A Dangerous Passage in the Rhone. Below Viviers the Rhone breaks out from its broad upper valley into its broader lower valley through the defile of Donzere. Here the foot hills of the Alps and the foot hills of the Cevennes come together, and behind this natural dam there must have been anciently a great lake which extended to the northward of where now is Valence. The defile is a veritable canyon that would be quite in place in Sierra Madre. On each side of the sharply narrow river the walls of rock rise to a sheer height of 200 feet. The rush of the water is tumultuous. In midstream, surrounded by eddies and whirling waves, is the Roche des Angalais, skepticism and compound engines, that it was customary to tie up at the head of the defile and pray for grace to come through it safely; but nowadays (with the same practical result) they put extra men at the tiller and clap on more steam .- Thomas Janvier, in Cen-

She Was the First Star. Every now and then an anecdote comes to the front showing that our first president liked the theater as well as do his followers of to-day. The point is mentioned in one of the many thestrical stories narrated in that new book: "Shakespeare's Heroines on the Stage." Says the author of the book: "A Philadelphia Portia of this same season of 1793 and 1794 comes of a noted family, being none other than Mrs. Eliza Whitlock, the sister of Mrs. Siddons and of the Kembles. In England, at the age of 22, she had made her London debut as the heroine of 'Shy lock' on February 22, 1783, and; though somewhat masculine in face and figure, yet displayed so animated a countenance and so graceful a bearing as to win a moderate degree of favor. A few years after coming to this land she enjoyed the distinction of playing the first 'star' engagement on the American stage, being engaged for $450 and a benefit to play at the Boston theater in October, 1796. There she repeated her Portia, contending with the remembrance of Mrs. Powell's impersonation of a previous season. She also had the honor of playing before George Washington in Philadelphia."—Chicago News.

Lord Bramwell's Piety.

The late bishop of Winchester is said to have possessed among his many other qualities that of sarcasm. A good story is told of a retort made to the late Lord Bramwell, who, meeting him on his way back to his room to take off his robes after reading prayers in the house of lords, apologized for having been absent from the oeromony. "When I kneel down it gives me palpitation of the heart," said Lord Bramwell, "and it would not be respectful for me to altor stand while your lordship was praying." Bishop Thoroid, perhaps knowing almost as much about the old baron's sanctity as did Lord Bramwell himself, answered to measured tones: "Pray do not mention it, Lord Bramwell! I am sure your tordship can be equally devout whether you are standing, kneeling, or sitting—I will not say lying!" The playful old judge afterward inquired who had read prayers that afternoon, and, on being told re-MONEY LOANED marked, with a sparkle in his eyes: "He's a sharp fellow!"--Household

RESCUED A PRESIDENT.

-A little flour dredged over the top How Lincoln Was Saved from Drowning as a Boy.

However poor the Lincoln home may have been, it affected the new child but little. He was robust and active, and life is full of interest to the child happy If the apple shows signs of rotting, it enough to be born in the country. He had several companions. There was his sister Nancy, or Sarah-both names are given to her-two years his senior; there was a cousin of his mother, ten rinds of four lemons. Shake this daily years older; Dennis Hanks, an active and ingenious leader in sports and mischief, and there were the neighbors' boys. One of the latter, Austin Gollaher, still tells with pleasure how he hunted coops and ran the woods with young Lincoln, and once even saved his

"Yes," said Mr. Gollaher, "the story that I once saved Abraham Lincoln's life is true, but it is not correct as generally related.

"Abraham Lincoln and I had been going to school together for a year or more, and had become greatly attached to each other. Then school disbanded on account of there being so few scholars, and we did not see each other for a long while. One Sunday my mother visited the Lincolns and I was taken along. Abe and I played around all day. Finally we concluded to cross the creek to hunt for some partridges young Lincoln had seen the day before. The creck was swollen by a recent rain, and in crossing on the narrow footing Abe fell in. Neither of us could swim. I got a long pole and held it out to Abe, who grabbed it. Then I pulled him ashore. He was almost dead and I was badly seared. I rolled and pounded him in good earnest. Then I got him by the arms and shook him, the water meanwhile pouring from his of sugar and three tablespoonfuls rice mouth. By this means I succeeded in bringing him to and he was soon all right.

"Then a new difficulty confronted us. erate oven four hours. Serve hot with If our mothers discovered our wet sweetened whipped cream.-Orange clothes, they would whip us. Drink free-ly of warm, thin gruel or warm weak tea with plenty of milk in it. If there to tell the story, and I never mentioned the incident to anyone until after Lincoln's tragic end.

