WASHINGTON NOTES.

They are excitement is raging and it is constantly growing in intensity. Congress is making a brave effort to wait patiently, but it is only succeeding in waiting, because it must wait; its members are human and their stock of patience is practically exhausted. There are a the president will do with the report, but the impression prevails among Guide Rock Cemetery Association to A. senators and others who have talked the matter over with the president and | Philander Talbot to John Blackwell, at | members of the cabinet, that it will depend on the nature of the report how soon it will be sent to congress and made public. If it merely shows that the Maine was blown up from the out- H. A. Shinkle to Lizzie M. Foster, lots t side by unknown parties, it will probably be sent to congress right away, but if it shows that the explosion was due to the action of any Spanish official or officials, it would probably be withheld until every preparation to make aggressive war was completed, as the president knows, as does somebody Catherine White to A. J. White, n 15 se else, that in that case, as soon as the facts were laid before congress, war would be declared.

Signs of coming war are plentiful in Washington. The house naval committee has added millions to the naval appropriation bill, by providing for additional battleships, torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers; bills are now under consideration to provide for an extensive increase in both the army and navy; hundreds of official notices John Blaine and wife to Geo. R. Chancy of recruits wanted are being prepared in the navy department, so as to be ready to be used in every city in the country on short notice. They are being sent out by mail, so that in case it becomes necessary to use them, the department will have only to wire its agents to go ahead. There is an unusual bustle in every bureau of the war and navy department, and in addition to the telegrams received over the wires in the building, there is a continual stream of messages going in and out. This is not only during office hours, but goes on all day Sunday and the greater portion of the night. The work at the gun and carriage and amunition shops in the Washington navy yard is continuous, three shifts of men each working eight hours right along. Such a big hole has been made in the $50,000,000 emergency appropriation that there is already talk of another big appropriation. All this does not, of course, make it certain that we shall have war, but it certainly serves cured. Two years to increase the chances in favor of ago was the last time

The new Spanish minister is both brainy and audacious. In addition to bringing three Cuban commissioners to Washington to open negotiations with our reciprocity commissioner for a commercial treaty with Spain, just as though he really believed in the possibility of the conclusion of such a treaty under existing circumstances. Senor Palo has made strenuous efforts to make the world believe that the only reason autonomy in Cuba has not been fully accepted by the insurgents and peace restored to Cuba has been the warlike attitude of this country toward Spain and the presence of the strong fleet of war ships at Key West. It is impossible to admire the ingenuity and industry of this Spanish diplomat, but that does not prevent a number of prominent senators and representatives thinking that he and his dummy on the liver and bowels. Cure sick commissioners should be given a little hint that their conduct is bringing them dangerously near to being classed as lying lobbyists. It is not pleasant to hear these persons asserting that autonomy, which Senators Proctor, Gallinger and Money, who have personally investigated, declare to be a miserable failure, is a success. It is a little too much like calling our senators liars. Their object is to try to make friends for autonomy in congress, but the evidence against them is too convincing for them to make any headway in that direction, even if congress was not overwhelmingly in favor of Cuban independence. These commissioners were formally presented to Secretary Sherman Monday.
