THEY HAD DANIEL

And He Probably Went Up for the Usual Thirty Days. Just outside the police court building the other morning the Free Press criminal reporter found his way blocked by an old woman with anxious face, who lifted up her hands at sight of him and exclaimed:

"Sir! Whatdo you think? They've got Daniel in there this morning with "Who's Daniel?"

"Who's Daniel! You livin' here in Detroit and don't know who Daniel is!" But there are a great many Daniels in Detroit." 'No. sir; there isn't. There is only one Daniel as anybody ever heard of, and he's my own husband. Why, sir, when I heard that he was arrested I couldn't believe a word of it! I felt that astonished that you could have knocked me down with a feather!"

"Well, what's Daniel been doing?" "Not the first blessed thing, sir! It's either a great mistake or it's spite

"Drank and disorderly; but it's as awful shame to charge Daniel with that. He couldn't oe made drank, sir, and he's the peacefullest man in all Michigan Are you a lawyer?" "No, ma'am."

"I was in hopes you was and that you'd take this two dollars and go la and take for Daniel. You could say that you had known him for twenty years, and that he mover got drunk ever on election day. You could make 'the judge see that a great wrong had been done, and he'd be only too glad to discharge Daniel. Are you an alder-

"No, me'am Too bad! If you only was you could igo in and tell his honor that Daniel was one of the best political workers in this ward. During the last campaign, sir, Daniel was out every night for fourteen straight nights. If his honor knew that he'd suspend sentence at once. Have you got a pull with the police?"

"I'm afraid not." "Ah! there it is again. As you came up the steps I thought you looked like a man who had. You could go down to headquarters and say to 'em that Daniel was a friend of yours and gathered in by mistake, and they'd have him out here in five minutes. Poor Daniel! He's a-sitting there and a watching and expecting, and here I'm not able to find anyone to do the first thing for him. Don't you work in the

"No, ma'am." "Nor belong to any city department?"

QUEER PROFESSORSHIPS.

Professors of Mouse Catching, Shaving and

A short time ago, as I walked through the hall leading to my boarding-house bedroom. I was surprised to see the door open and a man on his knees in the corner. I inquired of the chamber-maid why he was there.

"Oh, he's all right," she answered. "He's Prof. Wilkins."

"Why did you bring him up here?" I asked. "I always wish to have callers wait for me in the parlor."

"Oh," giggled the girl, "what would he be in the parlor for? He's Prof. Wilkins, the mouse man. Some of the boarders complained there was mice in the house, and he's looking for them!" When I interviewed Prof. Wilkins, he informed me that he was a professor of rodentology, and I found that his mind really had a scientific turn. He gave me some interesting facts in connection with the mouse-catching business. One tale was of a lady who was sued by her maid for damages because, in her terror at discovering a mouse in a sugar basin, she had flung mouse, sugar and basis at the girl's head.

Another story illustrated the infu-ence of certain conditions of dreams. The professor assured me that one of his customers dreamed of mice whenever she ate cheese!

On the register of a hotel in a west-orn town I read "Prof. Pekkins and staff." A geological survey was in progress. Probably, I reflected, Prof. Pekkins was conducting it.

That night, through the transom my door, I heard an unusually penetrating voice instructing a class, but the subject was not geology. The stranger was giving points to his agents on setting forth the merits of a the soap factory, at the lunch hour, o reflection on the butter, which was pest creamery.

A STORY WITH A MORAL

Mutual Secreey About the Family Dia-monds in a New York Home.

There is a young and handsome couple in New York city whose names are constantly in the society columns of the newspapers. They are extravagant beyond their means and they are both wealthy by inheritance. They give entertainments and dinners, and keep a stable fit for chase.

One day, two years ago, John Drucker, a diamond broker, was visited by the husband, who explained the object of his call by producing his wife's dia-mond necklace, with a request that the real stones be purchased for two thousand dollars and imitations substisuted. No one, he said, would ever be the wiser; his position and wealth would banish the suspicion of fraud, and he was temporarily money starved.

The dealer seked a day to consider, retaining the necklace. In the interval he laid the case before the wife's mother, a wealthy and indulgent wemand asked her advice on the mat-ter. She at once gave him $8,000, tell-ing him to head the amount to the hus-band, giving him at the same time the real stones for the imitations. This course was accordingly followed, and the young busband "blew the money

Six menths afterward the wife called upon my friend, the diamend dealer, and, like a femnie Anteny, asked for the lean of cars. Her proposition was the sale of the diamends in her nech-lace for $3,500, and their substitution by false stones. She was a little "short" and needed ready money.
