SOME RAMBLING THOUGHTS.

BY "NEMO."

(Copyrighted) by Dave & Taber.

AS TO LINCOLN:—Some of the towering personages of history—possibly from our ignorance of their daily lives—seem more like demi-gods than men, and we simply marvel at them; for if the frame of a great man has elements in it that are walls before us instead of steps we peep at it like children from a distance, we long vainly for its altitude and we pass on neither aided nor encouraged. It is true beyond dispute that a touch of nature makes us all kin and like the unexpected meeting of a beloved friend is the effect upon us of the great who have suffered as we have, worked long years unseen as we do, and triumphed in some measure as we hope to at last. We are cheered by them. In them we discover the lineaments of ordinary, approachable humanity; their footsteps were no longer than ours but simply always led forward, their hours were no more numerous than those allotted to us but all were made to bend to a purpose, their hopes remaining too often unrealized—like ours—but in reaching upwards toward them came sublimity to the lives that we can safely admire and emulate.

Among these who do not discourage nor dazzle is our Lincoln. As the fierce light of the fevered hours in which he stood unmoved, subsides to a gentle day whose progress is guiltless of inter-neeve strife, he shows forth ever more clearly as "the great commoner." He is a living proof of a truth we too often doubt in our haste, that neither the lack of money nor of pedigree are enough to keep in subjection those who "will" to shake themselves free from impediments. He stands as an encouragement to those who strive against discouraging odds—by glorifying the common place affairs of life into actual tests of character, and by throwing his full powers unreservedly into every task he takes up. He shows that the sum total expected of a man is that he should do the best he can—if a great man in a small place, by filling it to overflowing; if an untried man in a great place, by filling it through the might and the growth that come from modesty, humility, teachableness. He is—surely one with many of us—not occupied with proclaiming his descent, but having whereof to boast in his ascent,—not dandled by a luxurious mother through the proxy love of hired arms, but nourished by a rugged woman under those strenuous circumstances that develop unsung heroes along every bridlepath of our enormous frontier. He is not bound within the limits of any creed of man's inventing, but throws out his broad soul into fellowship with those of all nations who do man-service as God-pleasers. He does not stalk along in gloomy abstraction, but is "hail fellow" in a sunny way with all those weary and burdened ones to whom a laugh is more refreshing than new wine. He is not filled with thoughts of some future destiny,—it is only onlookers who see the destiny of a man,—for he is content with the next step each time that it comes, no matter where it leads. He is not even superior to repining and gloom but from every hour of depression he rises to fling the gage of Despair into the face of Fortune, daring her to the conflict.

There is not one great modern character more thoroughly human than he is. In fact in his day small men reaching no higher than his ankles could see nothing but the mud on his shoes, and failed utterly to raise their eyes to the noble head, with its face seamed more than any man's through the frightful soul-straining weight that was laid by the people upon this man of the people. As the ropes fall from a statue at the unveiling, so all his littleness—traits of a humanity kindred to yours and mine, who too often have no greatness to vary our pettiness—are no longer existent, and he stands before us as a great man.

Without slavish imitation of this pine knot student, this flat-boat lawyer this rail-splitting president, let us learn from him.

It is a sign of greatness to do the next thing that comes to hand, without wasting time longer for greater things to do; to be even larger than our task and yet cheerful whilst doing it; to be ready to acknowledge error in self and to render praise to those who excel us; to be magnanimous to those who bitterly thwart us in our noble purpose. All these did Lincoln and more also.

Debtors are we to the men who have fought for us.
Debtors to those who stood firm for the truth.
Debtors to those who through trials have bought for us
Freedom to cherish our strong, sober youth—
Solemnly, solemnly, keep we their memory.

In the proud blazon of names great in history
Foremost our simple souled citizen see,
Clearing the pathway to honor, from mystery,
Showing how God like the humblest may be—
Joyfully, joyfully keep we his memory.

Like some pink shell in a distant scene muttering
Songs of the ocean that moulded its life,
Many a lonely heart, Lincoln's praise uttering,
Echoes his steadfastness, strong amid strife—
Faithfully, faithfully, keep we his memory.

