23 AMERICANS DEAD

FAST TRAIN IS WRECKED NEAR SALISBURY, ENGLAND.

Most of the Victims Are Americans Who Had Just Debarked From the Steamer New York at Plymouth. Death and Destruction Follow Crash.

Salisbury, England, July 2.-Driving at a mad pace over the London Southwestern railway, the American line express, carrying forty-three of the steamer New York's passengers from Plymouth to London, plunged from the track just after passing the station here, at 1:57 a. m., and mangled to death in its wreckage twenty-three passengers, who sailed from New York June 23, and four of the trainmen. Besides those to whom death came speedily, a dozen persons were injured, some of them seriously.

Following is the list of the first cabin passengers dead: Walter Barwick of Toronto, Louis Cassier of Trumbull, Conn.; Frederick Henry Cossitt of New York: Mrs. C. W. Elphicke of Chicago, Dudley P. Harding of New York, Mrs. L. N. Hitchcock of New York, Miss Mary F. Howieson of New York, Rev. E. L. King of Toronto, Frank W. Koch of Allentown, Pa.; John E. McDonald of New York, C. F. McMeekin of New York, C. A. Pipon of Toronto; Mrs. E. Semtell of New York, Miss Blanche M. Semtell of New York, Miss Gertrude M. Semtell of New York; Mrs. Walter W. Smith of Dayton, O; Miss Eleanor Smith of Dayton, Mrs. Lillian Hurd Waite of New York.

The late hour of the New York's arrival at Plymouth saved many lives. She carried more than sixty travelers for London, but many of them elected to travel on comfortably to Southampton in preference to the late landing at Plymouth and the long night ride across the country. If the New York had made a faster passage the somber roster of the dead and injured would have been longer. The train consisted of a powerful express engine, three first class corridor carriages and one combination guard's van and buffet. and the express pulled out. It was given a clear track on the run of 230 miles to London, on which the express generally maintains an average speed of a mile a minute.

Engine Leaps From Track.

Driver Robins quickly gave the engine her head and the special was soon speeding swiftly through the night. It ran on safely and without incident until it entered the long railway yard at Salisbury, when the passengers noted that the coaches began swaying from side to side. Suddenly, at the end of the long platform, where the track begins to curve towards the bridge spanning Fisherton street, the engine seemed fairly to leap from the track. It swung across the adjoining track with terrific force and destroyed the guards' van of a milk train that was slowly steaming in the opposite direction, killing a guard. Lurching forward the locomotive plunged against the standards and the girders of the bridge.

The first coach shot over the engine and careened onward until it was hurled against the parapet of the bridge and smashed into fragments, killing or maiming almost every occupant. One man was shot through the window, cleared the parapet and fell to his death to the s. eet below. The second coach lurched forward and practically destroyed itself before its wild flight was ended.

The guards' van and buffet, the rearmost car of the train, was saved by the courage and quickness of Guard Richardson. With the first shock Richardson jumped forward and set the brakes and saved himself and his comrades. The van ploughed forward, injuring some of its occupants. but practically maintained its equilib-

The surviving passengers and trainmen describe the sound of the wreck as like the discharge of a series of heavy guns of varied caliber and when the crashing of the wreck was past there came calls of the injured, some shricking with pain and fear and others moaning as if bewildered by the shock.

a surgery and the platform was made injured were imprisoned in compartments and it was necessary to saw away the partitions in order to effect their release. Others were caught under heavy wreckage. Several of the bodies were badly mangled, and one woman was decapitated. In the carriages huddled in wreckage almost under the wheels of the upturned engine, death had been busiest. Here nine men and five women were taken out dead soon after the accident. The driver and fireman were dead in their cab. When an opening was made into the second carriage a terri- flood on the paved streets. ble sight was revealed. At one end of a compartment several bodies were jammed together in an almost unrecognizable mass.

The cause of the accident is still in doubt. It is suggested that the wheels of the engine failed to take the switch or that a wheel or axle broke.

Indians Must Pay Taxes.

Lincoln, June 28.-The state of Nebraska will intervene in the case of the United States against Thurston county, now pending in the federal court. This case involves the assessment for taxation of approximately $100,000 now on deposit in the banks to the credit of the Omaha Indians. When the county assessor of Thurston county attempted to assess this money the government applied to the federal court for an injunction on the ground that the money constituted trust funds in the hands of the government and was not taxable. The county entered a demurrer, which was sustained, and the state became a party to the suit, supporting Thurston
