Markot Reports Proc. The business world seems to take special delight in pointing the finger of scorn at the student body for their ignorance of political issues, both national and local. On the whole, this is not right, and yet students, to a great measure, deserve such condemnation for the lack of proper interest in things practical. The most important reason for the ignorance and seeming indifference as to questions concerning the running of the gravel, ulceration or catarrh of the bladder. government is, that they live in a world of their own and use the outside world as a mere accessory to it. They are burdened with the weight of many duties in the line of research, and cannot give the time that a ward politician puts into discussing the merits of this or that candidate; this or that principle; this or that party; still, they should devote a part of their time to these imporatant questions, and be prepared for the practical life that is to follow, and so step from their imaginary world to the busy, hustling, real world.

This can be done most effectively in the high school, because it reaches more people than any other institution of learning. Standing, as it does, between the elementary school and the university or college, it serves as a connecting link in the process of education, and here it is that the student should get his proper impulses toward a high goal for life.

It is in the interest of the pupil to attain the highest development of power; it is in the public interest to perpetuate the intellectual treasures of the race by try cholera remedies ever discovered. training its most talented children in and we cheerfully guarantee a cure if the highest culture of the age, and it is in the interest of the public to see that high schools educate aright. They should educate for citizenship. This is too often overlooked, and we do not know of a better time to offer a few sugor Oxfords gestions than now, on the verge, as we are, of a most important campaign, in which the interest and the welfare of lorit. teach partisanship, but that they should give the growing mind something tangible in the political issues, as relating to themselves and the country at large, in order that they may the more readily comprehend political affairs when they arrive upon the field of active life. The schoos are doing excellent work in developing pure and noble minded persons, yet the possession of a pure and spotless character does not, in itself, solve for any man the problems (to take it in local affairs) as to the best methods of supplying pure water to a city of 3,000 inhabitants, or the best method of dis posing of garbage and sewage. For the want of intelligence on these matters on the part of citizens who, personally, per-The True Medicine For Lost haps, are noble minded philaethropists. many thousands of children die in every large city every year.

So, if our schools would strive to educate their pupils for broad-minded citi zenship, it would accomplish the best preparation for life, which is that which develops the strongest individuality, honesty, and truth; attentive intelligence; quick-witted, thoughtful indus try; and presevering power of applica tion, along with the comprehension of the institutional life of man.