"Abraham Lincoln had a sister. Her name was Sallie, and she was a very pretty girl. She went to school when she could, which was not often.

"Yes, if you must know, Sallie Lincoln was my sweetheart. She was about my age. I loved her and claimed her as boys do. I suppose that was onereason for my warm regard for Abe. When the Lincoln family moved to Indiana I was prevented by circumstances from bidding good-by to either of the children. And I never saw them ogain."-McClure's Magazine,

A GREAT SATISFACTION.

How a Horse Got Even with a Brutal Fellow.

A correspondent tells a story of a handsome black horse, so big and strong that he seemed hardly to feel the weight of the heavy delivery wagon with which he made the rounds of the neighborhood. His driver was a bruta! against which the boat of a luckless fellow, who ought to have been the party of travelers struck and was shat- creature driven. Blows, kicks and an tered a hundred years ago. Indeed, so gry words were the only caresses he dangerous was this passage held to be | ever bestowed upon his steed, and these of old, when faith was stronger and the horse suffered quietly for many poats were weaker than in our day of a long day, till finally even his endurance gave out.

One hot morning the man reined the horse in roughly by the curbstone. On dismounting he seemed to think the wagon too near, and harshly ordered his steed to back, emphasizing the command with a cut from his whip. The horse backed obediently, though angrily, while the man, heated by his exertions, took off his coat, and, having bung it over the dashboard, disappeared in the house.

The horse waited until the driver was out of sight, then, looking around, he saw the coat hanging only a short distance from his heels. Instantly a change came over him. He actually seemed to laugh as he lifted one foot and let it fly at the coat.

Finding that he could not hit it well. he began to beat a regular tattoo upon it; first with one foot, then with the other, and, finally, as he grew excited, with both at once. Surely no coat ever had a more thorough dusting. Out flew note books, papers and handkerchiefs, and rolled into the gutter, but the horse kept on until he heard a door slam, and he knew his master was returning. Then, with a final kick that sent the coat under the wagon, he settled sleepily down in the shafts and pretended to be watching a pair of mules that had just gone by. He didn't seem to mind the slaps the driver gave him while picking up his belongings, and when he started off he looked up at the window and appeared to wink at those who had been watching him and half wishing they could reward him with a peck of oats .-Youth's Companion.

A Polite Lord Mayor.

Among the stories in circulation about the late Joseph Harris, the wellknown master of the city of London school, who died recently, is one in connection with Lord Mayor Owden. That worthy gentleman was not a Greek scholar, and the Greek oration on speech day in Christ's hospital, to which, on a memorable occasion, he listened, was not intelligible to him, "Owden" so pronounced—and Mr. Harris used to tell his friends privately how each time it occurred in the Greek eration, Sir Thomas, fondly supposing that compliment was being paid to him- | all other diseases having their origin in self, rose and sclemnly bowed.—Household Words.

Burning, Eczema

Is the external indication of a comlition of the blood which produces . iery irritation almost unbearable. It is mistake to think that this local irritation is the disease itself-it is simply an vidence of a disordered condition of the olood. The seat of the disease is in the blood, and this is why the various salves and ointments usually applied have no ffect whatever. They cannot possibly each the origin of the trouble; only a blood remedy can do that. S. S. is without an equal for blood diseases, and promptly and permanently cures Eczema nd removes all taint. Much torture could be avoided if the first itching symptoms were heeded and a course of S.S.S. taken promptly, as apparently insignificant skin irritations u-ually develop into the worst form of Eczema unless properly treated.

It matters not what other treatment has been tried in vain, S. S. S. always

I to offer themse was treated by the best of physicians teachers of the with no success, and tried all the patent melicines recommended for Eczema, without any good results. I then went to the Indiana Mud baths, with the same results, and then to Mt. Clements, the celebrate 1 medical resort, where the treatment partially helped me, but the disease shortly returned. I went to Florida, thinking that a change of climate and water and the citron truit might cure me, but found no cure.
"I then tried S.S.S. and after three days the burning and itching subsided, and I continued to improve steadily until I was well-entirely cured. After commencing S. S. S. I never put an external application to my limbs or any part of my body. You may refer to me any person suffering from Eczema. I will always keep the S. S. S. in my house, for I consider it the best blood medicine of the present age. I am seventy years of age and am now in perfect health." For real blood diseases relief can only be obatined by using a real blood remedy. So many people who are sufferers from an obstinate or deep-seated blood disease make the mistake of taking remedies which at best are only tonics and cannot possibly reach their trouble.