Long may his spirit, engrafted, victorious,
Grow in its fullness until, like the sun,
Spreading at evening its treasures all glorious,
Heaven's light meets it as earth's day is done,
Prayerfully, prayerfully keep we his memory.

Wedding Bells.

Married, on February 12, at 12:15 p. m. at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Shipman, one mile north and one and one-half miles west of North Branch, Kansas, Mr. Frank R. Amack, and Miss Clara M. Shipman Rev. Husong of Red Cloud officiating. The groom entered the room followed by the minister, and the bride-to-be followed by Mr. Ernest Shipman and Miss Lydia Carhill, as groomsman and bridesmaid.

The ceremony was performed according to the rituals of the Christian church. After the wedding the guests, about fifty in number, did justice to an ample feast which had been prepared for the occasion.

A large number of handsome and useful presents were received by the newly wedded couple.

Another pleasant dinner was given by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Amack on February 3d, which was a repetition of the pleasant affair of the previous day, and was enjoyed by about sixty guests.

THE CHIEF along with their many friends unites in wishing the newly wedded pair a long and happy life.

Entertainment at Inavale.

Last Saturday evening the people of Inavale were entertained at the school house, by an entertainment in the form of chemical experiments, by Mr. Wm. Frazier of Otto, assisted by our teacher. The house was well filled and all went home more than pleased with the instruction and fun of the evening. The following were among the important experiments performed: The preparation of oxygen and its properties explained by the burning of wood, charcoal, iron, magnesium, etc., in it.

The preparation of hydrogen and its properties explained by the hydrogen pistol, singing flame, etc.

The preparation of nitrogen and its properties explained.

The preparation of chlorine and its bleaching powers, etc., explained.

The preparation of carbonic acid gas and its properties shown.

The properties of phosphorous, sodium and potassium shown by interesting experiments.

Several mirth giving explosions and other experiments were performed. The audience was most impressed with the last experiment, the preparation of hydrogen sulphide, and its all predominant property will never be forgotten by any one who was there. Mr. Fraiser certainly seems to understand how to entertain and instruct an audience in the mysteries of chemistry.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists sell them. The money is refunded if it does not cure. 25c.

INAVALE.
Mrs. E. H. Jones is visiting with Mrs. Garner.

Walt Garner and wife visited at S. E. Wolcott's Friday.

Miss Maud Knight spent Sunday with Ed. Palmer's family.

James Overman and family visited at George Garner's Sunday.

C. C. Gooding left Tuesday night for his home at Canon City, Colorado.

Wm. Irons had some corn shelled Tuesday. Reynolds & Son did the shelling.

The photo gallery draws quite a trade on Saturdays. H. L. Luce is the photographer.

Mrs. G. W. Knight went to Norfolk, Nebraska, Monday to attend the W. R. C. convention.

Oral Garner does not gain strength very fast. Dr. Damerell was called to see her Monday.

There is strong talk of several new buildings being built at this place in the spring. We hope they will not be all talk.

Lou Walters and Dan Barker, accompanied by their best girls were making good use of their new buggies Sunday. They are pretty fine rigs boys.

James Lastly expects to start for Washington in the near future to accept a position with his brother who is now residing in that country.

Elmer Simons has his ice house well filled and has also filled an ice house for Mr. Runchey, who is to live on Richardson's ranch this year.

The experiments at the school house last Saturday night caused some merriment and several bad odors. Altogether it was quite interesting. Mr. Frazier and Mr. Heffelbower handled the chemicals.

THINK ABOUT YOUR HEALTH.

This is the Time to Give Attention to Your Physical Condition.

The warmer weather which will come with the approaching spring should find you strong and in robust health, your blood pure and your appetite good. Otherwise you will be in danger of serious injury. Purify and enrich your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla and thus "prepare for spring." This medicine makes rich, red blood and gives vigor and vitality. It will guard you against danger from the changes that will soon take place.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

M. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Restores Health

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address: Dr. J. C. Miles, Little Rock, Ark., Little Rock, Ark.
