirely alone he had started on a "shopping" expedition through the streets of Hue. Of course no one knew him because he had never shown his face in public. He was simply a boy, like any other boy, and this was exactly what he wanted.

But he was treated with great respect by the shopkeepers, because he seemed to have plenty of money. Curiously enough, the thing which seemed to attract him most was a head shearing machine, or hair clipper, and when the frightened nobles of the court discovered him at last it was with this singular implement in his possession.

He had already begun an attempt to experiment with it on the head of several small street boys, who were proving rebellious subjects, when the courtiers approached him, protesting themselves upon the ground and making alarmed outcries.

The king no longer goes shopping, but he retains his hair clipper as a souvenir of a happy day of freedom with the street boys.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

OLD SHOES FOR NEW.

Inmates of the House of Correction, when they are discharged from that institution, are usually furnished with a brand new pair of shoes in which to start anew the journey of life. The traders stand outside the gates and wait for these discharged prisoners. The latter are not slow to part with their new shoes in exchange for the old ones offered by the traders, not only because the old shoes are more comfortable, but because there is a money consideration too. The House of Correction shoes are strongly made and command a fair price among workmen. The traders pay a bounty of about 25 cents, together with the old pair of shoes in exchange for each new pair, and they make money by the deal.—Philadelphia Record.

The Better Part of Valor.

"Isn't that Colonel Jones with his shotgun?" asked the editor.

"It is," replied the foreman.

"I think you are right," said the editor. "Suppose you crawl in the stove there, and I'll just step up stairs and see if the roof doesn't need repairing!"—Atlanta Constitution.

People who refuse to pay their taxes in Burma are promptly dealt with by the revenue officials. In the Pegu district the local tax collector arrests the defaulting householder and family and carries them off to durance vile in his house until the taxes are forthcoming.

The rain falls upon the just and the unjust alike. The unjust, however, are quicker to seek umbrellas, and generally by some means escape wet.—Chicago Press.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

is strictly a Local Disease and is the result of sudden climatic changes.

Ely's Cream Balm is acknowledged to be the most thorough cure for Nasal Catarrh, Cold in Head and Hay Fever, of all remedies. It opens and cleanses the nasal passages, allays pain and inflammation, breaks the mucus from the membrane from colds, restores the senses of taste and smell. The Balm is applied directly into the nostrils, is quickly absorbed and gives relief at once. The results that follow catarrh, due to the dropping of poisonous matter into the throat, irritation of the bronchial tubes and soreness of the lungs, accompanied by a cough, in all such cases we recommend Pineola Balm to be used in connection with Cream Balm.

ELY'S PINEOLA BALM will relieve and cure all cases of Catarrh of the Throat and Lungs, and is excellent for all throat and lung inflammations and for asthma.

Consumptives will invariably derive benefit from its use as it quickly abates the cough, restores the appetite, assists nature in restoring wasted tissues. There is a large per centage of those who suppose their cases to be consumption, who are only suffering from a chronic cold or deep seated cough, often aggravated by catarrh. Both remedies are pleasant to use. Price of Cream Balm, 50c per bottle; Pineola Balm, 25c. In quantities of $2.00 we will deliver free of express or postage, on receipt of amount.

Many of our machines have run more than twenty years without repairs, other than needles. With proper care, they never wear out, and seldom need repair. We have built sewing machines for more than forty years and have constantly improved them.
