THIS AND THAT.

What has become of the boy who, on his way to and from school, used to take off his hat and bow politely to venerable people when he met them? And the girl who courted prettily under the same circumstances? And what has become of the men who used to stop and bare their heads reverently when a funeral cortage was passing? These were the questions the writer propounded to himself when the remains of an old respected citizen of the city were being borne through the streets to his final rest. On this occasion the small boy was crossing the street recklessly in front of the hearse, hallooing at the top of his voice, and the thoughtless, irreverent business man was driving pell-mell by the procession of mourners, while the eager and excited politicians were standing on every street corner pouring forth billingsgate in a shameful manner. None of this was intentional disrespect, but a matter of carelessness and a lack of culture that used to be practised by our good old fashioned fathers and their boys who had been and were being disciplined along these lines by the teachers at home and in public schools. A little more respect to our dead would be a tribute to the good men who lived when the men of today were boys.—Acheson Champion.

We call the attention of our new "reform" mayor to the following article taken from the Seward Blade. While reading it he will probably ponder over which promise to make good: "Jim Franey, who has been manager of the South Platte creamery, suddenly threw up his job and left town the first of last week, and his wife had their furniture, etc., disposed of at auction last Saturday. It is said that Franey was short in his accounts with the company a small amount. He can trace his troubles, it is rumored, to patronizing the poker dens of Seward too vigorously. This is a business that eventually downs every man that engages in it. It also is an injury to the business men of any town where it is permitted, as more or less of the patrons of such places will run in debt for their groceries and other necessities and blow in their money trying to rob some other man. Our city authorities will not do their duty if they do not make a vigorous effort to close up these poker dens. We could name a young man who lost a good job last week because his employer discovered that he patronized a poker den in this town. These places are ruining some of Seward's best and most promising young men, and those who have the power should close them up good and tight."

S. F. Siems was in town Saturday, and as usual, he was shipping eggs in every direction. He handles nothing but single comb White Leghorns, of the purest and finest strain. Saturday he shipped eggs to California and Alabama. There is not a state in the union but has received shipments from our great chicken breeder. Mr. Siems informs the argus that he may sell his fine farm out on Shell creek and buy a piece of land closer to the city, out of which he will make one of the most extensive and finest chicken ranches in the United States. Think of it. He has nearly half a thousand busy laying hens, and yet he cannot get enough eggs to supply the ever growing demand at $1.50 a setting. All of which points to a moral: Mr. Siems has the chickens and the chickens do the laying, but if it was not for the dollars he invests in advertising he would find it difficult to peddle his eggs at 7, 8 and 10 cents per dozen.—Columbus Argus.

Another railroad hero is added to the list of gallant fellows who have sacrificed their lives to save the lives of others. At Trenton, N. J., Isaac Slack, a freight conductor, saw four cars break loose from a train he had just left and start down the track for a head-end collision with an approaching passenger train. He made a rush and succeeded in climbing to the top of the first car and in putting on the brake. It was too late to prevent the collision, and the shock threw him to the ground and instantly killed him. But his effort had nearly stopped the freight cars, and the crash was not great enough to injure anyone else. The American soldier and sailor in their best estate are not more faithful or devoted than the brave American railroad man.—Beaver City Tribune.

The married women of Meade center, Kans., have entered into an arrangement by which they are to exchange husbands for dinner in rotation. Jones dines with Mrs. Smith tonight, with Mrs. Brown tomorrow night, with Mrs. Johnson the next night, and so on until each husband has dined with each wife. A sort of progressive pie, but if inaugurated here it would be just like some of our men to want to stay at one place all the time, and it might not be at home either.—Stolen.

"The rocky road to Dublin" is not in it when compared with the "rotten" road between the B. & M tracks and the river bridge. The first culvert south of the track is enough to scare any horse and keep it from going over, and the rest of the road is, in many seasons like the past two weeks, a continuous mud hole and at times covered with water to a depth of from six to eighteen inches. By a small amount of work with plow and scraper a ditch could be dug to the river and all this surplus water conducted to the river instead of having it stand on the public highway and await the sun to dry it up. The road on the south side of the river is in the same pitiable condition where a few hours work with a spade would dig a ditch to the river which would run off all the water and leave a good road all the while.

They tell a good story now on ex-candidate Bryan. While east on a recent lecturing tour he visited one of the insane asylums and among other wards, visited the one in which those who are about cured are kept. He was soon accosted by one of these inmates, who supposed he had been brought in as a patient, and he said to him: "Well, what's your sad? You have one of course." "Oh yes," replied Mr. Bryan, "I am for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation on earth." "Why," said the convalescent patient, "you are not crazy, you're a d-d fool."—Albion News.

A special correspondent from the south side says that a man near McCook has enclosed a quarter section of land with a rat tight wire fence, on which he will raise 1,000 stacks of black cats and 5,000 rats on which to feed the cats. It is estimated that the cats will increase 15,000 in two years. Black cat skins are worth $1 each. The rats will multiply five times as fast as the cats. The cats can feed on the rats and the rats can feed on the skinned carcasses of the cats, and a sure fortune is in sight for the McCook man.—Curtis Courier.

Mrs. A. Inveen, residing at 720 Henry St., Alton, Ill., suffered with sciatic rheumatism for over eight months. She doctored for it nearly the whole of this time, using various remedies recommended by the physicians, but received no relief. She then used one and a half bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which effected a complete cure. This is published at her request as she wants others similarly afflicted to know what cured her. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by H. E. Grier, Druggist.

Mrs. George Rogers entertained the Wednesday afternoon club at a Kensington at her home at 320 South Twelfth street, Wednesday, in honor of her niece, Miss Fort of Red Cloud. The afternoon was spent in merry conversation and music, after which refreshments of strawberries and ices were served. Miss Fort served the ladies with the candy for which she is remembered by her Lincoln friends of previous visits. Those present were Madamam Usher, Wente, Wilson, Tait, Kelfer, O'Neill, Stevens and Miss Fort.—Lincoln Journal.

It was Monday night and the sweet, clear silvery voice of a female was heard to exclaim: "Oh now Jack, don't be so rude, you've nearly pulled off my glove. Now Jack don't bug me so." The belated pedestrian who was going home past the fourth avenue hotel, stopped, listened and then went on not wishing to be an eavesdropper on two lovesick ducks. Of course our informant told us the names of the lovesick darlings, but we won't tell. Here's a chance for mother's slipper.

C. L. Winfrey has rented, burned off and ploughed up what is now known as the Mammoth Jack farm on north Webster street, between the fireman's hall and the Chaffin building, and will put in a large crop of "spuds" and other farm cereals. He wants a few farm tools and anyone having an old rake with part of the teeth knocked out so it won't pull hard, or a hoe with half the blade broken off so it won't be heavy to handle can dispose of it at a bargain.

The Rev. W. H. Weaver, pastor of the U. B. Church, Dillsburg, Pa., recognizes the value of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and does not hesitate to tell others about it. "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," he says, "and find it an excellent medicine for colds, coughs and hoarseness." So does everyone who gives it a trial. Sold by H. E. Grier, Druggist.

It is said that down in Cass county, since a certain young man was fined $1 for hugging a girl, the young men fear even to embrace an opportunity, and the other girls have boycotted the girl who brought the suit for damages against the fellow who hugged her.—Blue Valley Blade.
