Catarrh to

Catarrh invariably leads to consumption. Growing worse and worse each winter, those who rely upon the usual treatment of sprays, washes and inhal-ing mixtures find that it is impossible to check the disease with these local applications which only reach the surface. The offensive discharge increases

The importance of the proper treatment can therefore be readily appreciated. But no good whatever can be expected from local applications, as such treatment never did cure Catarrh, and never will. Being a blood disease of the most obstinate nature, Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) is the only remedy which can have the slightest effect upon conditions. The inhabitants were there is nothing equal to Chamberlain's Catarrh. It is the only blood remedy that goes down to the bottom of all stubborn diseases which other remedies
